Chinese Enraged by Tokio's Warning.

Tokio Explains Stand

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, April 20 [Friday.]—"Japan has no intention of interfering with a third power engaging in trade and other transactions with China," a foreign office spokesman said today. "In fact, we welcome such transactions. Neither do we have any desire to deviate from the established policy of the open door in China nor do we wish to infringe on existing treaties. However, the time has passed when other nations or the league of nations can prosecute their policies for exploitation of China."

He explained that last Tuesday's statement, which opposed occidental assistance to China, was not aimed at any particular country and was not made for any particular reason, but to reaffirm the policies set down by Foreign Minister Koki Hirota in his speech before the diet. Hirota spoke as follows at the time:

"Japan in serving as the cornerstone for the edifice of peace in Asia bears the entire burden of responsibilities."

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 19.—China intends to disregard the Japanese declaration opposing occidental sales of aircraft to the Nanking government, it was indicated today. Dr. H. H. Kung, finance minister, signed a contract with Carl Nahmmacher, local representative of the American United Aircraft company, for 20 military planes. The contract calls for immediate shipment.

Kung refused to comment on the Japanese "hands off China" pronouncement, but a finance department spokesman said that China is particularly interested in the reaction of the powers. He pointed out that Japan's action is tantamount to closing the open door in China. The government, he added, contends that if the Japanese doctrine is permitted to stand, it will not be long before the Nipponese also will be banning sales of automobiles or even cloth for making soldiers' uniforms and lether for footwear, on the ground that this would be likely to disturb the peace of Asia.

Lashes Japan's Aim.

A spokesman of the Nanking foreign office said:

"Since international peace is only maintained through the collective efforts of all nations directed at the removal of fundamental sources of friction, no single state has the right to claim the exclusive responsibility for maintaining international peace in any designated part of the world.

"China has never harbored any intention of injuring any nation or of causing a far eastern disturbance. China's collaboration with other nations, whether through loans or technical assistance, has been strictly limited to matters of a nonpolitical character. The purchase of military equipment such as airplanes and the employment of military instructors is for no other purpose than national defense and to maintain order within the country.

"No country which does not harbor ulterior designs against China need entertain fears concerning China's policy of national reconstruction and security. Regarding the present Sino-Japanese situation, peace between the two countries depends on good will and mutual understanding. Hence the unfortunate state of affairs can only be rectified when Sino-Japanese relations are established on a new basis of the mutual aspirations of the two countries."

Attack Tokio's Statement.

Chinese newspapers and public organizations meanwhile united in an outburst against the Japanese statement of policy which was designated as similar to the 21 demands which Japan presented China in 1915.

The Chunghua Jih Pao declared:

"Japan assumes responsibility for maintaining peace in the orient, but we find only evidences of Japan's acts of aggression, the occupation of Manchuria, the invasion of Shanghai, the annexation of Jehol, and the creation of disturbances in North China. Hence China will never tolerate Japanese monopoly."

A DENTIST SHOWS HIS TEETH TO A PAIR OF BANDITS

Dr. Emil Miller, dentist at 32 West Randolph street, yesterday gave a practical demonstration of the value of good, sound teeth. Although he bit off more than he could chew, his powerful molars saved him from robbery.

Dr. Miller was working on a patient, Crag Simpson, in his office on the twelfth floor when two men entered. One of them had, during the morning, made an appointment with Miss Virginia Applequist, 1944 Wilson avenue, the doctor's assistant, for 4:30 p. m. But on arrival he showed plainly he did not intend to have his teeth repaired. He thrust a pistol at Dr. Miller and demanded money.

The doctor, instead of obeying, grappled with the bandit. In their struggle he got hold of the man's left forefinger and bit it so hard the robber howled with pain. Meanwhile the second robber attacked Simpson and also was resisted. So stern was the battle put up by the intended victims that both robbers fled as soon as No. 1 had gotten his finger away from the dentist. A pair of spectacles worn by the bitten bandit were left behind. Detectives Roy Kindt and Guy Willoughby last night started a search for a squinting man with an injured digit.

City Can Meet All Comers on Climate Topic

How Chicago became known as "the Windy City" was recalled again yesterday when Frederick Rex, municipal librarian, issued comparative statistics for 1933 on the climate of 24 cities in the United States having a population of 300,000 or more.

The findings again disprove the fallacious assumption that the nickname arose from any meteorological characteristics. They show 13 cities windier than Chicago, and indicate that Chicagoans are fortunate in the climate they enjoy.

Genesis in 1893 Fair.

The nickname was one of derision. It had nothing to do with climate, but arose out of the battle waged by four cities for the honor of being host to the Columbian Exposition of 1893.

"Don't pay any attention," wrote Charles A. Dana in his New York Sun, "to the nonsensical claims of that windy city. Its people could not build a world's fair if they won it." The exposition upset the latter statement at once, but the name has persisted through the years.

New York itself tied with Buffalo for the dubious honor of being 1933's windiest city. Each had 98 days during which there was a breeze of 32 miles per hour or more. Cleveland had 70 such days. Chicago's total was only 11.

Lauds Chicago's Climate.

"Chicago's climate is one of her least advertised assets," Mr. Rex declared, after analyzing his findings. "I think it would be an excellent thing, to open the eyes of both Chicagoans and visitors, if we could have an exhibit at the World's Fair to show the advantages Chicago enjoys in regard to weather."

New York and Portland, Ore., were tied for the most days in 1933 in which there was dense fog. Each had 25. Sunny Los Angeles was next with 22. Chicago tied with St. Louis and San Francisco for fifteenth place with nine foggy days each.

In snow, however, Chicago was near the head of the list with 48 days when there was a trace of snow. Rochester, N. Y., led with 82 and Milwaukee was next with 65.

Chicago is no rainy metropolis, however, the report shows. Seventeen cities recorded more than the 113 days when it sprinkled here. Only three cities had rain on less than 100 days, while Portland led with 178 days. Chicago was sixteenth in total rainfall with 32 inches during the year. Baltimore, Portland, and Philadelphia all recorded precipitation of more than 50 inches.

No Unseasonal Extremes.

While seasonally chilly because of its northerly location, Chicago was saved from cruel extremes by its shifting lake breezes. The monthly mean temperature for the year of 51.7 degrees was seventeenth among the 24 large cities. Hottest were New Orleans (72.1) and Houston (71.6). Coldest were Minneapolis (47) and Buffalo (48.1).

Thirteen other cities had more than Chicago's 20 days on which the mercury registered 90 degrees or more. Houston topped the list with 89 such torrid days; Seattle and San Francisco had but one each. The highest temperature recorded here, 100 degrees, was equaled by six other cities and surpassed by five more.

Topped on Freezing Weather.

Chicago had 100 days on which the temperature dropped to freezing or below. Six other cities, topped by Minneapolis' 159 days, had more cold weather. Los Angeles, San Francisco, and New Orleans had no freezing days. Temperatures of zero or below were recorded in 15 of the 24 cities, Chicago having six such days. Only Minneapolis and Milwaukee had a greater number.

Chicago ranked eleventh in sunshine, yet only seven cities had more clear days. Los Angeles led in both sun and clear days. The sun shone here 56 per cent of all the time possible between the hours of sunup and sundown.

$2,500 IS AWARDED GIRL SPANKED BY HER KANSAS SCHOOLMATES

Topeka, Kas., April 19.—(AP)—Miss Georgia Hill, Silvis, Ill., was awarded $2,500 by a federal District court jury tonight for injuries which, she contended, resulted from a spanking administered by 10 feminine schoolmates when she was a student in the Goodland, Kas., High school.

The verdict included an award of $2,000 actual and $500 punitive damages. Miss Hill had sued for $25,000 for the hazing episode, which occurred the night of Dec. 11, 1931.

Judgment for the $2,500 is against any or all of the 10 defendants, but not against their parents. None of the defendants is now of age, but attorneys said the judgment could be held for collection until each is 21.

The price which the 10 girls will be required to pay is considerably higher than what the city settled for in another action in which Miss Hill had sued Goodland for $15,000 under the state mob law. The city settled out of court for $100 and costs amounting to $35.

The girls described the episode as a schoolgirl prank and said they spanked Miss Hill lightly. Miss Hill said she was severely beaten and suffered permanent injuries. The spanking was administered for an infraction of a student custom prohibiting "dates" to school basketball games.

BEGIN ATTACKS ON NRA BILL IN ILLINOIS HOUSE

G.O.P. Senators Also in Opposition.

$500,000 Levy

Chicago business and industry to be assessed $500,000 within next month to pay costs of enforcing NRA codes. (Details on page 6.)

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 19.—[Special.]—Republicans in both houses of the legislature began a battle today against the Sinnett bill. That bill would make the state the policing agency behind the NRA.

A dozen Republican leaders said they would fight passage of the bill, introduced yesterday by Representative Thomas P. Sinnett [Dem., Rock Island], Gov. Horner's floor leader. It would, in effect, they charge, array all state and municipal employés as a special force to see that business codes were enforced.

NRA Federal Affair.

The objections raised were varied, but the one most agreed upon was that since the NRA is a national effort, its enforcement should be wholly a federal government function.

That, for example, was the attitude of both Representatives S. P. Roderick, and David I. Swanson of Chicago.

"It is bad enough," Roderick said, "that we have these alphabetical organizations running our national government. But if the theory is to let them filter into the states, it is even worse."

"The bill smacks of dictatorship," Swanson added. "Congress originated it and the federal government should take all responsibility for it. I cannot see why states should be asked to help."

"Worse than Dry Law."

Other comments were more bitter. Representative Clinton Searle of Rock Island, Republican whip of the house, termed the bill "worse than prohibition."

"I am glad the Crusaders are coming out against this equally noxious thing," he said. "All American citizens should join the Crusaders. The battle now is to see if any American institution shall be preserved."

So spontaneous were the protests that Representative Sinnett agreed with the Illinois Manufacturers' association that a full hearing on the bill should be granted before an attempt is made to pass it in the house.

The manufacturers are expected to have a sizable delegation in Springfield for the hearing.

Sees Snoopers' Régime.

Other typical comments came from Representatives Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Mundelein], Frederick W. Rennick [Rep., Buda], and Lottie Holman O'Neill [Rep., Downers Grove].

"All state police would become snoopers under this bill," Lyons declared, "but they wouldn't snoop on big business, only the little fellows."

Rennick foresaw a situation where even employés of the legislature would become government policemen.

"I'm opposed," he said, "to a bill which would make the pages of the house and the girl on the telephones detectives for the NRA."

Mrs. O'Neill said the bill was "offensive" to her. "Labor has no stronger friend than Lottie Holman O'Neill," she declared, "but when American institutions are threatened, we shouldn't permit it."

Senators Ready for Fight.

Among the senators who said they would fight the bill, if it reached their chamber, were Thomas P. Gunning [Rep., Princeton] and Harry G. Wright [Rep., De Kalb].

These sentiments were freely expressed this morning before both houses adjourned for the week-end. Since Mr. Sinnett did not attempt to advance the bill to third reading there was no opportunity for them to be aired on the floor. That probably will come next week.

Before adjournment, however, the house advanced to third reading the gas tax diversion bill backed by Gov. Horner as a means of increasing the state school distributive fund. Attempts to pass this bill will be made Tuesday and the battle will be hot, with Republicans in the opposition column.

Resent Liquor Tax Veto.

The minority members are piqued because the governor vetoed their plan of increasing the fund—diversion of the liquor tax. No debate accompanied advancement of the gas tax bill today, the agreement being that the fight will be made Tuesday.

Two Slumber Before Going to Execution

Three murderers—one the killer of a policeman—were executed in the electric chair at the county jail as the sun rose this morning. The electrocutions marked a high point in the war against crime which was launched last fall by State's Attorney Courtney and the judges of the Criminal court.

Those executed and the order of their execution were:

John Scheck, 21 years old, bank robber, who shot a policeman to death in a courtroom during a wild attempt to escape last summer. He went to the chair at 5:02 and was pronounced dead at 5:07.

Get Extra Hours of Life.

The executions started shortly after 5 o'clock. Usually condemned men are put to death a few minutes after midnight. Sherif Meyering, however, decreed the later hour in order to discourage the morbidly curious who had expressed the desire to attend the electrocutions.

All three condemned men managed an hour or two of sleep in the death cell before they were summoned to the glass inclosed room which contains the fatal chair.

Before they dozed off Scheck and Dale spent the late evening hours writing letters. Francis occupied himself chiefly in reading the Bible.

Earlier in the day Scheck was visited by sixteen relatives, and after the last one had left he weakened. He was the least composed of the three. Dale joked and appeared most buoyant. Both he and Francis boasted they would "go to the chair like men."

Scheck Writes to Family.

Scheck, while remaining glum throughout the night and even early today, apparently expressed his true feelings in letters. In a note to his family he urged: "Please smile and laugh, for that's all that you now can do. If you'll be happy I'll be happy, too. I have only myself to blame."

In a lengthy letter addressed to the general public Scheck sought to extenuate his crime. He blamed his downfall on circumstances and the depression and he excused himself because he was only a boy.

"The thought never occurred to any one during the trial to show the circumstances of John Scheck as a mere boy who was lured and tempted into the life of crime because of his intense devotion to his parents and to his home that they were about to be deprived of as victims of a nation-wide economic depression," stated Scheck in this letter.

Says Kin Faced Loss of Support.

Then Scheck's letter went on to say that at the time he killed the policeman in court he was being held for another crime and that he did not want to go to prison because then his family would be deprived of his support.

"So John Scheck plotted the escape which resulted in failure and the unfortunate death of a policeman," he wrote. Farther on, after a few paragraphs about psychology and behaviorism, which jail attachés said he had been studying in recent weeks, he wrote that "as a boy John Scheck is fighting a battle to live in grief and sorrow for a mistake that is very close to him."

Dale Writes to "Tigress."

Killer Dale was not so profuse in his writing. He addressed a short note to Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, "the blonde tigress," now serving a prison term of 199 years for the murder for which Dale was to die. He told her he had not forgotten her. "I wish to thank you," he wrote, "for all the happy moments we have spent together." Then he sent love to her and the "two boys," her children.

All three killers, Dale, Scheck and

DILLINGER GIVEN WARM WELCOME IN HOME TOWN

Suspected in Pana Bank Robbery.

Mooresville, Ind., April 19.—[Special.]—John Dillinger, America's most notorious outlaw of the present day, hunted though he may be by police everywhere else, still is a welcome visitor in his old home town.

This disclosure was made today after it was reported Dillinger led a gang of three aids into the First National bank of Pana, Ill., at 8 a. m. and, after terrorizing bank employés, fled with $27,629.

Later investigation cast doubt on the theory that the bank raid was conducted by Dillinger's gang. Dispatches from Pana said that employés of the bank could not identify photographs of the Mooresville boy. It appeared to be established, however, that the leader of the robbers dragged one of his legs as he walked and one witness who saw the start of the gang's flight from the bank averred that the limping man resembled pictures he had seen of Dillinger.

Pays Visit to Father.

It has been established that Dillinger was shot March 31 in St. Paul, Minn., while fleeing a trap set for him by federal agents. Mooresville knows that he has since been here, dragging the injured leg and paying his filial respects to John Dillinger Sr.

Old John today admitted this without quibbling.

"O, yes," he said, "John came down here to look in on me. He was hurt in the leg a little, but not much. I don't aim to tell no lies, even to keep things like that quiet. I didn't tell the police because they didn't ask me."

The statement of the elder Dillinger was made to a newspaper reporter who had heard gossip through this little town about his being here and went to the best source for confirmation.

Petition Asks "Amnesty."

So great is the sympathy of Mooresville for its own Robin Hood that a petition is being circulated requesting Gov. Paul V. McNutt to grant Dillinger "amnesty" if he surrenders. The paper, in charge of John Rowe, states that he was given an unfair sentence when he was first convicted of robbing a grocery. Rowe said he had many signatures from residents of Indianapolis as well as Mooresville.

Al G. Feeney, state safety director, was solemnly critical of the people of Mooresville for their failure to report the presence among them of the hunted fugitive, although they knew he was at the elder Dillinger's home.

"It is unusual," he said, "for a community to withhold such information for days and then to let it reach the newspapers in a way that disparages the police. I simply can't understand it."

Leach Knows the Law!

Matt Leach, captain of the state police, asserted that he had no intention of questioning old John.

"What good would it do?" he demanded. "Dillinger's been and gone, and under the law the old man has a right to protect his son."

All the criticizing wasn't done by the authorities, however. Old John had a word or two of unfavorable comment for Sherif Lillian Holley of Lake county, from whose jail at Crown Point the son fled on March 3.

"The sherif made it too easy for John," he declared. "He didn't have to spend a lot of money to get out of there with his little wooden gun."

Robbery Calm and Leisurely.

The Pana robbery was staged in a leisurely manner. The four robbers, arriving in the town shortly after sunup, breakfasted in a restaurant and then in a leisurely manner drove over to the bank. While one man stayed in the car, the limping leader and the other pair walked into the bank doors.

At the time the janitor, Godfrey Schmitz, was washing windows. Taking possession of his keys, they compelled him to accompany them to a rear door, through which they entered. Inside were only two persons, Assistant Cashier W. C. Kerr and Miss Kathryn Johnston, a clerk.

Miss Johnston, forced to sit on the floor, was guarded by one man. Another made Kerr open the vaults. The third, the man with the limp, stood at the door. Three girl employés, arriving soon afterward, were compelled to sit in chairs while the lame bandit covered them with a machine gun.

Gather Cash for Half Hour.

In less than a half hour the gang had gathered the money into two suitcases and departed. They drove, it was reported, toward Taylorville, Although all the roads in the vicinity were blocked by deputy sherifs soon afterward, no trace of the fugitives was found.

The bandits' car was identified from its license number, 617-772, as one stolen recently from Charles Delaney of Gillespie, Ill. The best description of the limping man was given by Ernest Butterfield, a jeweler, who saw the departure of the gang from the bank.

Hunt Dillinger in Moline.

Moline, Ill., April 19.—[Special.]—City and state police, deputy sherifs, and civilians armed with rifles and machine guns were searching Moline and Rock Island county tonight for John Dillinger, notorious bandit, and three companions, one of whom is a woman, who were reported to have stopped in Moline at 11 p. m. and asked to be directed to a drug store. Ed Sleith said a man whom he identified as Dillinger got out of a black sedan which bore no license plate and asked where he could find a drug store. When last seen the car was headed east through Moline.

Gov. White's Life Threatened.

Columbus, O., April 19.—[Special.]—An anonymous missive threatening the life of Gov. George White unless the two Dillinger gangsters now in death row at the Ohio penitentiary are saved from the electric chair was being investigated by department of justice agents and postal inspectors today.

It was revealed that Gov. White received a letter from Chicago earlier in the week informing the chief executive that he would "not live to the end of his term" unless he took some action to prevent the execution of Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley, convicted of the murder of Sherif Jesse Sarber of Allen county.

The letter was signed by "two friends of Charley and Harry."

Gives It to Postmaster.

Gov. White immediately turned the epistle over to Postmaster Nathan A. McCoy, who in turn forwarded it to Washington.

It was stated at the postoffice that efforts to trace the letter might be handicapped by the fact that there were many fingerprins of attachés of the governor's office on the letter.

The letter was written on the stationery of the Statler hotel in St. Louis, but was mailed from Chicago, according to Gov. White.

The address of the governor was printed, but the body of the epistle was written in ink with an obvious effort to disguise the handwriting.

White Is Unafraid.

The chief executive appeared unconcerned about the letter.

"I haven't taken any extra precautions since I received it," he said.

There are guards now at the governor's mansion, but they were assigned to duty there before the letter was received.

FARMER STULL DEALS HIMSELF A LOT OF GRIEF

Harry Stull, a farmer from New Providence, Ia., sat in a rooming house at 225 West Garfield boulevard yesterday with some new found friends and regarded his poker hand with satisfaction.

It was a five card stud game and Harry had one ace showing. But, better than that, his hole card was another ace.

Harry had met one of his new friends, C. W. Williams, at the stockyards, where Harry sold his thirty-five head of cattle for $1,015. Williams took him to the rooming house on Garfield boulevard for a rest and a drink or so.

It was there the poker game developed with a man named Barry. Well, Harry was pretty confident of his pair of aces and began to bet. Things went on and bets went up until Harry wanted to get some real money. So the hands were sealed in envelopes while the players went to the bank to cash Harry's check.

He bet it all. The envelopes were opened. Harry had his pair of aces with a queen high, but strangely Mr. Barry had aces and king high.

"I don't understand it," Harry told Lieut. Edward Kelly at the detective bureau some time later. "You know, I was dealing."

DENIES DILLINGER WAS PRESENT AS GIRL WAS SEIZED

Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the bureau of federal investigation in Chicago, yesterday made a categorical denial that John Dillinger, fugitive outlaw, was in the State-Austin inn, 418 North State street, when federal agents raided it April 9 and seized Evelyn Frechette, Dillinger's sweetheart. Five agents inside the tavern and four guarding the exits established the identity of every one there, Purvis declared. Miss Frechette had asserted that Dillinger had been there with her and had walked out unhampered.

Miss Frechette had stated that the federal agents were secret service operatives. Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, chief of the secret service in Chicago, said yesterday that the raiders were agents of the department of justice and not of the secret service. The functions of the secret service are only to protect the life of the President and to catch counterfeiters, Capt. Callaghan said, and his agents have had no connection with the Dillinger investigations.

PUBLISHER STILL CAN'T PAY WIFE, STAYS IN CELL

Willard E. Powner, owner of the Charles T. Powner Publishing company, had a brief period of freedom yesterday from his cell in the county jail, where he was sent for failing to keep up his payments of $20 a week temporary support money to his wife for their daughter, Suzanne, pending the outcome of a divorce suit.

Powner was jailed Tuesday afternoon for contempt of court when his wife, Mrs. Ruby Riddiford Powner, said he was $80 in arrears in his payments. Yesterday he was brought before Judge Desort again, to see if he had changed his mind.

Powner reiterated he was "broke." Judge Desort sent him back to jail.

LINDY SUSPECT

Boston, Mass., April 19.—(AP)—United States Marshal John J. Murphy, who yesterday asked Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon to identify a photograph of a suspect in the Lindbergh kidnaping, today said that the suspect was William Lardner, 37, formerly of Boston and now an inmate of Leavenworth penitentiary.

Lardner, who also was known as William O'Connor, John Henry Holmes, Frank Kaplan, and Frank Kapler, was arrested here for attempting to pass a counterfeit $100 bill. He was sentenced to three years at Leavenworth.

While being taken to Kansas last month, Murphy said, he attempted to bribe a deputy marshal to permit him to telephone to members of the Touhy gang in Chicago. A solid gold belt buckle, offered as part of the bribe, was purchased in Europe with part of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom money.

NELSON QUIZZED ABOUT MEETING WITH AL CAPONE

Denies He Sought to See Gangster.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th], defendant with 17 other men in the racket conspiracy trial in Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan's Criminal court, was subjected to a four hour cross-examination yesterday by Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber. The session at times became heated when the prosecutor questioned the alderman regarding a meeting with Al Capone, one time gang chief.

The small, gray haired prosecutor, who has been saving his energy for the cross-examination of Ald. Nelson, whom he considers the main defendant, succeeded in showing that Capone was present while a political conference was held between Ald. Nelson and the late Edward J. Brundage. The conference was held in Brundage's office.

Ald. Nelson insisted that Capone was not present with his knowledge or at his solicitation. He simply happened to be in Brundage's office, Nelson said, at a time when Brundage sent for him to discuss his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor.

Stresses Wage Agreement.

The two principal points stressed by the prosecutor were the Capone phase and the alderman's reasons for sanctioning the amended wage agreement between the laundry wagon drivers' union and the laundry plant owners. In this contract the unions agreed to give members of the laundry association a wage scale of $30 a week as compared with one of $40 for nonassociation members. The state is basing its prosecution of the alderman on this contract. Nelson was attorney for the drivers' union.

Ald. Nelson refused to be led into yes or no answers as demanded by the prosecutors. He insisted on making a full explanation with each answer, which caused the prosecutor and Defense Attorneys Floyd Thompson and Benedict J. Short to become engaged in frequent controversies. Judge Finnegan several times showed his displeasure at these quarrels and he rebuked Attorney Thompson, who was once chief justice of the state Supreme court.

The alderman sat back in his chair during these quarrels and showed by his glances at Prosecutor Raber that he did not relish the type of questions being asked. At times he protested to the judge.

Judge Finnegan yesterday announced that he intended to bring the long drawn out trial to a speedy conclusion. He will hold Saturday sessions and also will start night sessions next week, he said.

Questioned on Al Capone.

The Capone question was bluntly approached by Prosecutor Raber toward the end of the cross-examination. He made a sudden change from another line of examination to that of the gangster's possible political connection. The questioning was as follows:

Q.—You say you only saw Capone once? A.—Once in my life is all.

Q.—That was in Brundage's office at the time State Senator Daniel Serritella was there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't you meet him with Ald. Prignano? A.—O, yes, once on Wabash avenue, I met a group of five or six men and one of them was Capone.

The prosecutor and the witness then became involved in a dispute as to the time of the meeting in Brundage's office. Ald. Nelson said he thought it was in the fall of 1931 and the prosecutor indicated it was about the time of Capone's conviction for income tax fraud. Some of the defense lawyers apparently thought the prosecutor was intimating that Capone was at Brundage's office regarding help in his government trial and they objected.

"Well, anyhow, he was footloose and free when I saw him," replied Ald. Nelson."

"Met to Discuss Candidacy."

Q.—Isn't it a fact that you went with Capone to Brundage's office? A.—No, sir. I went with two union men, Paddy Sullivan and Jerry Horan. They said Brundage had telephoned them and said he wanted to talk to some union men about his candidacy for governor.

Q.—Where was Capone when you went into Brundage's office? A.—Capone was seated at one side of the desk and Dan Serritella was seated at the other side.

Q.—How long were you in the office of Brundage? A.—Fifteen or twenty minutes.

Q.—Did Capone and Serritella leave at the time you did? A.—Yes, we all left together. I remember the five of us went down in the same elevator. The elevator man recognized Capone and almost hit the basement with the car.

Q.—Now, as a matter of fact didn't you go there with Capone?

The alderman bent forward in his chair as he shouted an angry answer to this question, which he had answered several times before.

"I answered that 'No' before," he said. "And you know I didn't go with Capone because you investigated it and found it to be true."

Witness Explains Meeting.

On redirect examination Attorney Thompson had Nelson explain the entire Capone meeting.

Mr. Nelson said it was purely a political meeting and that Brundage wanted to know if he [Nelson] thought he could beat Gov. Emmerson in view of the fact that the governor had vetoed repeal of the state search and seizure act. He said Brundage also asked the help of the labor men in some political fights.

Q.—Did you know that Capone was going to be at Brundage's office? A.—I had not the slightest idea he would be there.

Q.—Did Capone take part in any of the conversation? A.—No, but he did laugh at some of Sulivan's jokes.

Q.—Now you testified before the June, 1933, grand jury and I want to ask if you were indicted by that jury? A.—I was not and I waived immunity.

Q.—Did you testify before the July, 1933, grand jury, which indicted you? A.—No, sir.

Patronage Matter Discussed.

On recross-examination, Prosecutor Raber tried to develop the fact that Nelson and Brundage were political enemies and that Nelson had been given patronage which Brundage formerly held.

"I was supposed to get it, but I did not," he replied.

Q.—Was anything said at that meeting in Brundage's office about Capone? A.—Not a word.

Q.—He sat there while you other men discussed politics? A.—Yes.

Q.—And now Brundage is dead? A.—Yes.

Ald. Nelson earlier in the day had parried all of Raber's questions regarding the wage contract, which, the state contends, was illegal. The contract was passed on by the state's attorney's office under the Swanson administration, he said.

Q.—Did you look up any law on it [the contract]? A.—No. It was not necessary.

Q.—Did the defendant Kaplan [Attorney Morris Kaplan] call you up and say the public might misinterpret the contract? A.—I have no recollection of any such conversation.

Tells of Approving Contract.

Ald. Nelson denied that he had any idea of driving nonassociation members into the association by use of the union contract, which specified a difference in wages. He said he, as a lawyer, merely sanctioned the legality of the contract, and that it was subsequently so held by Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury.

Coronilla Dies Bull's Death, But Lived a Gentler Life

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MADRID, April 19.—A bull named Coronilla, a gentle but misunderstood animal, created a panic this morning when he ambled up the main street of Madrid.

He brought out scores of policemen. He sent thousands scurrying for cover amid screams that bewildered him. He tied up trafic and at last died an ignominous death in a hallway, of all places, just opposite the American telephone skyscraper.

One Maxim Guzman was leading the animal peacefully into town to be slaughtered. Coronilla, either sensing the end was near or frightened by a passing truck, broke away with Guzman in pursuit.

Steel Shutters Clang Shut.

Doors were locked. Steel shutters clattered down. Boys pulled off their coats to use as capes in imitation of the bullfighters they worship, but as the huge Coronilla trotted up, they vanished. By the time Coronilla reached the Gran Via, he was the talk of the town, a deserted town as far as he could see.

A company of assault guards rushed up, but could not think of the proper thing to do. Balconies and windows were filled with shouting spectators. Trafic cops disappeared and motorists swerved into side streets.

More assault guards came. Three cow killers from the slaughter house were summoned. The public waited fearfully and hopefully for some one to act as the famous bullfighter, Fortuna, had done three years ago when another bull got loose in Madrid.

Coronilla began to amuse himself by puncturing plate glass windows with his sharp horns. Then the animal made a fatal mistake. He entered a hallway. Some brave soul crept up behind him and closed the door.

Coronilla scampered up a flight of stairs, admired the glass door of a magazine office and broke it while panicky employés huddled in a balcony and shouted for help.

Tied Him to Bannister.

Finally the slaughterhouse employés went into action. While Coronilla was looking for more windows to break, they took the elevator to an upper floor and crept down upon their prey stealthily. The brave men lassoed the bull and tied him to a bannister.

Thereupon, Antonio Penacho, a shock policeman who had always dreamed of being a bullfighter, stalked in to deal with the annoyed Coronilla. A few minutes later proud Penacho emerged brandishing a bloody dagger. The multitude shrieked with delight. The toreador was followed by the slaughterhouse men who dragged out what had been Coronilla.

In the midst of all the hullabaloo the breathless Maxim Guzman arrived and the bitter truth came out. Coronilla was not a bull at all. He was a steer.

SEIZE ALLEGED GANGSTERS.

Ted Vergilio and Sam Battaglia, allegedly members of the "42" gang on the west side, were arrested yesterday at Randolph and Wells streets by Sergt. William Drury of the state's attorney's police. Both were charged with disorderly conduct.

BISHOP CANNON DEFENDS FUNDS' HANDLING IN '28

His System Like Others, He Testifies.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—[Special.]—Bishop James Cannon Jr., on trial here for alleged failure to report certain expenditures in the anti-Smith Democratic campaign of '28, today told the jury that he had been a preacher and a prohibitionist long before he pinch hit as a politician.

And so, he said, when he started to organize southern Democrats against "a wet cocktail President," he looked about him, and he saw regular Democratic and Republican leaders were setting up separate state organizations, in order that they might evade the corrupt practices act which demands report only of federal campaign expenses.

Both in Same Quarters.

And it was merely taking a leaf from their Bibles, he argued, when he also set up a Virginia committee, which, he claims, was entirely distinct from the south-wide committee. True, he admitted, the two organizations used the same rooms at Richmond; but that was for the sake of economy. True, he recalled, they never bothered to have a separate letterhead; all campaign literature was marked "headquarters committee," but that, too, was economy.

True, also, he headed both groups. But that, with all due modesty, he explained, was because he was the leader sent in a crisis.

"I was a prophet," the bishop said, "even before the Houston convention. I predicted Al Smith would be the candidate."

Expected to Be Leader.

"I don't want to be conceited, but I realized the south would be obliged to take a stand on this great moral issue, and that I'd probably lead the fight." A pause—then—"and I realized money was necessary."

He called an anti-Smith Democratic conference at Asheville, N. C., and again true to his prophecy, was draped with the mantle of leadership.

The third branch of the oracle also speedily came true: He needed money.

He organized. He says he organized two committees: The general headquarters one and the separate Virginia one. The prosecution insists its was all one and the same.

Praises His Secretary.

The contributions began to come in. When the checks were made out to "headquarters," he turned them over to Ada L. Burroughs, whom he named treasurer of the south-wide organization. He had chosen her, he explained, because he had noted her efficiency and honesty during their years of association in the Anti-Saloon league of Virginia. She, by the way, stands trial with him in the alleged conspiracy.

"I had a big problem, your honor," turning toward Justice Peyton Gordon, "for I was widely known in the south, and many checks were made out to me personally."

After considerable deliberation he decided to send those checks down to his personal bank account in Blackstone, Va. Then he went off to Europe, suffering, he said, from an attack of African fever. He knew he couldn't stand the stress of the campaign without a rest. He returned Sept. 10.

Cannon Meets Jameson.

Into the picture then walked C. Bascom Slemp, Virginia Republican, and one time secretary to President Coolidge. Mr. Slemp, too, was eager to defeat Mr. Smith; said he'd like to introduce the bishop to a New York Republican, E. C. Jameson. The three met in Jameson's office, about Sept. 25.

Jameson wanted to know about the chances of Virginia going for Hoover. Bishop Cannon said the chances were excellent "if we had some cash." Jameson, the bishop recalls, said he was 'delighted to hear that; how much do you want?"

Bishop Cannon thought $50,000 would do the job; said he'd like to have it at the rate of $10,000 a week, and in cash.

The cash came, in all $65,300. If this sum, $17,300 was spent through the headquarters committee and was properly reported. The unreported $48,000 was spent within Virginia, the bishop insists and therefore not subject to report.

WOMAN STABS SELF, LEAPS 3 STORIES AND WAKES UP IN MORGUE

MEXICO CITY, April 19.—(AP)—A 25 year old woman who had been pronounced dead after stabbing herself and jumping from a hotel window recovered consciousness today as she lay between two bodies in the morgue.

Rising suddenly on her slab, the woman, Margarita Hernandez Bernal, asked for a drink of water and the morgue attendants ran from the building, shouting for help.

A surgeon was summoned and performed an operation on a knife wound in her chest, which he reported was successful. She was taken to a hospital where it was said tonight that she probably would recover. Police said the woman stabbed herself and jumped from a third story window to escape arrest on charges of robbery.

WOMAN KILLED IN LOOP PLUNGE FROM 21ST FLOOR

Mrs. Laura Maas, 27 years old, leaped to her death yesterday from the 21st floor of the Garland building, Washington street and Wabash avenue.

Hundreds of loop pedestrians watched helplessly while the woman clung for a few seconds to a ledge outside the window then plunged downward, her body striking on the seventh floor roof of the court which opens on Washington street.

Mrs. Maas had gone to the office of Dr. V. L. Springer, an osteopath, to receive treatment for her eyes. She complained of feeling ill and went into an adjoining room to rest. She leaped from the window there. Dr. Springer said later that Mrs. Maas had only 40 per cent of her normal vision and it seemed probable she was rapidly going blind.

She and her husband separated recently due to financial difficulties and Mrs. Maas had gone to live with her mother at 5200 Strong street. She had recently suffered a nervous breakdown, her mother said, and was in poor health generally.

FINES TRAFIC VIOLATOR.

NEW JERSEY PONDERS MAKING CRIME OUT OF BEING A GANGSTER

Paterson, N. J., April 19.—[Special.]—If a statute drafted today by Assistant Attorney General James D. Carpenter Jr. becomes law, it will be a crime in New Jersey to be a gangster.

Penalty for being a gangster: Ten years in jail and a $10,000 fine, or both.

The bill, a proposed supplement to the crimes act, characterizes all gangsters and racketeers as enemies of the state. A gangster or a racketeer is defined as:

Any person possessing a machine gun or submachine gun.

Any person known to be a member of "a gang consisting of two or more persons not engaged in lawful occupation" and who has been arrested at least three times for disorderly conduct or crime.

BLANTON BLOCKS VOTE ON BILL TO AID CHICAGO FAIR

Forces Delay After House Rebukes Him.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—[Special.]—Suddenly tired of his swashbuckling, the house upped today and soundly spanked that turbulent Texan, Tom Blanton.

But the chastisement was not enough to prevent the irrepressible Tom from upping himself, shortly afterward, and objecting to consideration of legislation to insure continued federal participation in the Chicago Century of Progress.

Over from the senate, late in the day, came the bill authorizing an appropriation of $405,000 so that government exhibits at the Exposition can be continued this summer. Under the expert guidance of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois it had slipped easily through the senate three days ago.

Blanton Takes a Hand.

Representative Kent E. Keller [Dem., Ill.], chairman of the house library committee, asked that the senate measure be taken up for consideration in the house, under unanimous consent. There was a series of Republican questions as to the amount carried in the bill, the necessity for further federal funds, and the like. Mr. Keller sought to answer them, one by one, and appeared to be doing nicely. When suddenly Mr. Blanton upped himself.

"I object," he announced importantly. "We did much for Chicago last year, and the PWA and CWA are doing much for Chicago right now. I can't see any reason why we should give Chicago any more funds out of the federal treasury."

"But will the gentleman withhold his objection for a moment?" asked Mr. Keller.

"O, yes," replied the terrible Texan, "I will withhold it long enough for the eminent philosopher from Illinois to philosophize."

Refuses to Permit Vote.

In the end, however, he insisted on carrying out his rôle of self-appointed watch dog of the treasury and refused to permit consideration of the measure. Failing to obtain unanimous consent, Mr. Keller, whose library committee has charge of the house bill, will be forced to proceed in the regular way to bring his own measure to the floor of the house. It is identical with the senate bill, but the committee chairman had hoped to avoid delay by securing passage of the senate measure.

It was Texas Tom's proclivity for personalities, as demonstrated by his reference to Mr. Keller's philosophical attitude, which brought him a severe lambasting from the membership of the lower body earlier in the day.

Almost unanimously his exasperated colleagues voted to expunge from the record what the veteran Texas Democrat had to say about the "swelled head" of a Pennsylvania Republican, Representative J. William Ditter. Such a course is rarely followed in the house and is regarded as perhaps the most direct rebuke a member can incur.

Criticizes Pennsylvanian.

When Representative Ditter opposed him on a minor matter in the District of Columbia appropriation bill, the terrible Tom took the floor and accused the Pennsylvanian of having let publicity "swell his head." The gentleman from Pennsylvania, said the gentleman from Texas, hadn't even been in congress long enough for the newspapers to learn his name—they referred to him, he recalled, as "Mr. Ditten."

Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell interjected a point of order, which the chair refused to sustain. Whereupon the Republican chieftain asked that the "words be taken down."

"I maintain," he told the house, "that they constitute an unwaranted personal and vitriolic attack upon the gentleman from Pennsylvania and I ask for a ruling from the speaker."

Mr. Rainey held that Mr. Blanton had indeed violated the rules of the house. Mr. Snell moved to expunge the words from the record and the membership agreed with him with a hearty chorus of "ayes."

SUGAR CONTROL BILL PASSED BY SENATE, 49 TO 18

Gives Secretary Wallace Dictatorial Powers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—[Special.]—The regulatory arm of the New Deal prepared to extend into another new field as the senate late today, by a vote of 49 to 18, approved the administration bill limiting, controling and taxing the American production and importation of sugar.

Already passed by the house, the measure now requires only final adjustment in a conference committee and the assured signature of President Roosevelt in order to arm the secretary of agriculture with virtually dictatorial powers over the country's 80,000 beet and cane growers and the importers, refiners and handlers of imported sugar.

Main Features of Bill.

Main features of the bill are four: To bring domestic beet and cane sugar under the production control formula of the AAA by making sugar a "basic commodity"; to limit, under penalty, production of American beet sugar to 1,550,000 tons and of American cane sugar to 260,000 tons annually; to levy a processing tax on sugar equal to the projected one-half cent a pound reduction in the sugar tarif; to limit by a system of quotas, and also under penalty, the importation of sugar from American possessions and foreign countries.

Only four Democrats stood out against the administration machine as it pushed the bill through under the plea that the planting season was on and delay would be disastrous. The four were Senators Copeland of New York, Gore of Oklahoma, Logan of Kentucky, and Stephens of Mississippi. With them voted fourteen Republicans: Senators Borah of Idaho, Carey of Wyoming, Couzens of Michigan, Davis of Pennsylvania, Goldeborough of Maryland, Hale of Maine, Hastings of Delaware, McNary of Oregon, Patterson of Missouri, Robertson of Indiana, Schall of Minnesota, Steiwer of Oregon, Townsend of Delaware, and White of Maine.

Vandenberg Voices Opposition.

Many senators, particularly from the sugar states, cast votes for the bill with admitted reluctance. The measure was designed to help Cuba and the Cuban sugar industry at the expense of the American industry, Senator Arthur H. Vanderberg [Rep., Mich.] declared.

"It makes stabilization of Cuban sugar a charge upon the farmers of the United States," he asserted.

Reluctant also were farm state senators who not long ago put through the NRA act with its provisions imposing on industry the elimination of child labor and the establishment of minimum wage standards. When it came to applying the same social and economic standards to sugar raising their enthusiasm fled.

Child Labor Pleas Rejected.

Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], always the champion of higher labor standards, argued in vain for language that would banish child labor from the beet fields and require growers to pay at least a minimum wage. His pleas were voted down.

Voted down also were numerous attempts to give more liberal treatment to American possessions.

Under the terms of the bill sugar from Hawaii, Porto Rico, and other American ilands is to be limited by quotas to be fixed by the secretary of agriculture in the same way that quotas are set for Cuba and other foreign countries.

Senators Copeland, Reed of Pennsylvania, and King of Utah argued that American possessions should have the protection, equally with the sugar raising states, of a minimum quota written into the bill. But amendments by Senators Reed, King, Metcalf of Rhode Island, and Walcott of Connecticut looking to this end were decisely defeated.

Shot, Asks Hospital Aid; He's Seized as Bandit

Walter Jackson, 27 years old, 1349 Washburne avenue, colored, was arrested by Gary police yesterday when he applied for treatment of a bullet wound at the Mercy hospital in that city. According to Chicago police, he was wounded Wednesday night by police while attempting to rob a filling station at Damen avenue and Jackson boulevard. Norman Spears, 9 years old, 307 South Seeley avenue, was wounded in the left ear by a stray bullet as Jackson fled. Jackson, wounded in the throat, was taken to the Bridewell hospital.

BRITAIN TO URGE HITLER'S RETURN TO ARMS PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 19.—The British marked time today on the vexing disarmament question until they are informed of Germany's reactions to the latest French note. The note, which is regarded by many as a death blow to any sort of an armaments accord, declared France in the future will not participate in any direct discussion between nations. Paris blamed Germany for the breakdown in negotiations and said if these negotiations are to be renewed, Chancellor Hitler's government must return to the league of nations.

Meanwhile, Great Britain will concentrate on trying to induce Germany to return to Geneva. Every effort will be made to revive the Geneva conference, which has been moribund during the era of direct negotiations. The disarmament committee of the cabinet met tonight to review the situation.

A meeting of the steering committee of the disarmament conference has been set for April 30. The full conference is expected to assemble May 23.

600,000 to Take Part

Urging all Chicago to coöperate, Mayor Kelly issued a proclamation yesterday designating the two weeks from April 23 to May 5 as the period for the city's annual cleanup campaign, in which 600,000 school children will take part.

The mayor called attention to the fact that in the past the clean-up-paint-up-plant-up campaigns had resulted in "great advantage to our community in safeguarding health, furthering fire prevention, and making the city more beautiful and attractive."

SOVIET ENVOY PAYS VISIT TO CHICAGO TODAY

500 Will Attend Feast for Troyanovsky.

Alexander Troyanovsky, the new soviet ambassador to the United States, will pay his first visit to Chicago tonight. He will be the guest of honor at a dinner in the Palmer house sponsored by the American-Russian Institute for Cultural Relations. More than 500 persons, including several Chicago notables, are expected to attend.

It was learned last night that for an hour preceding the dinner, scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m., a group of twenty Ukrainian girls in native costume plans to picket the Palmer house sidewalks in a peaceful demonstration against the reception of the soviet envoy.

The Ukraine was loyal to the imperial Russian régime before the revolution and its sons now bitterly resent the dominance of the communists. Stalwart Ukrainian men from the west side will be along the sidelines tonight to stop any communistic effort to interfere with the girl pickets, their leaders said.

Police to Be on Guard.

Lieut. Make Mills, head of the police industrial squad, said he would have his force there to prevent any trouble. The police, he said, will not tolerate any interference with the welcome to the soviet ambassador, nor will they permit any Chicago communists to make his appearance the occasion for a radical demonstration.

Ambassador Troyanovsky, who is to be accompanied by his wife, will arrive over the Pennsylvania railway at the Union station at 5:30 p. m. From the station he will go to the Palmer house for a reception before the dinner. Only persons with dinner reservations may attend this reception, but after the dinner the main ballroom will be thrown open to the public, or that part of it which cares to pay 50 cents to hear the ambassador speak.

Mayor Will Speak.

Dr. Charles S. Bacon, president of the American-Russian Institute for Cultural Relations and chairman of the committee which arranged the dinner, will preside. Speakers on the program are Mayor Kelly, James P. Goodrich, former governor of Indiana; Prof. Anton J. Carlson of the University of Chicago, Prof. E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin, and Frank D. Chase, president of the Western Society of Engineers. Victor J. Victoroff, Russian tenor, will sing.

Among those who have made reservations for the dinner are Mr and Mrs. William Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. McCulloch, Ernest R. Graham, Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, S. T. Bledsoe, Thornton Wilder, Dr. Rachelle Yarros, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Stock, Prof. Charles E. Merriam, and Carter H. Harrison.

Tomorrow morning the ambassador will be taken on a tour of the city, including a visit to the inevitable stockyards, and from 11:30 to 12:30 he will be "at home" in the Palmer house to Chicago business men.

From 1 to 3 o'clock he will be the guest at a luncheon given by the University of Chicago faculty, and at 4 o'clock he will attend tea with graduate students of the university in Ida Noyes hall. Tomorrow night there will be an informal reception for the visitor at the home of Dr. Bacon. The ambassador will return to Washington Sunday.

DIES IN HIS HOME.

KEEP FREEDOM OF ASSEMBLY, U. S. JUDGE ASKS

If the American form of government is to survive it is necessary to allow the freedom of discussion and assembly, Federal Judge William H. Holly declared last night in an address before the Sons of the American Revolution at the Great Northern hotel. The dinner was an anniversary celebration of the battle of Lexington.

"Should there be any among us who are dangerous we had better allow them to express themselves in the open," said Judge Holly. "That is better than to drive them under cover. Under cover they can multiply without our knowing it. Russia, Italy, and Germany do not know the strength of such movements because they drive their opponents underground."

PUBLIC NOT FOOLED BY CHEAP SOAP CHIPS

IMAGINE HIS EMBARRASSMENT
AND HIS WIFE'S WHEN HE GOT HOME!

Lack of real soap makes weak suds and hard rubbing which wears out clothes ... Weak suds "die down", cause "spotting" and "specking" ... More chips are needed to "hold up" the suds ... Free alkali, strong water softeners and bleaches fade colors and roughen hands ... Free fatty acids slow down sudsing ... Rancid fats give clothing unpleasant odors ... Experience teaches, "It's cheaper to buy good soap than new clothes."

"I HAD A BAD BARGAIN," says MRS. C. S. PFLASTERER, 2248 West 115th Street, Chicago, Illinois.

"Yes—I tried cheap soap chips," says Mrs. Pflasterer. "But the first time I used them I realized I had a bad bargain. The suds were so thin and vanished so quickly that I had to rub and rub—something I never had to do when I used American Family Flakes. It took me an extra hour to do my washing—and you should have seen my clothes-line, full of half-washed clothes. Take it from me, the pennies you save by buying cheap soap chips will cost you dollars in the long run."

WEAK SUDS (HARD RUBBING) SHORTEN LIFE OF CLOTHES

His torn, worn, ragged handkerchief is just a sample of what is happening to every washable fabric in his home. His wife has gone economical (?) and is using cheap soap chips. She is blind to the fact that free alkali, strong water softeners and harsh bleaches are fading colors. She is stubbornly denying the truth that weak suds are forcing her to rub the life and strength out of clothes. She is sacrificing the beauty of her hands, her time and her energy. And all the while her rag bag is growing fat with ruined clothes that would still be giving honest service if washed in the gentle double-suds of dependable American Family Flakes. Soon she'll learn that you get exactly what you pay for. Then she'll go back to American Family Flakes; back to quick washing and easy rinsing; back to lovely hands; back to a clothing budget that is sane and normal.

Incidentally, American Family Flakes are now selling at the lowest price in history ... the same size packages, the same quality soap ... unchanged in everything save the cost to you. Stock up! Today!

ARE YOU FOREVER BURSTING BUBBLES?

You are, if you try to wash clothes with cheap chips in this hard water. Cheap chips lack real soap, are made from light, flimsy grease. Their suds are weak; burst or "die down" quickly. Women who use cheap chips are forced to throw more and more soap into the wash, to "hold up" the suds. For if suds "die down", lime curd "spots" and "specks" form on clothes. Use American Family Flakes and you use half the soap. American Family's double-suds "stand up" throughout the washing; rinse quickly, completely; leave colors bright and white things dazzling.

SOAPIER SOAP—SUDSIER SUDS

American Family Flakes and Soap were created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region to give double the suds. And it's the double-suds that makes the difference ... floating out dirt without hard rubbing; saving your clothes, energy, money and time. Government statistics give this water a "soap hardness" rating of 126; say that 88 tons of black, greasy soot fall on each square mile of this area every month. In view of these facts, is it any wonder that women of this region buy more American Family than all other laundry soaps combined?

FOES COMPLAIN TO PROSECUTOR OF VOLIVA'S ACTS

Charge '2 Gun' Patriarch Stirs Up Violence.

Three leading members of the faction opposed to Wilbur Glenn Voliva, the "two gun" patriarch of Zion, yesterday asked State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county to investigate the actions of the fiery overseer. They charged that Voliva's talk and tactics were calculated to cause serious violence in Zion.

The independents told the state's attorney they objected to what they termed the "vulgar language" used by the overseer from the pulpit of his Christian Apostolic church in denouncing those opposed to him and expressed the fear that it might lead to open warfare between the two factions in the town.

Want Gun Boast Investigated.

They also suggested that Mr. Mason investigate Voliva's boast that he carried two guns and that he was at all times protected by armed guards.

Mason indicated he would do so, but asked that the delegation bring him written statements of their charges and verbatim reports of what Voliva is alleged to have said.

"If you can show me that there is a basis for prosecution you can be sure that I will act," Mason said. He added that he would have to investigate further before granting a request of the delegation to authorize placing Voliva under a peace bond.

Those who called on Mr. Mason were Homer Ingram, newly elected member of the school board; William Bickett, a druggist, and Mrs. Margaret Hopkins, owner of an undertaking establishment.

Prepares for End of World.

In the meantime Voliva was announcing the end of the world and planning an evangelistic campaign to prepare the country for its last moments.

The way the overseer maps things out, there is going to be an uprising late this summer against the government's New Deal, which Voliva says furnishes only "shots in the arm" or temporary relief.

"I have divine information," he announced, "that Satan plans to take over the world shortly after that—probably along in September—and I am starting a tour of revival meetings to launch our campaign against the forces of evil."

Plans Chicago Meeting.

The tour, apparently, is going to start in Chicago, since the militant overseer, who says he was raised as a "two gun fighter," plans to hold a meeting at 3200 West Randolph street on Sunday afternoon. He will be accompanied, according to his statement, by a hundred of his best workers and his 63 piece senior band.

The only inconsistency in the overseers' plans seemed to be that, although he expects the world to end pretty soon, he is also hoping that the tour will net him enough money to regain control of his Zion Industries, Inc., which are now in receivership.

When asked directly if he expected to raise a large sum of money by his appearances, he replied:

"O, they'll pay to see me."

Denounces His Foes.

He paused in his evangelistic plans to hurl a few more invectives against the people who voted against his school board candidates in last Saturday's election.

"They're just a bunch of yellow cur dogs with their tails cut off," he announced, "and all that riff-raff will come crawling back to me when I get the colony out of receivership. Voliva is still on top, and will be when prosperity returns to Zion."

He added that the children of all the people who voted against his candidates in the recent election would probably go to hell.

In the meantime, the public school board was completing plans for the double sessions to take care of the children who had been taught in Voliva's parochial school which he closed Tuesday morning.

These sessions will start on Monday, according to Joseph L. Bishop, secretary of the board.

In the meantime, the overseer carried out his plan of reopening his parochial school to the extent of the kindergarten, the high school and the college classes, as well as the eighth grade. However, each pupil, before returning, must take a pledge of allegiance to Voliva.

Learns It From Hitler.

"I learned that from Hitler," said the overseer, with some satisfaction, "and when I get through I'll have the best organization in the world. President Roosevelt could learn a lot about human nature from me."

Despite the reopening of the high school, however, a total of 25 of Voliva's parochial high school students had registered at the Waukegan township high school yesterday, according to Principal C. E. Prichard, and had announced their intentions of remaining in classes there.

Onias W. Farley, who defeated Voliva's candidate for president of the public school board in Zion, is ready to take office next Tuesday, and carry on the plans for caring for the pupils of the first seven grades.

Farley's militant wife continued her denunciations of the overseer, and held a prayer meeting in her husband's office, which is only a few doors from the overseer's office. The main business was fervent prayer for the deliverance of Zion from the rule of Voliva.

BURNS ARE FATAL

MRS. EMMA HENRY.

Mrs. Emma Henry, 69 years old, a deaconess for 34 years in Wilbur Glenn Voliva's Christian Catholic Apostolic church in Zion, was fatally burned yesterday when she attempted to start a fire in the furnace of her home at 3201 Gabriel avenue. An explosion of gases ignited her clothing. A neighbor, hearing her cries, ran to the house, then called an ambulance to take her to the St. Therese hospital in Waukegan, where she died.

BUSINESS HERE TO PAY $500,000 TO SUPPORT NRA

Warning Issued by State Director.

Business and industry in Chicago will be assessed at least $500,000 within the next 30 days to pay the costs of administration and enforcement of the National Recovery act through 30 code authorities in the city. This was indicated yesterday after a survey of the code groups here.

In many cases business has already contributed thousands of dollars toward the expenses incurred by the many code enforcing organizations, it was disclosed. Most of the funds devoted to this purpose, however, have been spent locally. The new assessment, for the most part, will be expended for national and state organizations, code executives said.

John E. Cassidy, Illinois director on the national emergency council of the NRA, has said that every industry and business must pay all the expenses of its own code group. He has informed the various groups that there will be no federal funds to make up deficits which may result in non-collection of NRA code levies.

Warns on Failure to Pay.

Director Cassidy warned business men and industrialists that failure to contribute to the code assessments is as much a violation of the NRA provisions as failure to abide by other conditions of the act. He said the Illinois NRA authority would take action to enforce all code terms, although there had been no effort so far to enforce the payment of assessments by any individuals.

Retail merchants, manufacturers of various commodities, food dealers, coal producers, machinery makers, lumber and timber cutters, clothing manufacturers, and cloth weavers are now being levied upon to pay the cost of the NRA.

Merchandisers—a term which includes retail merchants of all sorts—have been ordered to pay $1 a year for each worker they employ to the code authority. Nearly $30,000 has already been collected from this group, Walter A. Knoop, secretary of the code authority for Chicago, reported yesterday.

Begin Collection Next Week.

J. W. Carther, president of the Jewel Food stores, head of the retail food code authority, said that a similar assessment was being made for all members. Collection of this levy will begin next week, he said. The income will be divided as follows: 25 per cent to the national authority, 15 per cent to the state authority, and 60 per cent to the local executives.

The manufacturing groups have not yet determined the basis of their assessments, code officials said yesterday. In some industries the members will contribute a set amount for each employé, and in others the volume of business, the tonnage output, or still other factors will determine the levy.

Seven thousand cleaning and dyeing establishments in the city have been warned that they will be assessed under their code, according to Frank Harscher of the code authority. The cleaners will be told the amount of their assessments next week when the costs of administration of the code are computed in Washington, he announced.

Basis for Drug Stores.

Dr. George L. Secord, head of the retail drug code authority for Chicago, said that members of his group will be assessed on the basis of $1 a year for each store worker, with a minimum of $2 from each store. The annual bill, he estimated, will amount to more than $25,000 for the city. One dollar from each store will be set aside for maintenance of the national authority.

Some of the other code groups assessed include: Fisheries industry, excelsior products, hotel industry, rock crushers, bituminous coal industry, farm equipment manufacturers, marking devices industry, paperboard manufacturers, saddlery manufacturers, storage battery manufacturers, nonferrous ingot industry, motor vehicle storage industry, and coin machine manufacturers.

Tugwell Speech Read Into Wirt Inquiry Record

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—[Special.]—A sidelight on the views of Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell, as he expressed them three years ago, before the responsibility of being a head man in the Roosevelt brain trust came upon him, was shown in excerpts from a speech made by the professor in 1931 before the American Economic association in a meeting at Philadelphia.

The excerpts were read into the records of the Wirt investigating committee by Representative Harold C. McGugin [Rep., Kas.], who declared they showed the radical philosophy of Tugwell more clearly than the professor's more recent speeches. On the basis of the statements made in the speech, Mr. McGugin renewed his demand that Dr. Tugwell be called before the committee to be asked if he still holds such views, but the demand was voted down by a Democratic majority of the committee.

"Many observers are observing the contemporary Russian practice and are recording carefully the experience there, which later may be of assistance to us, for instance, my 'Experimental Control in Russian Industry,' also Heinrichs and Brown's 'The Planned Economy of Soviet Russia.'

* *

"Most of us ought not to have been quite so free in our predictions that the institutions of Soviet Russia would break down from a failure of a profit motive. Yet some of us have gone on saying that even in the face of evidence."

* *

"We have a century and more of development to undo. The institutions of laissez faire have become so much a part of the fabric of modern life that the untangling and removing of their tissues will be almost like dispensing with civilization itself. We shall all of us be made unhappy in one way or another; for things we love as well as things that are only privileges will have to go. But we shall have to see, no doubt, a wholesale sacrifice of such things, like it as little as we may."

* *

"The first series of changes will have to do with statutes, with constitutions, and with government. We shall be changing once for all, and it will require the laying of rough, unholy hands on many a sacred precedent, doubtless calling on an enlarged and nationalized police power for enforcement. The next series of changes will have to do with industry itself. It has already been suggested that business will logically be required to disappear. This is not an overstatement for the sake of emphasis; it is literally meant. Furthermore, we shall have to progress sufficiently far in elementary realism to recognize that only the federal area, and often not even that, is large enough to be co-extensive with modern industry; and that consequently the states are wholly ineffective instruments for control. All three of these wholesale changes are required by even a limited acceptance of the planning idea."

* *

"There is no private business, if by that we mean one of no consequence to any one but its proprietors; and so none exempt from compulsion to serve a planned public interest."

* *

"The essence of business is its free venture for profits in an unregulated economy. Planning implies guidance of capital uses; this would limit entrance into or expansion of operations. Planning also implies adjustment of production to consumption; and there is no way of accomplishing this except through a control of prices and of profit margins.

"It is, in other words, a logical impossibility to have a planned economy and to have businesses operating its industries, just as it is also impossible to have one within our present constitutional and statutory structure. Modifications in both, so serious as to mean destruction and rebeginning, are required."

* *

"The necessary conditions of planning are not established by any 'purely advisory national economic council.' An advisory council might guess but it could not plan; and the difference between guessing and planning is the difference between laissez faire and social control. Under the institutions of laissez faire the sole uses of such a body will be to lead up slowly, by precept and demonstration, toward a less uncertain future. It seems improbable that this will be other than a very reluctant and grudging change.

"Most of those who sav so easily that this is our way out do not, I am convinced, understand that fundamental changes of attitude, new disciplines, revised legal structures, unaccustomed limitations on activity, are all necessary if we are to plan. This amounts, in fact, to the abandonment, finally, of laissez faire. It amounts, practically, to the abolition of 'business'."

Chinese Are Stirred by Tokio's Warning.

China, said that Japan plans an economic and financial monopoly of Asia by ousting American and European influence, hoping thereby to isolate China from foreign aid.

"Hence," it said, "Japan's action amounts to a challenge to the whole world and is tantamont to a blockade of China.

"China's struggle for national unity constitutes a crime in the eyes of the Japanese, who want China weak and disorganized. Japan is madly arming herself with foreign war materials in preparation for more world strife. Therefore how can Japan reconcile her statement that similar help to China is likely to disturb oriental peace?"

A high official said that Japan's effort to obtain a nonaggression pact with the United States is designed to tie American hands while leaving Japan free for aggression in Asia.

JOLT TO BRITAIN

LONDON, April 19.—(AP)—Japan's unexpected challenge to activities of this and other powers in the far east caused concern tonight in British official circles.

The Japanese declaration of Tuesday that Japan alone must determine whether foreign attempts to aid China imperil peace and order in eastern Asia dealt a jolt to the British attitude that the United States can do the principal worrying over keeping peace in the Orient while Britain attempts to guide the European nations out of dangerous shoals.

The Japanese warning to Britain, the United States, and other nations, threatened tonight to cause diplomatic tension between Japan and this country for the first time since the national government was formed here.

The government was said to be disturbed over the unusual form of the pronouncement. British officials said so-called Japanese fears that the United States and other countries sought undue influence in China were unwaranted.

It was held, too, that a Japanese ban on aid to China [including, in the case of America, the activities of aircraft makers, salesmen, and instructors and cotton and wheat loans] would violate the nine power treaty, to which Tokio has adhered, allowing the powers "to provide the fullest opportunity to China to develop herself" and "to use their influence for equal opportunity for commerce" in China.

NEW BLUE EAGLE READY FOR CODED U. S. INDUSTRIES

Violators to Be Refused Bird at All.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—[Special.]—A new Blue Eagle must be flown by all industries operating under NRA codes after May 1, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief ordered today.

Behind the shift in insignia, there appeared to lurk a threat to "crack down" on code violators. Gen. Johnson explained specifically that the new Blue Eagles will not be issued to any business guilty of code infractions. Whether a new drive to discover or punish infractions is in prospect could not be learned.

On the new insignia, which will resemble the familar Blue Eagle posters, the name of the code under which the business firm is operating will replace the line "We Do Our Part," which has adorned all Blue Eagle placards to date.

Old Eagle for Blanket Code.

The old Blue Eagle will remain the standard sign of an employer for whom no code has been authorized and who is still operating under the blanket rules of President Roosevelt's reëmployment agreement. The President again has extended the effectiveness of this blanket agreement for noncoded industries.

A letter has been mailed to every employer in the country by Gen. Johnson to announce the new NRA badge. Addressed to "the head of every business establishment," the letter reads:

"If you are engaged in a trade or industry for which a code of fair competition has been approved, a special Blue Eagle has been prepared for your particular business. Its display by you will inform the public that you are coöperating with the vast majority in stamping out unfair practices and methods of competition and that you are giving your employés a square deal by paying code wages and adhering to code hours.

Asked to Display It.

"Last year you were asked to display the Blue Eagle as evidence of your promise to do your part and as a symbol of your faith in the ability of American trade and industry to defeat depression by united effort. This year you are asked to display this distinctive Blue Eagle as a symbol that you, together with the other members of your particular trade or industry, have united to complete the work of recovery."

An application for a new eagle accompanies each letter. The applications are to be mailed to state NRA compliance directors through whom the new insignia will be distributed.

LEXINGTON CITIZENS PETITION CONGRESS TO RETURN "RIGHTS"

Washington, D. C., April 19.—[Special.]—On the 159th anniversary of the opening battle of the American revolution, a delegation of nine citizens from Lexington, Mass., representing descendants of the Minute Men of 1775 today petitioned the senate and house to return individual rights to the American people. They citicized the "unreasonable interference" by the federal government in the affairs of a free people, and protested against the passage of legislation without proper and careful consideration by the "representatives of the people" duly elected to congress.

The petition in the form of a declaration bearing 1,200 names of citizens of Lexington was incorporated in the Congressional Record by Representative Edith Nourse Rogers [Rep., Mass.] in whose district Lexington and Concord are included.

Some Republican leaders hailed the Lexington petition as a new "Declaration of Independence." Among these was Representative Wadsworth of New York, who said:

"An ever-increasing number of people are coming to understand the menace to their liberties involved in the 'peaceful revolution' now espoused by the administration. It will not be long before further steps in the regimentation program will be definitly checked and rejected. The people will demand it. How fitting it is the first appeal to the nation should come from Lexington."

U. S. COURT HALTS WALLACE'S BLOW AT STOCKYARDS

njoins Application of New Live Stock Fees.

Three judges, sitting in the federal urt, yesterday issued a temporary junction restraining Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace from nforcing his recent order arbitrarily owering the commissions farmers pay or the sale of their live stock in the Chicago stockyards. The new and ower rates were to have gone into ffect today.

Secretary Wallace had given his order, which would reduce the payments to the live stock commission firms in Chicago about 30 per cent, on the average, under powers granted to him by the federal stockyards and packers' act.

160 Stock Firms Object.

There are about 160 commission firms operating here, and their objections to the order were on two points: [1] that the secretary's rates, if enforced, would be confiscatory, and [2] that an attempt is being made to restrict sales of live stock here. Chicago quotations, it was asserted, largely determine live stock prices all over the country.

Sitting in the case were Judge Samuel Alschuler of the Circuit Court of Appeals and Judges James H. Wilkerson and John F. Barnes of the District court. The injunction provided that the live stock commission firms must deposit in escrow funds to cover the difference between their income under the present rates for service and under those prescribed by Secretary Wallace.

Awaits Final Decision.

The funds deposited in escrow are to be held until a final decision is given. If the live stock commission firms are successful in their contention that the new rates are confiscatory the deposits are to be refunded. If unsuccessful, the money will be turned over to the farmers.

The judges instructed the attorneys for both sides to hasten the filing of their answers and pleadings so the case could be heard early in June. Attorneys for the government argued that Wallace modified his original order so that the reduction aggregates about $500,000 a year instead of the originally contemplated rate reduction of about $1,000,000 annually, and that Wallace had been liberal in his findings after extensive investigations.

Call Order Arbitrary.

The commission men, represented by Attorney George I. Haight, argued that Wallace's order was "arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable," and contrary to evidence heard by the secretary and his subordinates during the summer of 1933. The evidence was given by farmers, commission men, packers, and others who were subpenaed and questioned about the live stock marketing in Chicago's stockyards. The evidence filled more than 20 volumes of typed pages.

It was cited by the commission men, in their petition, that the present rates have been in effect since 1923 and that the volume of sales has been reduced while expenses have increased under provisions of the National Recovery act and the Agricultural Adjustment act. They allege that it will be impossible to restore salaries desired by the government if they are forced to reduce their commissions.

In addition to naming Secretary Wallace the petition names as defendants Attorney General Cummings and United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, who under the law must enforce certain penalties if the Wallace orders are violated.

"Count" Is Arrested

Anthony de Bosdari, who describes himself as an Italian count, was released from the detective bureau on $75 bond last night after having been arrested on a charge of defrauding the Sovereign hotel, 6200 Kenmore avenue, of $87.06.

According to the charges De Bosdari departed from Chicago some weeks ago leaving a hotel bill of that amount. He returned recently and was arrested at the Maryland hotel, 900 North Rush street.

In 1928 De Bosdari married Miss Josephine Fish, daughter of Mrs. Charles King Corsant of Chicago. She divorced him a few months later after a honeymoon in France and Italy. She charged infidelity. Following the divorce De Bosdari was reported engaged to marry Tallulah Bankhead, stage and screen actress; the duchess of Croy, and Miss Ethel Stamp Taylor, English musical comedy star.

In 1929 Miss Fish was married to Lieut. Thomas J. Ryan of the United States navy.

INSULL STEAMER LEAVES SICILY FOR MOROCCO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. EXILONA, en route to Casa Blanca, Morocco, April 19.—The Exilona picked up additional cargo at Palermo, Sicily, today and headed for Casa Blanca, Morocco. This will be the last stop before heading across the Atlantic with Samuel Insull, former utilities magnate, who is destined to face fraud charges in Chicago in connection with the crash of his companies.

The stretch to Casa Blanca, on the west coast of north Africa, is about 1,100 miles, through the straits of Gibraltar, and will take about four and one-half days. Then the vessel will start for New York, where it is expected to tie up about May 7.

At all three Sicilian stops—Catania, Milazzo, and Palermo—Insull was required to stay on board under the eye of Burton Y. Berry, third secretary of the United States embassy in Turkey, who is his custodian. At the three places Insull got correspondents to take letters ashore. He bluntly refused requests of visiting Italian newspaper men for interviews.

AAA GETS MORE THAN IT SOUGHT IN COURT RULING

Asks Judge to Ease Dairy Injunction Order.

Counsel for the Agricultural Adjustment administration yesterday indicated to Federal Judge William H. Holly that his action in granting a temporary injunction against two dairies last week had gone a step further than they would care to support in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The injunction to prevent the dairies from operating was granted on the ground that they violated the AAA milk license agreement.

The attorneys, former Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch and John S. Miller, petitioned the judge to strike one paragraph from his memorandum handed down in connection with the injunction. The situation, described as unusual by lawyers familiar with federal court practice, was one in which a litigant—the United States government in this case—obtained more than was bargained for. It arose apparently because Judge Holly, a new judge, was not familiar with the new federal rules of equity.

Motion for Dismissal.

Counsel for Lloyd V. Shissler, a Lombard milk dealer, and the People's Dairy company of Cicero, which he controls, had filed a motion to dismiss the government's entire bill for injunction, at the same time filing an answer to parts of it. Judge Holly ruled that their motion to dismiss constituted a demurrer and that in filing a demurrer they forfeited their right to answer any part of the bill. This was on the theory that a demurrer goes to the whole of a bill.

But the government counsel, their victory notwithstanding, pointed out to Judge Holly that there is no such thing as a demurrer in equity in federal court practice.

Quote Supreme Court Rule.

They quoted rule 29 for the equity practice, promulgated by the United States Supreme court, as follows:

"Demurrers and pleas are abolished. Every defense in point of law arising upon the face of the bill, whether for misjoinder, nonjoinder, or insufficiency of fact to constitute a valid cause of action in equity, which might heretofore have been made by demurrer or plea, shall be made by motion to dismiss or in the answer, and every such point of law going to the whole or a material part of the cause or causes of action stated in the bill may be called up and disposed of before final hearing in the discretion of the court. Every defense heretofore presentable by plea in bar or abatement shall be made in the answer and may be separately heard and disposed of before the trial of the principal case in the discretion of the court."

"The practice seems to be," the government lawyers advised Judge Holly, "to permit both a motion to dismiss and an answer to be filed, even though the motion goes to the whole bill."

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced in Washington yesterday that he had signed an order to dismiss proceedings against a third Chicago dairy company, the United Dairy, for failure to collect and turn over the check-off payment required to maintain the milk marketing administration. Since instituting the proceedings, he said, the dairy has paid up in full.

AGREE ON BONDING PLAN TO FINISH DRIVE LINK BRIDGE

Legislation for Parks' Transfer Only Hurdle.

Plans for a bond transfer between the South park and Lincoln park systems, whereby the proper collateral for a government loan to complete the construction of the outer drive bridge over the mouth of the Chicago river can be made available, were worked out yesterday.

The announcement was made after a conference between Lloyd H. Landau, chief counsel in Chicago for the federal public works administration, Mayor Kelly, and other city officials.

South Park Bonds Acceptable.

The problem to be confronted involved Lincoln park principally, since the government refused to accept Lincoln park bonds for a loan of $1,916,000, representing that park's share of the bridge expense. However, willingness had been expressed to accept South park bonds, the South parks needing $4,762,000 for their share of the work.

Under the plan worked out yesterday, the South park board would turn over to Lincoln park bonds in the amount the latter board needs for the government loan. In return, the Lincoln park board would give the South parks its bonds to a like amount.

Transaction Agreeable.

The government is willing to accept the South park bonds, and the South parks are willing to accept the Lincoln park bonds, it was said.

The one hurdle yet to be surmounted, Mayor Kelly explained after the conference, is the securing of authority for such a transaction from the Illinois legislature. A bill has been pending at Springfield for some time, giving local governments the right to pay their obligations to other local governments in bonds or tax anticipation warrants.

The mayor left for Springfield late last night to attend the state Democratic convention, and while there will work for immediate passage of the bond transfer measure.

Sees Quick Progress.

"There is no question in my mind," Mayor Kelly said, "that we can have construction work on the bridge under way almost immediately after this bill is passed, because the money will unquestionably be forthcoming, then, from the government."

The work yet remaining will cost an estimated $6,678,000, and will complete the linking of the north and south outer drives, with the consequent acceleration of trafic, and elimination of existing congestion. The approach to the bridge on the Lincoln park side already has been built.

EDITORS MEET ROOSEVELT FOR NEW DEAL CHAT

Johnson Will Address Them Today.

Washington, D. C., April 19.—(AP)—A man-to-man chat with President Roosevelt on vital administration policies was the opportunity afforded tonight to newspaper editors assembled in the capital to discuss problems of the press and the New Deal.

But the conference arranged in the President's White House study for more than half a hundred members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors was strictly "off the record." Any presidential remarks were for the guidance of those present, not for publication.

An afternoon meeting at the National Press club formally opened the society's twelfth annual convention which its president, Paul Bellamy of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, said "should include frank and open consideration of the new problems precipitated on the press by the New Deal.

Tugwell Also to Speak.

"We have proceeded upon the theory that we should not be afraid to tackle hot pokers because they were hot," Bellamy told the society in outlining a program of speakers which included Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chieftain, and Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture.

Johnson tomorrow will discuss "The Newspapers and NRA," a subject touched on by Bellamy in his opening remarks.

"For myself I am grateful to those of our number who by their own efforts had that freedom [of the press] reiterated in the newspaper code," Bellamy said. "But in a larger sense, we and our successors will make or break the freedom of the press by the use we make of that freedom in our newspapers.

"If we truly serve the people . . . the freedom of the press . . . will rest forever secure in the solid rock of public esteem."

Urges Quest for Truth.

Frank Parker Stockbridge, editor of the American Press, was the other major speaker of the opening session. He said editors should be "realistic philosophers enough" to seek for the truth behind the news.

"Mr. Hoover," Stockbridge said, "once remarked to me when he was in the White House, apropos of a pending bill which was more humanitarian than economical: 'The trouble with this country is too much legislation by emotion.'

"I wonder whether one of the main troubles of journalism may not be too much reporting by emotion. . . .

"I would look with some distrust upon any newspaper reporter who took seriously much of the mass of propaganda, putative facts, and dubious statistics with which governments—our own included—flood the newspaper offices."

FOUND DEAD OF AUTO GAS.

NEW BIDS BOOST COST OF PWA JOB DROPPED BY NASH

Only Two Companies Seek Loop Sewer Contract.

The sanitary district trustees yesterday opened two new bids—the only ones submitted—on the loop sewer contract for which the firm of Patrick A. Nash, Democratic national committeeman and head of the party in Cook county, had been the original low bidder. The Nash concern withdrew its bid of $1,124,024 three weeks ago after President Roosevelt and Public Works Administrator Ickes had frowned on the letting of federal easy money contracts to persons connected with politics.

The new low bid for the contract was submitted by the S. A. Healy company with a total of $1,155,005, or $30,981 more than the Nash bid. The only other bidder was the Underground Construction company, which offered to do the work for $1,276,660.

The trustees were considerably puzzled whether to open the two bids, for they had expected more. After receiving approval from Joshua D'Esposito, state PWA engineer, the seals were broken and the amounts announced.

Open Harvey Sewer Bids.

Bids were also opened for a new intercepting sewer running from Harvey to the Calumet treatment works, a PWA job. The Nash concern did not put in a bid. The Healy bid was low on this project. The bids, in the order in which they were announced, were as follows:

McKay Engineering and Construction company	$1,357,035
S. A. Healy	1,029,739
Michael Pontarelli, Inc.	1,506,000
Paschen Brothers	1,166,685
Underground Construction CO.	1,043,169
Frazier-Davis company	1,567,800

The bids on the loop project and also on the Harvey sewer were referred to Philip Harrington, chief engineer for the district, for examination. The contracts will be awarded later.

The trustees also threw out a bid of $411,700 for a section of the west side sewer system lying along the east bank of the north branch of the Chicago river. This bid, which had been offered by the D'Andrea & Valente company, was low, but the concern refused to sign a certificate agreeing to follow out PWA regulations.

Defer Action for a Week.

These regulations were laid down in the contract between the sanitary district and the federal government for the sale of 42 million dollars' worth of bonds to the government. Action on the other bids for this sewer was deferred for a week.

Vouchers totaling $3,000 were approved by the trustees for the payment of government experts reviewing and inspecting the sewage projects. A similar list for $5,000 was passed on April 9. The PWA contract provides that the district shall pay the government's expense in this connection.

Notice has been served on the district by Administrator Ickes that the trustees must collect a number of bills, including one for 7 million dollars for furnishing electrical current to the city of Chicago, before the district will be eligible for a free cash grant of 10 million dollars from the federal government. This represents approximately 25 per cent of the 42 million dollar loan. No payments have been made on the electrical bill, although several judgments have been obtained against the city.

DUCE MAY SHIFT FOREIGN POLICY; CALLS IN ENVOYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 19.—The summoning during the last few weeks of several Italian ambassadors and ministers to Rome for conferences with Premier Mussolini and foreign office authorities tonight gave rise to reports that Italy's foreign policy will be shaken up, particularly with regard to central Europe. Changes in the diplomatic service and in the cabinet are also anticipated.

Italy's envoys to Paris, Brussels, Berlin, and Warsaw have been here for conferences in recent days. Changes in the diplomatic service and in the composition of the cabinet contemplated by Il Duce will take place shortly after the assemblage of the new chamber of deputies, it is said.

It is reported that Dino Grandi, former foreign minister and now ambassador to London, will return. Costanzo Ciano is expected to be removed from the ministry of communications to some other post. It is also assumed that Edmondo Rossoni will take the portfolio of the ministry of corporations now held by Mussolini. This latter change would take place in view of plans to inaugurate a new category of guilds as the completion of the corporative system within the next few weeks.

THREE KILLED WHEN TRUCK AND AUTO COLLIDE

Car Smashed Against Post on South Side.

Three passengers in an automobile driven by a fourth man were killed early this morning when the car was struck by a trailer truck at 31st street and Wentworth avenue and hurled against a lamppost.

Those killed were Arthur Gaughan, 40 years old, 4245 South Wells street, owner of a saloon at 4136 Wentworth avenue; Matthew Grogan, 33 years old, 4153 Drexel boulevard, an engineer for the sanitary district, and Edward Penders, 60 years old. John Gill, 28 years old, who was driving the automobile, was not seriously injured.

Truck Collides with Auto.

Gill and his companions were driving north in Wentworth avenue, intending to take Penders to a hotel, when the car was hit by the truck, which was going west in 31st street. The truck was driven by Berle Blanchard of 402 North Burdick street, Kalamazoo, Mich., an employé of the Michigan Interstate Transfer company. Blanchard was not hurt.

Penders and Gaughan were taken to Michael Reese hospital, where they were pronounced dead on arrival. Gill and Grogan were taken to Mercy hospital, where Grogan died in a short time.

Hit-Run Drivers Kill Two.

Hit and run drivers yesterday caused the death of a four year old girl and a middle aged man.

The girl, Altina Rusthoven, 1619 Washburne avenue, was run down and fatally injured at Washburne avenue and South Paulina street. According to the story of the dead girl's two brothers, who witnessed the accident, the car which killed the child was carrying passengers besides the driver. The children told police that the headlights of the auto were broken by the impact of the child's body.

Argo Man Is Killed.

Charles Adams, 55 years old, 7624 West 61st street, Argo, an oil station attendant, was killed last night near 7500 West 63d street, in Argo, by a motorist who fled after the accident.

Edwin Batterman, 31 years old, 231 West 16th place, Chicago Heights, chief clerk of the Flintkote corporation of that suburb, died yesterday of injuries received Wednesday when he drove his car into a Chicago and Eastern Illinois train at the Sauk trail crossing in South Chicago Heights. He died in the St. James hospital at Chicago Heights.

Year's Toll Is 362.

These deaths and two others yesterday increased the toll of motor fatalities in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 362. The other victims:

Michael Garrity, 50 years old of 4311 North Claremont avenue. Killed last night when he was struck by the automobile of Mrs. Ardelle Schramm, 19 years old, of 5747 Cornelia avenue, at 4300 North Western avenue. He died at the Martha Washington hospital.

Thomas Cook, 88 years old, 1535 Cornelia avenue. Died last night in the county hospital of injuries suffered on March 16 when, police said, he stepped into the side of a moving car driven by Joseph Mahoney, 2952 North Parkside avenue, at Cornelia and Ashland avenues.

FIRST TRIAL FOR AUTO INSURANCE RACKET BEGINS

Henry Gusenberg, brother of Pete and Frank Gusenberg, who were killed in the Valentine day massacre of 1929, and Paul Kuhn, North Clark street saloonkeeper, were placed on trial before a jury yesterday in Judge Harry B. Miller's Criminal court on charges of conspiracy to defraud an insurance company. This is the first case of this type to be tried since State's Attorney Courtney undertook to put an end to fake automobile thefts.

The prosecution charges that Gusenberg arranged to have his automobile stolen by Harry Burns, an ex-convict with a record dating back to 1918. Gusenberg then collected $1,400 insurance and paid $20 to the thief, it is charged. Burns was later arrested and indicted under the habitual criminal act because of his previous record. Gusenberg failed to appear to prosecute him and the state then started an investigation and discovered the alleged fake theft. Kuhn, it is charged, acted as the go-between with Gusenberg and Burns.

GROCERY DRIVER IS ROBBED.

Robert Reznick, 1115 South Kedzie avenue, a driver for Samuel Kunin & Sons, Inc., wholesale grocers, was robbed of $115 by four bandits at Chicago and Cicero avenues early yesterday.

LAUD COURTNEY FOR HIS DRIVE ON CRIMINALS

Glowing tribute was paid to State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney last night in connection with the presentation to him of the award of the United States Flag association.

There was warm praise from speaker after speaker and there was enthusiasm from a crowd that filled the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman. But the highest tribute came in the official citation accompanying the gold medal which was presented to the prosecutor "for meritorious law enforcement during 1933."

Read by Attorney General.

The citation, illuminated on parchment, was read by Attorney General Otto Kerner and was pronounced the highest commendation ever given to a state's attorney of Cook county.

"As state's attorney of Cook county," it read in part, "he has furnished a capable, courageous, and determined leadership in law enforcement. His fearlessness and integrity have inspired a new and full confidence in the administration of criminal justice.

"With vigorous methods and firmness he has earnestly attacked organized crime in every field, each day moving swiftly and sternly forward to success. Kidnapers, murderers, bombers, robbers, each in turn has felt the stinging lash that he so powerfully wields in the fight.

"He has freed business from the hold of racketeers, driven the hoodlums and gunmen out, and swept before him to destruction many unlawful terroristic combines in industry. Embezzler and con man, thief and rapist, all are made to feel the sternness of his hand.

Encourages Law Enforcement.

"Faithfully and diligently upholding the majesty of the law, he has set an example that has inspired law enforcement officials everywhere.

"Thus he has done most during the year 1933 to advance and encourage the enforcement of law in Illinois."

In the absence of Gov. Horner, who was held at Springfield by official business, the association medal was presented by Frank J. Loesch of the Chicago Crime commission.

"When you made your campaign pledges," said Mr. Loesch to the prosecutor, "you were an unknown quantity. Now you are a known quantity. You have kept your word. You are competent. You are true."

Courtney Makes Talk.

In accepting the award State's Attorney Courtney said his staf merited it as much as he, and that it would serve as an encouragement to greater service. He expressed appreciation for the coöperation of United States District Attorney Green, of Mayor Kelly, Police Commissioner Allman, of the courts, and of the "fair press."

"Through this coöperation," he said, "we have been able to convict more kidnapers than any similar office in the country and we have convicted more kidnapers than has the United States government. And we intend to keep it up."

County Clerk Sweitzer presided. The speakers before the presentation ceremonies included District Attorney Green, Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court, and Mayor Kelly.

The mayor referred to Mr. Courtney as "probably the greatest criminal prosecutor this country has ever known." He also said the end had been put to "fixing" cases in the Criminal courts.

Among those at the speakers' table in addition to those on the program were Prof. John H. Wigmore, John D. Black, Silas H. Strawn, Edward Eagle Brown, D. F. Kelly, Corporation Counsel Sexton, Henry Barrett Chamberlin, T. P. Sullivan, and Martin P. Durkin.

COURTNEY'S DRIVE MAY SLASH AUTO THEFT RATES 50%

State's Attorney Courtney yesterday announced his belief that automobile thefts in Chicago this year would be only half those in 1933 and that as a result of the campaign being waged to this end auto insurance rates also would be halved.

Police figures showed that on Wednesday 37 cars were reported stolen, three stripped and 47 recovered. On the corresponding day last year thefts were 90, while seven were stripped and 50 recovered.

Under the present arrangements a complete report on any auto stealing must be turned over by the police to the state's attorney's office. When an automobile theft is taken, a report of this must also be made to the state's attorney and each case is followed through to see that there is no fixing. A total of 250 policemen are especially assigned to the duty of running down automobile thefts.

SPIKE O'DONNELL QUICKLY LEAVES LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 19.—(AP)—Edward J. [Spike] O'Donnell, Chicago beer racketeer of prohibition days, sped eastward today with a good-by from police here. They saw him off, admonishing him that it would not be healthy to come back.

Picked up by police Tuesday in a Hollywood beer parlor, O'Donnell was charged with vagrancy. He was rushed into court. There he pleaded guilty and was fined $500 and ordered to spend six months in jail. But the sentence was suspended on condition that he leave town immediately and keep away for at least two years.

Detectives accompanied him to a depot and saw him aboard a train.

OUTLINES FIGHT TO STEM TOLL OF HEART DISEASES

Doctors Hear Summary of War on Malady.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

What physicians know about heart disease, and what they are doing to stem the increasing toll of death which ailments of the heart and blood vessels exact from modern civilization, was summarized yesterday by Dr. Jonathan C. Meakins of Montreal. Dr. Meakins, a heart specialist, was installed last evening as president of the American College of Physicians, which is holding its annual convention at the Palmer house.

The attention which physicians are giving to diseases of the circulatory system has been emphasized in the present convention by the fact that in the discussions, covering the whole field of internal medicine, about one-fourth have concerned the heart and blood vessels. Dr. Meakins summarized the findings of a number of these papers.

Leads in Fatalities.

"The greatest cause of death, greater than cancer and tuberculosis combined, is cardio-vascular diseases, or diseases of the heart and circulatory system," Dr. Meakins pointed out. "The tragedy is deepened by the fact that so many of the victims are incapacitated or die in their 40's or 50's, at the height of their productive period.

"Diseases of the circulatory system, taken as a whole, cause 33 per cent of deaths at all ages."

Seventy-five per cent of the cases of circulatory [including heart] diseases can be traced to two causes, infections and functional disturbance in the arterial system which produces hypertension, or high blood pressure, Dr. Meakins said. To this Dr. Walter L. Bierring of Des Moines, president elect of the American Medical association, added another common cause, the breakdown of the heart muscles from the wear and tear of life, which sometimes can occur without either infection or high blood pressure.

Infections, Dr. Meakins said, are of two types. In childhood, a period when a large percentage of heart victims contract the ailment, but may not manifest it until decades later, the principal cause is rheumatic fever.

Fatigue Is Early Sign.

When adult life is reached, rheumatic fever is replaced by syphilis as the principal infectious cause of heart and circulatory disease. In all of these cases the damage done may not be manifested until later middle age, and procedure in detecting heart and circulatory disease formed one of the principal subjects of discussion at the convention.

Dr. Bierring pointed out fatigue as one of the early signs of broken down heart muscles, since fatigue is a direct result of the failure of the body to receive a proper supply of oxygenated blood, and to dispose of its waste products through the blood.

The influence of heredity in many cases of heart and circulatory disease was emphasized yesterday by Dr. Nathan S. Davis III. of the Northwestern university medical faculty. Physicians believe the tendency to such ailments, particularly in respect to high blood pressure, may be inherited.

Not a Disease in Itself.

In another discussion, Dr. Soma Weiss of Boston pointed out that high blood pressure is not a disease in itself, but a condition brought about by a great many conditions in the body. He cast doubt on the theory that emotional stress common to "high pressure" living may be one cause, pointing out that it is just as likely that high blood pressure may be responsible for the emotional disturbance. Nor is there any clinical evidence, Dr. Weiss said, that use of tobacco or liquor is a cause of the condition.

Both Dr. Weiss and Dr. Clarence L. Andrews of Atlantic City, N. J., said there is no such thing as a "normal" blood pressure at any period in life.

One speaker at the convention, Dr. Hermann L. Blumgart of Boston, told how surgery—removal of the thyroid gland—had given relief to a number of patients suffering from angina pectoris, a peculiarly painful form of heart disease.

How Thyroid Affects Heart.

The thyroid secretes an extract which controls the rate at which the body burns up its energy. Since this energy is taken to the tissues by the blood, an overactive thyroid whips up the heart and frequently overloads it by demanding a greater volume of blood than the heart is able to pump through the body.

In the cases described by Dr. Blumgart, however, the thyroid was normal. It was removed so that the bodily processes would slow down, lacking the stimulus of the gland.

Why We Have Fevers?

At an earlier session a possible new theory as to why we run a fever when we are ill was presented in connection with the description of a new and medically spectacular disease of the blood, granulopenia.

Dr. Stewart R. Roberts of Atlanta presented the paper, prepared by himself and Dr. Roy R. Kracke. Granulopenia is a diminishing of the granulocytes, the white corpuscles which police the blood stream against invasion by disease bearing bacteria.

Both the red and the white blood corpuscles are generated in the marrow of the bones.

The death of these "soldiers of the blood" leaves the body open to infections and stripped of its ability to resist them once they enter. The disease thus is frequently followed by various infectious ailments, which because of the lack of bodily resistance frequently prove fatal.

Outline Fever Theory.

But granulopenia frequently is fatal without the intervention of infectious diseases, and it is in this connection that the possible new theory of fever was uncovered.

One of the facts of bacteriology, which is most fortunate for man's continued existence on earth, is that many disease causing bacteria are killed by temperatures slightly above bodily heat. Fever is nature's attempt to "pasteurize" the blood stream and kill off the dangerous organisms which have invaded it.

The observations of Dr. Roberts and Dr. Kracke may give a key to how the body produces fever. They found with sufferers from granulopenia that even when the dying off of the white corpuscles was not followed by an infectious disease, the bodily temperature rose rapidly.

This would indicate that fever in all diseases may be caused by casualties among the white blood corpuscles, killed in their battle to subdue invading bacteria.

At the meeting yesterday at which Dr. Meakins was installed as president of the college, Dr. James Alexander Miller of New York was named president elect, to succeed Dr. Meakins one year hence. Dr. Miller is head of the tuberculosis division in Bellevue hospital and is professor of clinical medicine in Columbia university.

Dr. James H. Means of Boston, Dr. Randolph Lyons of New Orleans, and Dr. James F. Churchill of San Diego were named vice presidents, to take office with Dr. Miller. Dr. James G. Carr, professor of medicine at Northwestern university and chief of the medical department of the Evanston hospital, was one of those elected to the college's board of governors.

Physicians Hear Frank.

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, speaking last night at the annual banquet, said there is no immediate danger of communism or Fascism in America. He warned, however, that the "mass mind" in its present mood will expect constructive results from the freedom of action made possible by congress in the spring of 1933. It will, Dr. Frank said, expect more than the subsidizing of discontented millions.

"I count myself among the friends of private initiative," he said at another point, apparently referring to the New Deal. "I am not at all enamored of the prospect of having my own and the nation's life ordered about by burocrats. In the long run I doubt the wisdom of having political persons dictate in detail the plan and procedure."

JOSEPH B. CHURCHILL DIES TWICE LEGALLY; GIVEN TWO BURIALS

Oyster Bay, L. I., April 19.—[Special.]—Joseph B. Churchill, sixty, was disclosed here today as having died two deaths, officially, and having been buried twice at public expense within three months.

Last Jan. 12 an aged man who had hanged himself in an abandoned roadside stand near Belmont, L. I., was identified from photographs and descriptions as Churchill by his daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Wentworth of Yonkers. The town of Hempstead buried him as Churchill and closed the case.

Then on April 10 an aged man was found dead from heart disease near the Long Island railroad tracks at Hicksville. A memorandum book and other papers identified him as Churchill. That time Mrs. Wentworth viewed the body and verified the identification. The town of Oyster Bay buried him this time as Churchill and also marked the case "closed."

There is no clew to the identity of the first man.

Illinois Northern Utility President Seriously Ill

Dixon, Ill., April 19.—[Special.]—E. D. Alexander, president of the Illinois Northern Utilities, with headquarters at Dixon, is seriously ill at Mayo brothers' clinic in Rochester, Minn., it was reported here today. Mr. Alexander went to Rochester about a month ago for treatment for stomach ailment and while there underwent an operation.

GRAND JURORS FLAY 'DRAG SALE' IN WASHINGTON

Uphold Roosevelt Quest for "Anti-Lobby" Law.

Washington, D. C., April 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's desire for a legislative blow at political influence exerted before government departments has drawn support from a grand jury report suggesting action against "political lawyers."

The report, now at the White House, asserts corporations and individuals have been guilty of "Pernicious" activity regarding the sale and attempted sale of alleged influence.

It recommends administrative and legislative action, if necessary, to prevent political lawyers from presenting claims for clients to the friends of such lawyers in high public office."

The recommendations were adopted by the District of Columbia jury after an extensive investigation of army contract awards. No indictments resulted.

Jury Condemns "Influence."

Holding that sale of surplus army goods by negotiation instead of this was partly responsible, the report condemns continuation of a condition in the war department which it says "gave color to the belief that influence was valuable" in negotiating for army contracts.

Conduct of a motor manufacturer who sought an army contract is described as "reprehensible," and dissension is reported between Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, and the army general staff.

Woodring has figured prominently in a congressional investigation of the army air corps' use of $7,500,000 allotted to it by the Public Works administration for equipment purchases. A subcommittee of the house recently agreed that Woodring's conduct in this matter was "above reproach" but criticized Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois and Brig. Gen. H. C. Pratt, chief of the air corps procurement division.

Ruled Not Competitive.

Woodring ordered competitive bids on the plane purchases instead of negotiated contracts. When bids were received the judge advocate general of the army ruled they were not competitive and the plane contracts have not yet been let.

The grand jury report turned attention to legislation which was brought up in the senate early this week but later laid aside.

This bill would prohibit members of congress from acting as attorneys in cases in which the government has an interest, and from representing any person or corporation engaged in interstate commerce. It would apply to any federal official as well.

President Roosevelt has not expressed himself on this particular bill, but he made it clear months ago that he would like strong anti-lobbying legislation from the present congress. He told congressional leaders then that it ought to apply to congressmen, other office holders and leaders of the political parties.

BARRED LAWYER GETS TWO YEARS IN FRAUD CASE

Vincent P. Pace, 37 years old, a disbarred lawyer, was sentenced to two years in the Bridewell and fined $2 yesterday for obtaining money under false pretenses. The sentence was imposed by Judge Frank M. Padden in Felony court. Pace also was held to the grand jury on four charges of embezzlement and one of confidence game. His bonds were fixed at $25,000.

The charges grew out of Pace's alleged practice of accepting retainer fees from clients and giving no legal service in return. He was disbarred several months ago and his petition for a rehearing was denied by the Illinois Supreme court.

YOU naturally expect Phillips 66 to be higher test than other motor fuels, when you know that Phillips is the world's largest producer of natural high test gasoline.

Then ask yourself why Phillips publishes these figures month after month, while others do not! Obviously the reason is that Phillips figures are higher, that Phillips welcomes any and all comparisons based on fact.

We especially invite experienced drivers to test Phillips 66 in their cars. Even to pep-less motors, one trial tankful will break the good news that Spring is here.

For tired engines, this greater gasoline is a real Spring tonic . . . scientifically matched to the weather by the Phillips pioneer principle of CONTROLLED VOLATILITY. Every gallon is high test, and every high test particle puts new snap and power back of each inch of piston travel. Livens up acceleration. Adds mileage, too!

And all the miles are smoother and quieter, because high test Phillips 66 is also high anti-knock.

Since you don't have to pay a penny extra for it, how can you possibly lose by trying a tankful! Make a mental note now to PHILL-UP with PHILLIPS the very next time you see the Orange and Black 66 shield.

FARMERS SEEK MARTIAL LAW IN NORTH DAKOTA

Ask Governor's Action to Help Mortgagees.

Bismarck, N. D., April 19.—[Special.]—Gov. William A. Langer tonight has under consideration a request from the North Dakota Farmers Holiday association to declare martial law in the state for a period of 30 days. Accompanying the request was an offer from the association to furnish 20,000 men to prevent interference with the operation of the mortgage foreclosure moratorium on farms. The farmers' actions were the result of a series of alleged violations of the moratorium edict.

"Desperate attempts are under way throughout the state to oust the farmers from their lands and to prevent them from planting their crops," the plea to the governor read. "Martial law will preserve peace, save the farmers and then the mortgagees will have a chance to get some money if we have a crop."

Demands Follow Arrests.

The farmers' demands followed a hectic day in which three National Guardsmen were arrested on charges of assault after forcibly removing a farm renter from his land in northern Hettinger county late Wednesday. The guardsmen were Capt. Wayne Klinefelter and Corp. Adolph Remillong and Ralph C. Ehli, all of Dickinson. The warants were issued by the Hettinger county state's attorney's office.

This was the first time guardsmen, acting under orders of the governor, have been challenged by a state's attorney, Capt. Herman A. Brocopp, assistant adjutant general, said that normally the attorney general "would be expected to defend National Guardsmen who are called into court for obeying the governor's orders." In the absence of martial law the Hettinger county state's attorney, J. K. Murray, said that the guardsmen are without authority and are guilty of both assault and extortion.

See Impassé Today.

Gov. Langer and State's Attorney Murray are expected to reach an impassé in the matter tomorrow. The property involved belongs to the Bondholders' Credit bureau of Minneapolis. The bureau had sold the property six years ago to Frank Stricker, who subsequently defaulted in his payment. About a week ago the bureau rented the farm to the ousted farmer, named Peters. Stricker has been restored to possession of the farm.

State's Attorney Murray asserted that farmers living in his county have threatened to "shoot it out" with the guardsmen unless forcible ejections by the militia is stopped. Similar disturbances are being reported in other parts of the state. At Casselton Sherif McArthur abandoned an attempt to dispossess a renter on advice of the governor.

Bloodshed Is Feared.

Farmers living in Dunn county, Birdick asserted, are irate because several of their neighbors are in jail for attempting to retain possession of their land.

"Our members can't be leaving their land two and three times a week during these busy seeding times to keep neighbors from being moved off their land," he declared. "Martial law with guardsmen enforcing the moratorium is the only solution to our present difficulties."

WAITERS CALL STRIKE AT HOTEL, PLACE PICKETS

The Chicago Waiters' alliance, local No. 25, called a strike of its members at the Edgewater Beach hotel at 5 p. m. yesterday and pickets were placed at the front entrance.

Union headquarters claimed that 125 men, including bus boys and cooks, walked out. This was denied by William M. Dewey, managing director of the hotel.

"Actually twenty-seven men left the dining room after professional union organizers came in and told them to go," he said. "Most of these men left with apologies. Our service was in no way crippled and we had plenty of help to take the places of those who left. We have the usual number of guests at our Thursday night party, about 700, and they are getting the customary service."

He added that the union had not come to the management with any complaints, and that he did not know why the strike was called unless it was in sympathy with union electricians, who went on strike for a $28 a month increase in pay several weeks ago. Maurice Cohn, secretary of the waiters' organization, declared the hotel had been violating NRA requirements.

TREASURY HEAD HITS AT ILLEGAL LIQUOR BUSINESS

Number of Raiders to Be Doubled.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—[Special.]—Repeal hasn't even put a dent in the operations of large scale moonshiners and bootleggers, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. said today.

To drive moonshine liquor out of existence Secretary Morgenthau has a force of approximately 700 raiders in the field who last week seized 73 stills, arrested 84 persons, and confiscated 7,000 gallons of illicit liquor and 173,000 gallons of mash.

Situation "Bad as Ever."

"The situation as far as big stills are concerned is as bad as it ever was," Secretary Morgenthau declared. "Bootlegging still is a very husky industry, but we hope to hit it and hit it hard."

Although he has previously declared that the price of legal liquor is too high, Secretary Morgenthau refused today to say that the high cost of legitimate whisky was keeping the bootlegger and moonshiner in business.

Repeal apparently has aided in driving the rum fleet off the American coasts, however, the secretary said. The coast guard has reported to him, he said, that the number of rum runners hanging off both the Pacific and Atlantic coasts has dwindled considerably.

Expand Force May 10.

Operating now with a force of about 700 raiders, the treasury will expand this force to 1,500 on May 10, when, under the terms of a pending presidential order, it takes over about 800 agents now attached to the old prohibition force in the department of justice. This group compares with about 3,200 agents employed by the disbanded drys when they were at their largest.

Since the treasury sent its raiders into the field on April 1 they have seized 243 stills, arrested 349 persons, confiscated 25,000 gallons of illegal booze and 490,000 gallons of mash, and seized total property valued at $236,000. Persons arrested are being tried under the revenue laws on the charge of defrauding the government of its taxes.

Gets Lincoln Relics

Friends of the library of the University of Chicago will meet tonight in International house on the campus for the first formal celebration of the acquisition of important Lincoln documents and relics by the library.

The acquisitions include the collections of Lincolnana made by the Rev. William E. Barton, Osborn Oldroyd, and Alexander Hannah. Among the most interesting exhibits are a letter sent to his wife by Lincoln in 1848, a letter written by him in 1860 and containing an explanation of one of his most important campaign speeches, and a leaf from a school exercise book inscribed in his handwriting. The book was found by William Herndon, who was the law partner of the Great Emancipator, while he was collecting materials for Lincoln biography. Later the individual leaf was purchased by Mr. Hannah.

Among those who are scheduled to speak at the ceremonies tonight are Prof. William E. Dodd, ambassador to Germany; Carl Sandburg, Lloyd Lewis, and Gov. Horner.

TROTZKY READY TO SLIP OUT OF HAVEN IN FRANCE

BARBIZON, France, April 19.—(AP)—Leon Trotzky tonight was ready to slip out of France under cover of darkness or in the early dawn, whenever the secret service gives the word. Baggage of the former soviet leader was packed, but his destination has not been revealed, with most countries apparently unwilling to play host to the famous communist.

Spain was said to be a probable destination, but Trotzky may be obliged to return to Turkey, where he spent much time after his exile from Russia in 1927.

A formal notice that he is being put out of France because of his revolutionary activities was served on him today. An inspector was detailed to accompany Trotzky to the border. The time of his departure was kept a close secret, in order to avoid demonstrations. The Russian shut himself up tightly in the secluded villa here where he was discovered last Sunday, and allowed no visitor.

Members of his household received a scare tonight when they heard four or five pistol shots behind the Trotzky villa. They thought an attack had been made on the Russian revolutionary's life. Secretaries and servants rushed out only to discover that three village boys had fired the shots as a prank.

DECIDES CONVICT 'MULES' ARE NOT TREATED BADLY

Work No Harder than Others, Says Official.

Tucker Prison Farm, Ark., April 19.—(AP)—The chairman of the state penal board saw a demonstration of convicts working "in the traces" here today, pulling cotton planters, and ruled their task was not too hard.

The substitution of "man power" for mules during the crop planting period will be continued, he asserted.

Chairman Walter Helms, with H. Grady McCall, secretary to Gov. Futrell, were asked by the governor to investigate the practice after it had been revealed the men were being used because of a shortage of work stock at the farm.

Superintendent A. G. Stedman said the work the men were doing was no harder than any other manual tasks they were forced to perform.

Six Men to a Team.

Eight "teams" of six convicts each were marching up and down the mile long cotton rows, with a seventh man driving the planter.

The convicts were being used only at Tucker farm No. 2, where Superintendent Stedman said a shortage of mules existed, in an effort to speed the task of planting cotton.

The "hitch" consisted of a rope attached to the planter, with three turned cross sticks for the men to push against as they walked along in the "middles." The planter weighs less than one hundred pounds.

Chairman Helms said he had not been previously advised the men were being used for the work, but that after viewing it and the conditions under which it was being done, he saw no reason for it to be stopped.

There for "Hard Labor."

"These men are here for a definite purpose," he said. "Most of them received sentences calling for hard labor. This labor is no harder than clearing timber, cutting ditches or hoeing in the fields. It is necessary that all of the 1,600 men confined here be kept busy. This is one way of doing the job." Use of men to pull the planters was suggested by a convict who had been transferred from the Boys' Industrial school at Pine Bluff, prison officials said.

Chairmen Helms and McCall interviewed the men working today, asking them if they objected to the work and if it was harder than other tasks assigned them at the farm.

One said it was "plenty of work," and harder than digging ditches. Another said "It's all right after you get used to it."

STEGER SETTLES MARITAL WOES WITH EX-WIFE

The post-marital difficulties of Herbert Steger, All-American back, captain of the 1924 University of Michigan football team, have been settled peaceably out of court, it appeared yesterday when the case brought by his divorced wife, now Mrs. Chester Speakman, was called by Judge Walter La Buy.

The case was an order for Steger to reply to charges he had failed to contribute to the support of his daughter, Phoebe Ann, who will be 6 years old Monday.

When the case was called the order for an answer was vacated at the request of Mrs. Speakman's attorney and the case continued indefinitly. Mrs. Speakman had indicated earlier a settlement might be reached.

"The administration of government has become more complex. The opportunities for malfeasance and corruption have multiplied. Crime has grown to most serious proportions. And the danger of its protection by unfaithful officials, and of the impairment of the fundamental security of life and property by criminal alliances and official neglect, emphasize the primary need of a vigilant and courageous press, especially in great cities. The fact that the liberty of the press may be abused by miscreant purveyors of scandal does not make any the less necessary the immunity of the press from previous restraint in dealing with official misconduct." —Charles Evans Hughes.

IN DEFENSE OF AMERICANISM.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt's inaugural address as president of the National Republican club was a vigorous criticism of the New Deal from the standpoint of traditional Americanism. It ably expresses the growing protest among Americans, regardless of party affiliation, to the revolutionary processes initiated by the administration and to the announced purposes of its leaders to transform the American government and social order.

As Col. Roosevelt well says, the New Deal is neither new nor liberal, though recommended as both by its proponents. There is nothing new in the control of the economic activities of a people by political government, in their regimentation and regulation by burocratic decree. There is nothing liberal in the abolition of a democratic society based upon the doctrine of progress through liberty of the individual. As Col. Roosevelt declared: "The vital question now is their [the New Deal's activities] effect upon our constitutional rights and liberties."

Expanding his protest on this line, Col. Roosevelt cited the attitude of the administration in the free press controversy and pointed out the possibilities, under the guise of regulation, of a suppression of criticism and of publicity offensive to a party in power. He also called attention to the danger that radio may become a monopoly controled by government under a system of official permits and regulations.

This tendency, too, is neither new nor liberal, as it appears in the policy of every régime based on the assumption of government superiority, whether called by the amiable term paternalism or any one of the less ingratiating titles of autocratic power.

Proceeding with his indictment, Col. Roosevelt quoted the fourth article of the bill of rights guaranteeing the people against unreasonable searches and seizures and the fifth article denying to the government the authority to deprive any citizen of life, liberty or property without due process of law. "We consider," said Col. Roosevelt, "as one of the basic principles of liberalism that which is provided by these amendments—namely: that every man should be given his day in court and that no one should be prejudged or denied a hearing." Yet "suddenly and arbitrarily all [air mail] contracts were canceled on allegations of fraud and collusion. There may have been those who were guilty. There certainly were those who were innocent. Yet innocent suffered with guilty."

Col. Roosevelt asserted that the NRA and other agencies are breaking down the system of checks and balances established by the constitution, ignoring state rights, the extending tentacles of centralized power over communities throughout the land, and striking at "millions of Americans we used to call the average, sturdy home owners, the men and women who hold the 65,000,000 life insurance policies and to whom belong the twenty-four billion dollars in savings accounts."

In short, said Col. Roosevelt, the New Deal discards as a worthless scrap of paper the ideal declared by Lincoln in the immortal address at Gettysburg, of "a government of the people, by the people, and for the people."

The leading architects of the New Deal have told us that the American order is a failure and should be replaced by an order based upon their own theories of economic, social and political welfare. This change has truly been called by themselves a revolution. It is in processes of fulfilment, partly in the guise of emergency recovery measures, but more and more openly as a permanent transformation. This is a situation which the American people must confront and which all citizens who do not share the theories of the group now directing the course of law making and policy in the national government must vigorously resist.

As the Democratic party is in office and has given effect to the projects of the New Deal it must be held accountable; but in a higher sense the issue it raises is above party alignments of the two main political organizations of the nation. The logical opposition is between Socialists and believers in the ideals of a free society represented in the American order which the New Deal declares has failed. It is a grotesque political accident that the party whose great founder believed that the best government is that which governs least, who was more than any other man responsible for demanding and securing the explicit guaranties of civil right in the fundamental law of the land, who feared the aggrandizement of government and cherished all his long life the ideals of local self-government and individual liberty, now finds itself embarked on the opposite course. Whatever the sentiment of Democrats may be toward this remarkable reversal, it is plainly the duty of the Republican party to rally all Americans who are loyal to the principles of the American order to their defense.

OUR FIGHTING FRONT AGAINST CRIME.

Chief Justice Finnegan of the Criminal court and associates are setting a standard of efficiency in the administration of criminal justice which marks a high stage in the campaign against crime. An instance of the judicial initiative so often lacking in our courts is the new procedure to prevent last minute pleas of insanity from defeating prompt justice. Insanity is a condition which can and should be ascertained by the defense in the preparation of the case for trial and seldom justifies a plea at the last stage. But it has become a trick of procedure in many cases and in this form should be defeated. Chief Justice Finnegan and his colleagues have arranged for the examination of three defendants now under condemnation and for putting the report into the hands of every judge of the county before whom an insanity plea may be lodged, so that the petition may be promptly determined.

With State's Attorney Courtney's powerful and resourceful administration of the prosecutor's office, supported by a criminal bench showing unusual initiative and energy, the community is beginning to receive a defense from organized criminality which it has seldom had in recent years. At the same time an able commissioner of police supported by the mayor completes a fighting front against crime that no other great city in the country can outmatch.

A PUBLIC DEBT TO FACTOR.

Whatever the legal or other considerations impelling the federal authorities in taking John Factor under custody for extradition to England, this community and the American people generally owe him a debt of gratitude. One of the serious difficulties of justice in the effort to punish kidnapers is the reluctance of victims to coöperate with the authorities and to testify against offenders. This is the effect of fear instilled by threats and of a lack of confidence in the ability of the authorities to provide protection against reprisal. Factor was repeatedly threatened, but he refused to be terrorized. At his own and his family's risk he helped the authorities loyally and efficiently and testified repeatedly in the proceedings which resulted in conviction.

This was a service to the American public. Every failure of the police to run down kidnapers and of the prosecution to punish them endangers the public and every punishment discourages this intolerable crime. Factor's pluck made possible a telling blow at this evil of modern criminal enterprise. Before an American jury or judge this would justifiably influence, at least to the extent of mitigating, any penal judgment brought against him. In an English court it is not likely to have any effect, although it might be the subject of representations at a proper stage of the English proceedings in case they result in a conviction.

THE ILLINOIS NRA.

A bill carrying out the wishes of the NRA in Washington has been introduced in the Illinois legislature to bring the state into line with others which have adopted this administrative policy. The proposal is one of folly. The act is unnecessary. It is the privilege of the state not to incorporate in its statutes a law so debatable, even as an emergency measure, and so contrary to the principles of American government. Many cautious citizens who have submitted to the NRA have the gravest doubts of its consequence. These doubts grow as the operation of the industrial codes is observed.

Illinois should not take the unwise step of committing itself as a sovereign state to any such policy. The political structure of the states has been badly weakened in recent years by the advance of the federal government into all realms of administration and jurisdiction. The states are becoming shadows of their former selves, and such a submission to federal burocracy as is proposed in this NRA bill would hasten the process of degeneration and increase the consuming authority of the Washington government.

Editorial of the Day

[Grand Rapids Press.]

A serious flaw in control of production plans has been pointed out by Crosby Field, chemical engineer, writing in a current technical publication. He strikes particularly at what he calls the "birth control" clauses of NRA codes, which seek production control through restrictions on additions to manufacturing facilities.

"The country is ripe," Mr. Field states, "for the rebuilding which will accommodate it to the changed manner of living now available in connection with new inventions. Yet today we find numerous obsolete plants which will not install this new equipment and thus give employment in its building. In fine, these so-called control of production clauses . . . tend to stabilize the consumers' goods industries and to protect them to a degree that may eventually kill all mechanical progress and deprive the public of the benefits it receives therefrom. Monopoly based on prior investment takes the place of progress based on mechanical invention."

While this may overstate the case, it is to the point of much current agitation against the introduction of new machines and inventions which workers contend are displacing labor. There is a strong undercurrent directed against scientific achievement as the enemy of employment.

Apropos of this discussion is a recent statement by Owen D. Young in a letter to a dinner of scientists in which the chairman of General Electric takes to task those who contend that science and technical development have resulted in unemployment.

"Of all the devils sought in these times of anger and despair," said Mr. Young, "the attack against science is least justified. It not only was not the devil which caused the depression, but it is the most promising angel to lead us out of it. In America obsolescence—not wear out—has been the thing which has kept our people at work and at the same time has produced more and better things at less cost for us all to use. Science is the mother of obsolescence, and to the extent we paralyze it we will limit employment, wages, and our standard of living."

It may be well to heed these warnings. In our zeal for restrictive readjustment there seems to be a real danger that we may strangle progress and find ourselves in worse position than before.

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

THE SOUTH SAYS that if NRA continues it will work more sorrow and destitution in that region than Mr. Sherman did when he made his w. k. march to the sea. And it says it may secede from the Union. But yesterday, on the anniversary of the Battle of Lexington, they proclaimed down there that they have fired another gun for freedom and this time against NRA. So the North may secede first. And Iowa and the West have been threatening the same thing for a long time. Gosh, this is getting embarrassing. Somebody has got to stay in the Union long enough so that other people can secede from it.

COUSINS must have been something of a wash-out even centuries ago. "Richard of Bordeaux," whom Dennis King has brought back to life, romped around this vale of tears away back in 1385, but when the queen tells Richard that Cousin Henry is coming to supper he frowns and sighs and says, "What's the use of being a king if one has to have Cousin Henry for supper?"

IN A FEDERAL COURT a lovely young high school girl of Goodland, Kas., testifies that ten other lovely young high school girls of Goodland, Kas., charged that she had broken a rule they had made that a girl could not make a date with a young man. And she further says they drove her out on a lonely road, tied her to the hood of an automobile, and spanked her so severely she has been under the doctor's care ever since. Oh, dear, dear! Let us hastily turn to the poets to get back to our old ideals of lovely woman:

"Oh woman, in our hours of ease,
Uncertain, coy, and hard to please,
And variable as the shade
By the light quivering aspen made;
When pain and anguish wring the brow
A ministering angel thou."

And turning from Mr. Scott, let us see what Mr. Wordsworth says about a lovely woman:

"A creature not too bright or good
For human nature's daily food;
For transient sorrows, simple wiles,
Praise, blame, love, kisses, tears, and smiles."

And in our day and age ten lovely young high school girls are haled into court and charged by another lovely young high school girl with taking her out and beating her up. How lovely woman has changed, to be sure.

LETTER I FEEL LIKE WRITING.

Dear Sir: I have your letter in reply to the one I sent you asking about cottages to rent in your little town down by the sad sea waves for August. You say there are many such, but that I must inform you how much I desire to pay for a small house for the month of August. Very well, I will tell you just how much I desire to pay for a small house for the month of August. It's my sincere desire to pay about $2.65 for house rent during my vacation sojourn at your delectable resort down by the sad sea waves. There may be no houses there to rent at that price. But that isn't the point. You asked me in so many words how much I desired to pay for a month's rental of a small house. I desire to pay $2.65. That is my very earnest desire. And even if there are no houses to rent at that price I can only answer your question as to what I desire to pay. And when I see the houses you have for rent I may desire to pay only a dollar and a quarter or a dollar and ten cents for 'em for the month of August. I have answered your question and told you the amount I desire to pay for a small house by the seaside for the month of August—$2.65. Now what have you in the way of a neat, small house for $2.65? For the month of August. As the whole thing rests on what I desire to pay, I expect you to find a pretty cheery little home for me (for the month of August) at that price. Very sincerely, and remember to count to one hundred when you are angry—I remain, Etc., Etc., Etc.

P. S.—It is my desire to pay $2.65 for the rental of a house for the month of August. Or did I make that clear?

SLEEP.

The evening meal has much to do with the quiet of sleep. Eating a heavy meal at night may result in very restless sleeping.

There is a general belief that eating certain foods for supper is a principal cause of nightmare, night terror, and sleep walking. Those who hold this view may be willing to admit that fear is a factor, but they insist that food is also one. On the other hand, a light evening meal tends to promote quiet sleep, in the general opinion. A common saying is, "I was so hungry I could not sleep," and "hunger woke me from a sound sleep."

In recent years some scientific foundation for these popular opinions and sayings has been established. A part of the work of the stomach is accomplished by wavelike muscle movements which start at the liver end of the sac and progress toward the left. In hunger there are contractions of this muscle wall, starting at the left side and progressing toward the liver. These contractions are associated with hunger. They may cause discomfort and even pain, a common name for them being hunger pains. They start some five hours after meals and they follow at intervals of a few minutes. During a night's sleep of eight hours or thereabouts these stomach wall contractions may be strong enough to cause discomfort sufficient to cause restless sleep, at least in some persons.

Dr. Donald A. Laird and Miss Hilda Drexel report that eating a light evening meal composed of simple, easily digested foods tends to make the night's sleep peaceful and quiet by at least lessening these hunger contractions of the stomach wall. On the other hand, they found that an evening meal consisting of foods difficult to digest and slow of digestion caused the night's sleep to be restless. They experimented with three types of evening meal. The first was composed of simple, easily digested foods, and the second of foods that threw a good deal of work on the stomach, that stayed in the stomach a considerable time, and that tended to bring about gas. The third was foods that contained considerable liquid or, because of other ingredients, tended to stimulate kidney action. The first made for restful sleep. The last two caused tossing and muscular and mental restlessness.

A secondary observation by Dr. Laird and Miss Drexel, not related closely to the points under discussion here, was that sleepers divide themselves into two classes. Diminuendo sleepers are most restless in the first hour of sleep. As the hours progress they become more and more quiet. Crescendo sleepers quickly fall into quiet sleep and, as the hours go by, they become increasingly restless. In studying the effects of an evening meal, or of a visit to the movies, or of an evening of excited play, it is necessary to know which type the child studied belongs to.

EPILEPTIC.

PROVISIONS OF WILL.

Chicago, April 14. — [Legal Friend of the People.] — A relative was asked to sign a will as witness without knowing the contents of said will. Was this legal? 2. If she signed this will is she not entitled to know the contents of it? 3. It is now a year since this will was in the Probate court and the utmost secrecy has surrounded it. People that are vitally interested have been unable to find out anything about it. 4. A check in the city hall records shows the will listed but [5] nothing can be found out as to its contents. 6. Can you inform me how I can find out for this relative what this will actually contained? J. M. H.

1. Yes. The witness is entitled to read the attestation clause. That clause ordinarily recites merely that the testator executed the instrument in the presence of witnesses and declared it to be his will.
2. No.
3. If the will has been filed in court, any person interested in the estate can examine it in the clerk's office.
4. Wills are filed in the county building rather than the city hall.
5. Ordinarily, by delivering a receipt to the vault clerk, one can secure the will for examination. It seems probable that you have not applied to the right place.

INSURANCE.

Chicago, April 13. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—I carry a policy with a sick and accident insurance company. My husband has been gone for twenty years. I don't know where he is and haven't heard from him. They offered me $26.00 for the policy. It was taken out over thirty years ago. I would like to know if I could get the full amount. E. F.

Some policies contain express wording against collection based on a mere presumption of death. In general, your original rights depended on the wording of the policy. It seems probable that if the company was liable, your rights have been barred by lapse of time.

WIFE'S CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, April 13.—[Friend of the People.]—I came here from Scotland eight years ago. A year ago I was married to an Irishman who came to this country eleven years ago and was naturalized five years ago. Does his naturalization make me a citizen or will I have to take out papers? E. H.

Naturalization of the husband on or after Sept. 22, 1922, does not confer citizenship upon the wife. However, the writer may apply for naturalization without having a declaration of intention [first paper], as she is the wife of a citizen.

FRIEND OF THE INSURED

The Tribune herewith presents the third of a series of articles on insurance. All phases of insurance will be discussed. Subsequently questions from readers of the column will be answered. Address inquiries to the Friend of the Insured.

With the approach of summer and vacation time the highways soon will be crowded with automobile tourists speeding to all parts of the country. This interstate travel presents one of the most serious situations confronting the motorist, and is due entirely to the lack of uniform state laws.

The best automobile liability policies available specifically exclude coverage while the car is driven or manipulated "by any person under the age fixed by law, or under fourteen years of age in any event." There are several states which have no law regulating the age of drivers and one with a minimum age of twelve years.

Since the policy specifies a minimum of fourteen years of age for drivers, the danger arises in all states having a minimum age of over fourteen. In other words, a driver fourteen years of age is permitted to operate a machine in accordance with the policy provisions covering minimum age and age fixed by law in some states, but may suddenly cross the border into a state having an older minimum age. This would be in direct violation of that part of policy relative to "age fixed by law" and leave the car owner unknowingly without protection under his policy.

On long trips it is not uncommon for fourteen year old children to be permitted to drive. In the majority of states that is in violation of the law and leaves the car owner subject to heavy judgments in the event of accident, despite the fact that automobile liability insurance has been provided but vitiated through his ignorance of the discrepancy in the various state laws.

An extremely dangerous exclusion has been slipped into some policies which excludes coverage while the car is driven or operated by "any person prohibited by law" from driving an automobile. Inasmuch as some states call for a driver's license and a few even require a chauffeur to secure a license, the policyholder driving in these states if not equipped with the proper permits would of course be "prohibited by law" from driving, and therefore have no insurance protection under a policy containing this exclusion.

As an aid to motorists, we have prepared a handy sized card showing the minimum age limit for all states, which may be secured free of charge by addressing the Friend of the Insured upon receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

THE BIRTHPLACE OF RELIGIOUS LIBERTY.

Chicago, April 14.—The New York correspondent who is so exercised over the Calvert commemoration in connection with Maryland's tercentenary rather lets herself in for a countercharge of error, to put it mildly. Relying on the findings of one or two writers of history is not conducive to a correct interpretation of events. To present the historical evidence proving Maryland's claim as the birthplace of religious liberty would, of course, take more space than could be allotted to this column. Suffice it to say that reliable historians do admit Maryland's claim. Bancroft, for one, tells us that "to Cecilius Calvert belongs the honor of being the first in the annals of mankind to make religious freedom the basis of the state." Religious freedom was accorded and achieved from the very foundation of Maryland in 1634, continuing throughout the years following, during which the first Calverts held sway. Catholic and non-Catholic coöperated and dwelt in harmonious accord. History notes that Jews were present, and one was prominent in councils and esteemed as a valuable citizen. Even though the toleration act of 1649 in express terms protects those "who profess Jesus Christ," yet no one was ever molested because of religion without the aggressor paying the legal penalty.

Roger Williams was banished from Rhode Island in 1635, and one of the reasons for this was his protest against the interference of the civil authorities in religious matters. Rhode Island was not founded upon a charter of religious liberty. Religious freedom was not officially granted until the charter of 1663. It is significant that no Catholic settled in Rhode Island until 1680, and in 1719 we find a printed copy of the laws which carries the provision: "All men professing Christianity, save Roman Catholics, have liberty to choose and be chosen to civil and military offices."

Jennie E. Taylor expresses herself with unwarranted acerbity and reveals but a cursory knowledge of history upon this particular subject. It is unthinkable and a most unfair charge that a group such as the Calvert Associates, with their excellent educational, cultural, and religious background, would foist upon the country a commemoration not justified by reliable historical data. If the lady is as sincere and truly American as she presumably believes herself to be, it would be more consistent to grant at least a debatable point to an opponent worthy of credence and respect, unquestionably quite as devoted to American ideals as herself, although one might suspect she has her limitations.

MARY FOOTE COUGHLIN,
Secretary, Chicago Calvert Club.

A FORMER REGULATOR ON REGULATION.

Chicago, April 16.—On Saturday, April 14 last, your paper carried an editorial entitled "No New Deal for the Midwest," in which you commented on the freight rate discrimination against the middle west growing out of the inelastic method of fixing rates. I am in sympathy with the contention; but it is another portion of the editorial that interested me most.

It seems to me that the worst evils of the old railroading practices could have been eliminated by legislation and the public protected against discrimination without turning a large part of management and rate making over to government commissions and bureaus. Certainly the public has never had any adequate compensation in the way of either better service or low rates sufficient to make up for the evils of commission control. Indeed, if the railroads had been forced to meet honest competition instead of hiring lawyers and experts to get them higher rates, they themselves would be better off today. The public would probably have up to date service.

I have served as the head of two regulatory bodies in Illinois—the Illinois commerce commission and the securities department—and I do not have the same faith in government regulation and control that many of the reformers seem to have.

Let there be no mistake. I am not in favor of permitting corporate and financial activities to go unchecked, but I believe restricted legislation with adequate penalties which the people can use to protect themselves will in the long run be better for every one than building up public commissions to interfere with every sort of business. It may be necessary to have an extrajudicial body to substitute for the courts in handling complaints, but that does not require bodies like our various commerce commissions. No man or set of men can successfully run or even partially run as much business as the interstate commerce commission attempts to handle, even if they have the best intentions and have well intentioned and efficient subordinates. The difficulties are increased by the fact that neither the members of such commission nor the subordinates are selected because of their peculiar fitness for their positions.

OPEN PRIVATE AIR MAIL BIDS TODAYATCAPITAL

Postoffice Calls the Lines Reorganized.

Washington, D. C., April 19.—(AP)—Postoffice department officials said tonight they believed most if not all of the 12 companies whose mail contracts were canceled had reorganized and would be found competing for awards again when bids are opened tomorrow.

While preparations to inspect the offers for temporary contracts from private lines went on at the postoffice department, the first assistant postmaster general, W. W. Howes, testified before a senate committee that private contractors did a better job at carrying the mail than the army.

Service Slower Now.

Howes told Senator Austin [Rep., Vt.], a member of the special air mail committee, that air mail transportation under present arrangements was "slower" and that the former system generally was superior.

Army fatalities caused a cessation of mail carrying for a brief period while efforts were made to reduce accident hazards. The schedule was curtailed when the army resumed transportation.

Postoffice department officials admitted the plan to return the mails to private companies within the near future might be balked, if the former contractors refused to bid.

It was said only a comparatively few independent companies were in a position to carry the mails on short notice. Officials added, however, that their information was that most of the former contractors already had reorganized.

Told to Change Officials.

A stipulation of the bidding was that the concerns whose awards were scrapped must rid themselves of officers who participated in the 1930 conference with former Postmaster General Brown.

At that meeting—the government charges—arrangements were made with Brown to divide up the air mail map.

The bids to be opened tomorrow are for a three months' period and cover 21 routes. The time may be extended.

Disclosures before the special senate committee, headed by Senator Black [Dem., Ala.], were responsible primarily for the decision to cancel the contracts of all domestic companies that held the awards.

Blames Rival Air Lines.

Senator Austin, an opponent of contract cancelation, has sought since then to show that independent lines, without awards, brought pressure for the postmaster general's action.

During Howes' testimony, Austin introduced letters which he said were sent from California with ordinary postage on April 2, arriving simultaneously with matter sent from that state by air mail.

Howes was asked about a letter previously read to the committee which said Howes was trying to have a mail route extension from Omaha changed so it would pass through his home town of Huron, S. D.

"Yes, that's one of the tricks of the trade," Howes said. "I had letters from home people for me to see about it—that's true enough."

MACON EXPECTED TO START FLIGHT TO MIAMI TODAY

Sunnyvale, Cal., April 19.—(AP)—The United States navy dirigible Macon, largest in the world, will leave its hangar here at 7 a. m. [Pacific standard time] tomorrow for a flight to Miami, Fla., unless last minute weather reports are unfavorable.

Commander A. H. Dresel was informed today that weather conditions along the southern transcontinental route were rapidly improving and gave orders to prepare for taking off in the morning. Officers said the dirigible is expected to be in the air two hours after it is brought out of its hangar.

The cruise, which has been postponed several times awaiting "perfect weather," will take the huge ship across the southern tier of states to Miami where she will join the United States fleet in maneuvers in the Atlantic.

CHIEF OF ITALIAN ARMY, 63, WINS PILOT'S LICENSE

ROME, April 19.—The 63 year old Field Marshal Pietro Badoglio, chief of staf of the Italian army and former governor of Libya, was awarded a pilot's license today after going through final tests easily at Centocelle airport.

The elderly soldier did his landing and altitude tests brilliantly and was congratulated by Gen. Valle, undersecretary of state for aviation. Italian aeronautics now has two flying marshals in Air Marshal Italo Balbo and Army Marshal Badoglio.

According to reports from Desenzano on Lake Garda, where the Italian high speed school is maintained, aviation engineers have perfected a new machine in which Sergeant Francisco Agello, who last April broke the world's speed record for hydroplanes [with 433 m. p. h.] will attempt to set a new record.

AIR COURSE FOR LANE HIGH IS M'CAHEY'S PLAN

Plans for development of a department of aviation engineering in Lane Technical High school and for making the institution one of the foremost schools of practical technical work in the nation were announced yesterday by James B. McCahey, president of the board of education.

Mr. McCahey last night sent telegrams to Secretary of War Dern, Secretary of Commerce Roper, and Gen. Douglas McArthur, army chief of staf, asking them to send representatives here for a meeting of school officials and Chicago industrial leaders Tuesday to discuss the proposal for aviation courses and to advise on the purchase of equipment for the new Lane to be opened in the fall.

The conference Tuesday will include representatives of ten leading Chicago industrial institutions who have been asked to advise concerning the purchase of shop equipment. The board has appropriated approximately $850,000 for this purpose.

"Lane should graduate students equipped to go into the industrial field," McCahey explained. "If men actually working in the field agree to give their counsel to the school, it will mean that the courses can be designed to give the greatest possible amount of practical training."

Yesterday a committee of school board members and school engineers met to discuss the Lane school equipment problem and to analyze a survey of equipment used in other city schools, some of which may be moved to Lane. This committee will work with the industrialists to meet Tuesday.

M'CAHEY SEEKS SUPERVISOR FOR SCHOOL LUNCHES

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, yesterday requested the Chicago Association of Restaurateurs to aid the board in selection of a supervisor for the 51 public school lunchrooms. The move followed a decision of the board in March to remove control of the lunchrooms from the educational department.

Martin Harding, president of the restaurateurs organization, has been asked to name a committee to recommend a restaurant operator for the lunchrooms and a plan for centrally operating them with the greatest efficiency and lowest possible cost, Mr. McCahey said.

SAYS 1927 LEVEL RECOVERY MEANS 7 MILLION IDLE

Philadelphia, Pa., April 19.—(AP)—Prof. A. A. Berle, former adviser to the Recontruction Finance corporation, says the United States will have 7,000,000 unemployed when recovery reaches the 1927 level and "fireworks" may result.

"That will leave about 20 per cent of the population asking why they shouldn't be taken care of when other people have plenty," he told University of Pennsylvania students yesterday.

"Unemployed people have a tendency to mobilize. Trouble has been averted because we have not had military training in this country. We are entering a new transition period. If handled badly it may be accompanied by fireworks."

NAZIS CELEBRATE RISE OF POWER OVER BALKANS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 19.—The arrival here of Premier Nicholas Mushanoff of Bulgaria was celebrated in great style today as heralding a new era of trade expansion and increased political influence in southeastern Europe.

Officially the premier came to Berlin to negotiate a new trade agreement with Germany. Actually his presence marks an important chapter in Germany's endeavor to gain supremacy in southeast Europe, with Austria her ultimate goal. It is held significant that Chancellor Hitler first made concessions to Poland which were climaxed by the German-Polish pact in order to devote his entire attention to the southeastern expansion.

Mushanoff is negotiating a $12,000,000 deal with the Germans. He wants to sell them last year's and this year's Bulgarian tobacco crops and the Germans have offered to pay for the tobacco with railroad equipment. The Germans and Bulgarians are also planning other similar barter agreements.

In the political discussions Hitler is expected to try to induce the Bulgarians to coöperate more closely with their fellow Slavs in Jugo-Slavia and to forget their resentment at the Serb victory in the post-war peace treaties. In long conferences held at the chancellory in Berlin a few weeks ago between Hitler and King Boris the possibility of a realignment of powers in the Balkans was discussed and King Boris rather fancied himself in the rôle of "reconciler and unifier of Slav powers in the Balkans," as suggested by Hitler.

The German view is that a Jugo-Slav-Bulgarian rapprochement would stabilize conditions in the Balkans and at the same time reduce the power of the little entente [Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Rumania] and France as well as that of Italy in southeastern Europe.

Sees Nazis Aided in Austria.

At the same time a strengthening of Germany's position in the southeast would help the Nazis' position in Austria, whose fate is so close to the Austrian born Hitler's heart. The chancellor is fanatically opposed to the return of the Hapsburgs in Austria and has found the Jugo-Slavs eager to coöperate with him in an anti-Hapsburg policy.

Premier Mussolini of Italy has hoped that Queen Joanna of Bulgaria, daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, would be able to prevent a rapprochement of Serbs and Blugarians and give the Italians a chance for supremacy in the Balkans. But Joanna is half Slav. Her mother was a daughter of Nikita of Montenegro, as fervent a Serb as ever there was. No one was more pleased than Joanna when her husband, King Boris, and King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia met recently and ostentatiously kissed in public to display the newborn Serbo-Bulgarian love.

The Jugo-Slavs also are completing negotiations for a trade pact with Germany along the lines of barter and quotas. The Jugo-Slav citizen whom the Germans sentenced to a long term in prison because he had a small sum in a foreign bank and failed to declare it to the Germans was released to soothe the ruffled feelings of the Serbs and clear the atmosphere for negotiations.

Turkey and Greece also figure in Hitler's southeastern policy. Berlin today promoted an impressive parade in front of the Turkish embassy where the Turkish ambassador, Kemalettin Sami Pasha, died early this week. Reichswehr, storm troopers and police escorted the coffin to the station and a salvo of three volleys was fired.

END ALL GERMAN STATES' AVIATION ADMINISTRATIONS

BERLIN, April 19.—(AP)—Commercial and civil aviation administrations in the individual German states were abolished today and a uniform reich's aviation department was created.

The decree was promulgated by Wilhelm Goering, minister without portfolio and premier of Prussia. As minister of air, Goering will be chief of the new department, with some 16 subdepartments in the largest German cities responsible to him.

DOLLFUSS CALLS FOR SHOWDOWN; AUSTRIA NERVOUS

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

VIENNA, April 19.—Definite evidence of serious dissension in government ranks brought forth the declaration in sources close to Chancellor Dollfuss tonight that he feels the time has come for a showdown and that there cannot be three dictators in Austria.

The dynamic little leader means to insist, therefore, that the Fascist Heimwehr [home guard], commanded by his two main co-workers, Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg and Vice Chancellor Emil Fey, accede to its absorption in Dolfuss' fatherland front and to demand strict adherence to his leadership.

Many rumors swept Vienna as a result. Most of them were in connection with the impending return from Rome of Prince von Starhemberg, who played an important rôle in the recent Socialist civil war and since has been a prominent figure in politics.

Talks with Mussolini.

The prince talked with Premier Mussolini yesterday about Austrian and Italian Fascism and later said the forthcoming Austrian constitution will draw its inspiration from the latter creed.

Semi-officially it was said Von Starhemberg will take some post in the government; one unofficial version was that he will become vice chancellor.

Such a development, however, would touch upon the fate of the third triumvir, Fey, who, according to some reports, will become minister of defense and according to others, will be eliminated entirely from the Dollfuss cabinet.

Devoted followers of the vice chancellor among the subordinate Heimwehr leaders are furious at what they consider an intrigue against Fey.

They are particularly nettled by Dollfuss' week-end announcement that he had reached a "whole agreement" with Von Starhemberg for subordinating the Heimwehr to the fatherland front. Astonishment was particularly great in the Tyrol, where fatherland front meetings were reported raided by Heimwehr men who accused Christian Social politicians of trying to sabotage the Fascist movement and erect a purely clerical autocracy.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, April 19.—The Nazi principle of imprisoning their political opponents for indefinite periods in concentration camps without trial was put in force in Austria today. Eighty-one senators, members of the city of Vienna's parliament, councilors, and other prominent Socialists and Anti-Clericals who have been in police cells ever since February, but against whom no charges have been made, were sent to the Woellersdorf concentration camp. Many Nazis are now being released from the camp.

Among those in this afternoon's transport were Otto Gloeckel, member of parliament and organizer of the system of modern education in Vienna; Senator Schaerff, president of the Bank Officials' union and a member of parliament from Alina; Ald. Richter, organizer of the municipal model dwelling house system; Herr Leutner, a leader of the Anti-Clerical Union of Free Thinkers, and the leading Socialist lawyer, Dr. Schoenhof.

No Question About Ability, Commons Told.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 19.—An appeal to the British government to meet its just obligations and pay its debt to the United States was made in the house of commons tonight by Col. Josiah E. Wedgwood, Laborite, who strongly deplored Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain's failure to include any provision for such a payment in the new budget. An instalment of $85,670,675 is due June 15.

Wedgwood described the budget speech as "the first in which a chancellor of this country has turned down the idea of honoring its obligations." He questioned whether the house was really cheered "at the relegation of Britain with her great traditions" to the status of a backward nation.

Would Look U. S. "In Face."

The Laborite maintained that he would rather lose the proposed reduction of six pence in a pound sterling on the income tax "and be able to look America in the face." He insisted there is no question now as to Britain's ability to pay.

"We could pay, but do not want to," he said.

The chancellor had realized a surplus of about $155,000,000, Wedgwood continued, and it would have been a great thing, though undoubtedly unpopular, if he had paid the money to those to whom it rightly belonged.

"No Worse Off."

"We should have been no worse off by that transaction," Wedgwood added. "America would have the gold and would be able to buy goods and services from us and import things she could not buy at present."

He expressed hope that the chancellor would assure the house when winding up the debate that there is some prospect of Britain honoring the debt.

The appeal remained unanswered, however, for Chamberlain in rounding off the discussion carefully avoided any direct reference to the delicate question of Britain's obligations to the United States.

GOEBBELS TELLS WHY GERMAN NEWSPAPERS ARE DOING SO POORLY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 19.—The dying out of newspapers in Nazi Germany was blamed on German newspapermen and their lack of "courage to criticize constructively" by Germany's minister of propaganda and enlightenment, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, tonight. He did not mention abolition of freedom of the press as a factor.

He denounced German journalists and lashed the eagerness with which scribes had rushed to typewriters to assert in print that everything is superlatively beautiful in Germany.

"Dignified reserve would have been more pleasant to contemplate," Goebbels told them. "We want to reform the press not through newspapers, but through reform of the spirit and character of the men running the newspapers. Constructive criticism is necessary and desirable, but the makers of public opinion must serve the state wholeheartedly."

GERMANY MARKS HITLER'S 45TH BIRTHDAY TODAY

BERLIN, April 19.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler celebrates his 45th birthday tomorrow. By his own request there will be no great public demonstrations and no special radio programs. On the other hand, all public buildings in Germany are required to fly flags. Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller has ordered all churches to ring their bells at noon.

The chancellor already is the recipient of many congratulatory messages. The first was from President Paul von Hindenburg. Gen. Werner von Blomberg conveyed the army's greetings. The barracks of the 19th Bavarian infantry regiment, where Hitler as a volunteer underwent his first military training, will be ceremoniously renamed the Adolf Hitler barracks.

The congress in the reichstag of the Nazi Society for the Care of War Victims announced the society's birthday gift to Hitler will be a home for those blinded in the war. Hitler also was made a citizen of the Saar town of Neuenkirchen as a birthday present. The Saar government commission has prohibited the display of flags for the chancellor's birthday.

Nazis Publish Name of Girl for Going with Jew

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 19.—The name of a 17 year old German girl residing in Oberamstadt, Hessen, was widely published by the German press today because she permitted herself to become intimate with a Jew. "By not resisting his advances, she proved her lack of sense of duty toward the German race," the official announcement said.

Stop Irritating Your Digestive Tract

Avoid Laxatives That Constipate. Nature's Way — a Gentle Flush

Medicine-laxatives—no matter how pleasant tasting—often cause the intestinal muscles to become sluggish, lazy. For most of them work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract.

PLUTO WATER is a saline mineral water—not a medicine-laxative. It owes its speed to the fact that it promptly opens the pylorus valve leading to the small intestine—flushes both intestines gently and completely. It is non-irritating—cannot give you the laxative habit.

The proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water is practically tasteless. The same dose each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour. Two sizes: Splits, 25c. Large bottles (3 times as much), 50c. On sale at drug stores everywhere.

CONFUSION ENDED ON BRAN

New Ruling Makes Labels Accurate

To protect the buying public, the United States Food and Drug Administration has advised that every package of cereal labeled "Bran" state on the label exactly what it contains.

Before this ruling, even part-bran products were sometimes mistakenly referred to as "Bran." It was not easy for the purchaser to distinguish between a cereal that was entirely bran, or all bran with flavoring, and another that was mostly wheat.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is labeled "ALL-BRAN Deliciously Flavored with Malt, Sugar and Salt," a statement which describes the product fairly and honestly.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has won millions of friends because it corrects most types of common constipation safely and pleasantly. It furnishes generous "bulk"—needed to promote normal elimination.

However, ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all." Certain types of intestinal disorders should be treated only on a physician's advice.

When you buy a bran cereal for the relief of constipation, read the wording on the package. The facts are there! Make sure by asking for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It furnishes "bulk" in a form for satisfactory results.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

No more fussing with the furnace in shifty spring weather since gas heat came to the home of Fred A. Johnson, 218 S. First Avenue, Geneva, Illinois

"Now that we have gas heat the house stays spic and span," says Mrs. Johnson. Here she is showing how clean her walls are after months of heating.

WARM one day, chilly the next . . . it's all the same in the Johnson home since they installed gas heat.

"With our old heating unit we were always guessing about the weather," says Mr. Johnson, "and the house was either too hot or too cold. But that's all over now. Gas heat regulates itself, and keeps the house at the correct temperature night and day, no matter how quickly the temperature changes outside.

"And now that we have gas heat, the house stays spic and span. It's wonderful to get rid of all that soot, dirty ashes, and furnace muss."

Thousands switch to gas heat

Imagine your home free from soot, dust, dirt, and furnace drudgery! Imagine getting just the temperatures you want, night and day, by adjusting a little thermostat on the wall. Why put up with furnace worries any longer, when rates for gas heat are so low! Think of it—gas heating rates are now only half of what they were during the 1930-31 heating season.

And—you can try gas heat without investing one cent! We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment, which amounts to $3 a month for the nine heating months—in the average home. This charge is included in the bill for the gas you use. You try it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas, we will take it out at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But—if you decide to keep gas heat—as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

Don't delay! It is pure folly not to investigate this liberal offer on gas heat when it brings so many comforts and conveniences. Call your local gas company for full information.

STARTLING TRIAL OFFER!

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense . . . and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

YOU INVEST NOTHING!

Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not—and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed—AT OUR EXPENSE. We make this offer because of our confidence in the perfection of gas heat.

What others say about gas heat:

"Gas heat?—We wouldn't have any other. Gas heat saved us at least $30 on redecorating bills this Spring. And another thing about gas heat—there's no work, or trouble, or furnace worry."

Emma Levinson
1004 Oliver Avenue, Aurora, Ill.

"There is nothing that I can think of that gives the comfortable, efficient, convenient and economical service that my gas heat has given me this season."

S. D. McIntyre
47 North Edison Avenue, Elgin, Ill.

"Gas heat has proven more satisfactory than either coal or oil. The basement has never been so clean since I built the house as it is now."

John McKean

High Accuracy in Gas Meters

The meter which measures your monthly consumption of gas is an accurate measuring device, with a proved record of faithful operation.

Your meter was manufactured to meet accuracy tests specified by the United States Bureau of Standards. Before it was installed in your home, it was tested by an inspector for the City of Chicago, who placed his seal of approval on it.

One reason for its accuracy is its simplicity of construction. A hermetically sealed mechanism which may be compared to a pump in action, it can register only when gas is actually passing through it, because the pressure of the gas provides the small amount of power necessary to operate it.

To maintain its high standard of accuracy, your meter is periodically removed for testing and repairing, which is done whether or not it is found to be strictly necessary.

STUDY 2 PLANS FOR CURBING OF YOUNG MORONS

One Is Compulsory, Other Voluntary.

Psychiatrists called to aid the Chicago schools in curbing juvenile delinquency yesterday began examination of two plans which may form the basis for a survey of the schools and treatment of child mental cases.

The systems first under consideration are that used in Los Angeles and Berkeley, Cal., and the Minneapolis and Newark plan, both calling for widespread surveys of school children. The first is compulsory and the second voluntary. It was indicated that a choice of plans might hinge on this point.

Dr. Ralph C. Hammil, head of a subcommittee of the psychiatrists' conference summoned by Supt. William J. Bogan, said that other systems also would be studied, and that experts connected with the various systems would be interviewed. The effort being undertaken by the authorities is largely the result of the death of Dorette Zietlow, 2½ years old, who died of hunger and exposure after she had been kidnaped and abandoned by George Rogalski, 13 years old. Doctors have termed George "a moral imbecile."

To Study Los Angeles Plan.

The proposal first to go before Dr. Hammil's group and the subcommittee under Dr. Meyer Solomon is the Los Angeles plan, which provides for districting the city under coördinating councils representing schools, courts, police, and welfare agencies, and requires psychiatric surveys of all children to be made by the teachers.

Kenyon J. Scudder, in charge of the Los Angeles system, issued a statement there yesterday which declared that the plan had reduced the number of juvenile cases going to the courts by 800 per cent in many districts and that the cost of the new plan was lower than treatment discarded when it was adopted in 1932. The system was used successfully in Berkeley, Cal., for 10 years, he said.

"The Los Angeles plan recognizes child delinquency as a community problem," Scudder said, "and by calling in all agencies in a coördinating council it prevents overlapping of work, provides for interchange of juvenile records, and precludes the possibility of abnormal children who are not behavior problems continuing untreated as potential dangers to other children."

Minneapolis Plan Voluntary.

"We are much interested in the Los Angeles plan," Dr. Solomon said yesterday, "and we hope it will provide some basis for our work here. However, we particularly like one feature of the Minneapolis system—it does not force examination of all children. Parents often object to this."

The Minneapolis plan was described by Dr. Herbert Chamberlain, assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Chicago, who headed the Minneapolis bureau of child study for five years.

"The system calls for voluntary surveys of children by teachers, parents, welfare workers, or other agencies," he explained. "The report on the child is referred to the bureau's clinic, which has trained psychiatrists on its staf. While surveys are not compulsory, we found that the reports were very complete. Examination records are kept confidential. The system differs from present Chicago methods chiefly in the presence of trained psychiatrists and provision for following up the cases through the clinical work. The first year of its operation it reduced the number of juvenile cases going to the courts from an average of nearly 40 a month to 10 a year."

None of the four psychiatrists selected as chairmen of subcommittees under the general conference had selected committee members yesterday. They declared that they expected to have this task completed and the work well under way before the week-end.

TWO CONFESS FORGING RELIEF GROCER ORDERS

Two former employés of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission pleaded guilty to charges of forging relief orders before Judge Donald S. McKinlay in the Criminal court yesterday.

The two men, Paul Flower, 5036 Sheridan road, and Daniel W. O'Brien, 4039 Parker avenue, ex-clerks in the Wicker Park relief station, confessed to receiving $40 a month for a year for forging relief orders, then selling them to grocers who cashed them.

After the defendants pleaded guilty, they filed an application for probation. The judge deferred sentence and action on their probation plea till April 27. Assistant State's Attorney Julius L. Sherwin and Assistant Attorney General Harry Muskat prosecuted the case.

FIVE SEIZED AS POLICE SLAYERS; THREE CONFESS

Capt. James L. Mooney of the Wabash avenue police announced last night that five Negroes under arrest had been identified as the slayers of Policeman John Officer, colored, who was shot down last Friday when he interrupted a burglary of a shoe store at 302 East 43d street. Three of the men have confessed.

Capt. Mooney assigned Lieut. Eugene Barry and a squad to the task of finding Officer's slayers. Early yesterday they raided a house at 1928 Maypole avenue and arrested Alonzo McNeil, 28 years old, first of the Negroes. McNeil admitted he was implicated in the burglary, but denied shooting the policeman. He asserted the fatal shot had been fired by George Walker, 21 years old, 335 East Garfield boulevard.

This place also was raided. Walker and two companions, Herman Clement, 23 years old, and Henry Moore, 21 years old, were arrested there. The fifth member of the band, Noble Easley, 23 years old, was arrested at his home, 5237 Prairie avenue.

Walker and Moore confessed that they were at the shoe store and that Walker fired at Officer. They declared, however, that McNeil also shot at him. Easley and Clement maintained their innocence.

TRIO ACCUSED IN CHILD TORTURE CASE SENTENCED

Thomas B. McDonald, 29 years old, his wife, Nellie May, 28, and Mrs. Nellie Gobovic, 39, all of the Aurora region, were sentenced yesterday by Judge O. C. Allen at Geneva on charges growing out of the alleged torture of the McDonalds' 7 year old daughter, Mildred.

McDonald was sentenced to one year at the Vandalia state farm and Mrs. Gobovic to one year in the women's prison at Dwight. They were found guilty of adultery. Mrs. McDonald was sentenced to six months in jail on a charge of abandoning Mildred and two other children.

The case against the three started when McDonald and Mrs. Gobovic were accused of compelling little Mildred to sit on a hot stove because they thought she had told a lie. School officials learned of this when Mildred fainted in classroom later. They caused the arrest of her parents and the other woman.

FILM ACTRESS SAYS DOWLING ABDUCTED HER

Los Angeles, Cal., April 19.—[Special.]—At the preliminary hearing of R. C. "Danny" Dowling, film studio dance director, Marjorie Crawford, actress-aviatrix, today testified she was adbucted from her Hollywood home March 30 by Dowling and taken to Yuma, Ariz., where he tried to force her to marry him under threat of death. Dowling's hearing will determine if he shall be bound over to trial in Criminal court on a charge of kidnaping with a deadly weapon. Miss Crawford admitted she had written Dowling two fervent love letters, which were introduced, and had planned to marry him.

Animals in Line

Chicago will see a circus parade tonight when the Hagenbeck-Wallace procession, with animals, acrobats, bands, calliopes and the rest, tours the loop beginning at 8 o'clock.

Forty elephants in line will be one of the features of the parade, and open cages displaying the lions, tigers, panthers and the rest of the animals will be along with them.

Starting from the Coliseum, where the circus opens performances tomorrow, the parade will go up Wabash avenue to 9th street, over to State street, then up State street to Adams, where it will switch over to La Salle and take that street to Wacker drive, east on Wacker drive to State street, south on State to 9th street, then east to Wabash and south on Wabash to the Coliseum.

OPERATE THIS MORNING ON SON OF JOHN FACTOR

Jerome Factor will undergo an operation for appendicitis in the Passavant hospital this morning. The youth is the son of John Factor, stock promoter, who is sought by Great Britain for trial on swindling charges. Young Factor was taken to the hospital last night and was visited by Dr. Karl Meyer, who will perform the operation this morning.

The youth was kidnaped and held eight days a year ago, but his release was effected, it was said, without payment of ransom. Later his father was the victim of kidnapers and his testimony resulted in the conviction of four Touhy gangsters who are now serving 99 year terms in prison.

The elder Factor is in technical custody at the Congress hotel, having been committed for extradition by the federal district court. The secretary of state, however, has said he will not issue a warant of surrender until there is no possibility of a retrial for the kidnapers and Factor cannot be extradited after he is held sixty days. Present indications therefore are that Factor will not be returned.

WARNS AGAINST NRA TEACHINGS IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Cites the Variations from Basic Economics.

A warning that too much stress on the National Recovery Act and the New Deal in high school teaching may lead to a neglect of instruction in the fundamental principles of economics was sounded yesterday at the convention of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools at the Stevens hotel. The speaker was G. W. Willett, principal of the Lyons Township High school of La Grange.

Willett prefaced his remarks by disclosing that he had sent out questionnaires to 354 schools in twenty central western states.

Reports of 80 Variations.

"One cannot but wonder," asserted Willett, "if there may possibly be too great emphasis on the current situation, that is, if some of the emotional upset may not tend to cause neglect of emphasis on fundamental principles in economics."

He reported that 80 schools had announced variation in the teaching of economics as a result of the NRA. In most cases, Willet said, such variations consisted of the introduction of current materials and a general broadening of the course. In St. Joseph, Mo., is was found that a study of the NRA was compulsory.

Other high school courses are being changed through the influence of the New Deal, the speaker said. Modifications are under way in the teaching of sociology and several schools are now using New Deal literature for this subject.

"Sociology probably represents the teachers' ideas as possibly tempered by that of the administration," said Willett.

Revising Civics Courses.

Another subject upon which teaching practice is undergoing a change is civics. Willett said that 50 schools were now revamping civics courses or introducing new materials.

"Certainly the social flux has made school people aware of the great unrest," said Willett. "It is to be hoped that the wheat exceeds the chaff in much that is now being forced into these curricula."

Willett declared that industrial or vocational education for a changing social and economic world posed perplexing questions.

"If training is specific will there be calls for the partciular skill which is secured?" asked Willett. "If training is general will the educated individual be sufficiently skilled to meet the demands for specific positions which may be available?

"In prosperous times there will usually be a demand for skilled workers. In a period of depression the more specifically the individual has been educated the greater the likelihood of there being no demand for his services. Hence, educators are placed in a quandary when vocational education comes to the fore.

FATHER MAGUIRE NAMED MEMBER OF LABOR BOARD

The Rt. Rev. J. W. R. Maguire, C. S. V., president of St. Viator college of Bourbannais, near Kankakee, was appointed a member of the Chicago regional labor board representing labor yesterday, according to dispatches from Washington. The appointment was made by President Roosevelt. Father Maguire becomes one of a group of sixteen representatives of industry and labor who cooperate with five impartial board members here.

Father Maguire has been president of St. Viator college for six years. He has for many years been active in labor affairs.

PANAMA CANAL AWAITS 'ATTACK' OF 'ENEMY' NAVY

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUARRY HEIGHTS, C. Z., April 19.—Giant searchlights swept the skies tonight as the United States army, defender of the Panama canal, maintained a constant vigil for the attack of the "hostile" fleet in war conditioned tactical maneuvers. Dreadnaughts, aircraft carriers, cruisers, and destroyers are reported to have moved into the canal's submarine defense zone this afternoon.

All day the troops of the Panama canal department under the command of Maj. Gen. Harold B. Fiske jogged into position ready to play the rôles assigned to them in the army and navy maneuvers which come to a climax Saturday.

Engineers Take Up Arms.

Engineers of the 11th regiment discarded their picks and machetes and with bayoneted rifles trekked along with the doughboys to act as infantrymen. Members of the 1st Coast Artillery journeyed from the Atlantic side stations to reinforce the 4th Coast Artillery in manning the Balboa harbor defenses. Units of the 33d Infantry took up positions along the Pacific coast ready to repel landing parties. They were assisted by batteries of 3 inch howitzers from the 2d Field Artillery.

On hills surrounding the locks, at isolated points in the interior and on lonely beaches members of the antiaircraft intelligence service scanned the skies with powerful binoculars or listened with delicate sound detection apparatus for the first faint hum that will betray the presence of "enemy" aircraft.

Meanwhile, grimy mechcanics at Albrook and France air fields and the fleet air base tuned up speedy pursuit planes and lumbering bombers which offer the first line of defense against the attacking force.

Three Means of "Attack."

The army air corps is being assisted in this sham warfare by submarines and aircraft from Coco Solo. Their primary function is to locate the fleet and if possible ascertain its course of action.

Three means of "attack" are open to the fleet: An air raid, landing of marines, actual or simulated, on the flanks of the fortifications, and direct naval bombardment or a combination of all or any.

New York Bus Line Faces Citation for NRA Violation

New York, April 19.—[Special.]—Ben Golden, executive secretary of the regional labor board, said today that within a few days the board would call upon the Fifth Avenue Coach company to comply with the decision of the national labor board in Washington requiring the company to reinstate a number of its employées found to have been discharged for union activities. He said that in the event the company declined to comply with the decision, the regional board would take active steps.

THREE SLAYERS DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR AT DAWN

Francis, wrote notes to Acting Warden George Gibson, thanking him for his kindness to them. During the night they spoke with Frank Roti, chairman of the spiritual works committee of correctional institutions of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul; the Rev. Henry J. Sandvose, a Lutheran minister, and the Rev. Ernest Kaufhold and the Rev. Patrick Malone, Catholic priests. Dale is a Lutheran, Scheck a Catholic, and Francis a Catholic convert. After these talks the killers were treated to a special dinner. Scheck did not eat.

Kills Policeman in Courtroom.

Scheck was sentenced to death for the murder of Policeman John G. Sevick in the courtroom of Judge Charles P. Molthrop in the Criminal court last July 24. At that time Scheck was awaiting trial on a murder charge. Some one smuggled a revolver to him in the detention cell. A moment later he attempted an escape and shot Sevick when the latter tried to stop him.

Scheck's daring crime resulted in the court's war on crime, and he was among the first hit by the reaction. He was convicted early in August.

Next to be tried in the crime war was George Dale. He and two confederates, Mrs. Eleanor Berendt Jarman, known as the "blonde tigress," and Leo Minneci, were accused of shooting to death Gustave Hoeh, 81 years old, during a robbery in his haberdashery at 5948 Division street on Aug. 4. The jury promptly sentenced Dale, the actual killer, to the chair, and Mrs. Jarman and Minneci to 199 years each in prison. They are now serving their sentences.

Kills Driver in Holdup.

Joseph Francis felt the crime drive on Sept. 18 when a jury sentenced him to death for the murder of Joseph Hartel, 3425 North Irving avenue, a milk wagon driver. Francis held up Hartel at 50th street and Forrestville avenue on Aug. 2 and shot Hartel three times as he ran away.

Two other men convicted during the crime war have already been executed. They were Ross King, 34 years old, slayer of Policeman Harry Redlich, and Morris Cohen, 38 years old, a barber.

Cohen died in the chair Oct. 13 last for the murder of Policeman Joseph Hastings during a robbery on Navy pier. King died three days later. He shot Policeman Redlich during a hold-up at 9 South Kedzie avenue.

2 STORES ROBBED BY QUICK CHANGE BANDIT AND PALS

Three bandits, one of whom specializes in quick change disguise, held up two department stores on the northwest side last night and took a total of $431.

They first appeared at the Law-Mora store at 5908 Lawrence avenue, and took $231 after theatening Sam Tauman, the owner; his son, Roger, and Mrs. Morris Scherr and her two sons. They noticed that the leader, who carried a shotgun, had lampblack on his face for a disguise.

Fifteen minutes later the trio entered at Siegel's store, 5612 Milwaukee avenue. There they got $200, after menacing Meyer Siegel, the owner, eight clerks, and 40 customers. This time the leader didn't have lampblack on his face. Instead he wore heavy rimmed goggles. But the victims could see spots of lampblack behind his ears which he had neglected to remove.

KILLS SELF OVER HEADACHE.

Geneseo, Ill., April 19.—[Special.]—Harry Felger, 72, died early this morning of a bullet wound, self-inflicted April 17. He complained of terrific pain in the head before he turned the small caliber revolver on himself.

April 18, 1934.

FOR several days now Sleezer has been putting on a sort of miniature circus parade in the fields and scaring the meadow larks and the mourning doves. The cause of this disturbance has been the hooking up of the big tractor to a double disc, and then hitching a heavy spike drag to this outfit. When Sleezer gets the tractor motor snorting and then starts marching across an old cornfield with the dust rolling into the air, there isn't any doubt about the progress being made here on the experimental farm.

Recently there has been a lot of work getting in a planting of oats, which has called for a parade of machinery. Guenther and Louis Thurow handled the seeding with a queer looking broadcaster which appears to be a glorified coffee grinder that throws oats hither and yon as the wagon to which it is attached goes across the fields. When the oats have been broadcast by this outfit up comes the tractor, disc and spike drag combination, which cuts up the ground, smooths it and thus puts the seed beneath the surface. This double disc is an efficient arrangement of round steel plates which are sharp and cut into the ground very easily. After being used in an 18 acre field they have a polish on them that would make any camper working on his tinware around a campfire quite envious. Due to the lack of heavy spring rains it has been easy to get work done in the fields. However, this dry spell shouldn't last much longer, according to the boys here on the farm, because rainfall is needed.

There is one hen on the place which is sort of high-hatting the rest of her friends these days. She's assumed a rather distant air since Rawlings picked her out for a special job. This particular hen has been given three wild goose eggs to hatch. There are five Barred Rock hens near this "special," but they are at work hatching out chicken eggs in the ordinary routine.

It was necessary to start a Barred Rock hatching goose eggs because a stray dog attacked a nesting goose, injured her leg, and, of course, caused the abandonment of her nest. Rawlings picked up the goose eggs and decided to hatch them under a barnyard hen.

Two more opossums have been caught in live traps near the duck and goose pond. One of these traps which Rawlings watches over fooled a gray squirrel. It was madder than a hornet when Rawlings came around and let it go again.

Jack and Gene, the two work horses which usually are teamed up together, had a quick job to do yesterday. Guenther was looking over the pigs in the yard when he noticed a sow that is due to farrow carrying straw in her mouth to a quiet corner of the yard. Guenther quickly hitched up the two horses, attached a chain to a hoghouse and skidded it around to a convenient location. He then herded the sow into this house so she will have a safe, secluded place for her family of porkers.

REJECTS UNION PLEA TO ANNUL RIVALS' CONTRACT

The coal labor board of arbitration yesterday refused the request of the United Mine Workers of America for setting aside the contract of the Rex mine, near Eldorado, Ill., with the more recently organized Progressive miners' union. The United Mine Workers had sought recognition of their original contract with the mine. The board handed down its decision in Chicago after a long hearing.

The United Mine Workers' complaint charged that the original contract was abrogated by the mine because of picketing and intimidation on the part of the Progressives, and that the miners were thereby forced to work under a contract of a union not of their own choosing.

Both the mine operator and the Progressives, however, declared that the employés of the Rex mine had changed their allegiance voluntarily and are working peacefully and contentedly under the present contract.

COUNTY RELIEF COSTS $796,219 MORE IN MARCH

The number of families on the relief rolls in Cook county during March was increased by 14.9 per cent over the number receiving aid in February. This was disclosed yesterday in a report by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which also revealed the expenditures for March were increased by 31 per cent over those of February.

Cost of relief in March, the report said, amounted to $3,342,330 while the February costs amounted to $2,546,111 or $796,219 less. At the end of February there were 93,817 families on the relief rolls and at the end of March there were 107,757 families.

STATE MEETINGS OF BOTH PARTIES WILL OPEN TODAY

Democrats Ready to Pick Campbell Chairman.

[BY A STAF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., April 19.—[Special.]—Advance guards of the Democratic and Republican state meetings tomorrow arrived here tonight.

The Democrats will put on the best show. Their state central committee will organize, naming Bruce A. Campbell chairman, and the state convention will follow. It is expected to produce resolutions lauding President Roosevelt and the New Deal and present a picture of perfect harmony among all factions.

Cook County Chairman P. A. Nash was due here late tonight for a preconvention conference with Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, the retiring state chairman. Temporary officers for the convention will probably be picked by these veterans and their advisors and preliminary recommendations made for three trustees of the University of Illinois who must be nominated.

Horner to Be Keynoter.

Gov. Horner will be the temporary chairman and convention keynoter. Then, while the committees on credentials and permanent organization are meeting, the delegates will hear from candidates on the state ticket this fall—M. L. Igoe of Chicago, candidate for congressman at large; John Stelle, candidate for state treasurer, and John A. Wieland of Calumet City, candidate for superintendent of public instruction.

Telegrams from Senators James Hamilton Lewis and William H. Dieterich and Congressman at Large Martin Brennan regretting their inability to attend will be read.

From Chicago came word that the county central committee had agreed unanimously to vote under the unit plan in the convention; that is, Chairman Nash will cast one vote for all 10 congressional districts.

Mayor Kelly and other leaders will reach here early tomorrow and the bulk of the Chicago delegates will be on a special train arriving about noon.

Chairman Donovan is retiring from the leadership of the state committee after serving twelve years. He is expected to make the speech nominating Mr. Campbell as his successor.

G. O. P. Hunts a Chairman.

The Republican state central committee probably will meet at one of the hotels to select a chairman. The candidate most mentioned tonight was Justus L. Johnson of Aurora. Chairman Franklin J. Stransky of Savanna is not seeking election.

There was some talk that the Chicago delegation will put up John F. Tyrrel, attorney for the county committee, against Johnson. Edgar B. Elder of Chicago, a Deneen follower and former assistant state's attorney under the Swanson régime, was mentioned for secretary.

The Republicans will not hold their convention until the fall. The meeting place has not been decided.

OWNER OF MINE HELD LIABLE FOR DEATH IN 'WAR'

Springfield, Ill., April 19.—(AP)—The Supreme court today held that a coal company is liable under the workmen's compensation act for the death of a miner killed in the mine war.

The court upheld the award of $2,499 to Mr. and Mrs. James J. Rodems, Springfield, for the death of their son, Vincent, in a mine flareup at Peabody mine No. 7, west of Taylorville, Jan. 3, 1933.

The Peabody Coal company, against which the judgment was rendered by the Sangamon County Circuit court, appealed for a reversal which was denied. The industrial commission had denied that the company was responsible financially.

Rodems, a member of the United Mine Workers of America, was killed by picketers as he came out of Peabody mine No. 7.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. EDMUND HENRY EITEL of Highland Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Elva Riley, to Theodore Brentano Bersbach, son of Mrs. Frank J. Bersbach of Indian Hill, is the interesting announcement that is being made this morning. It is interesting not only to the north shore residents who know these attractive young people personally, but it also is of interest to every one who knows them through their family connections.

Miss Eitel is a grandniece of the beloved poet, James Whitcomb Riley, and her fiancé is a grandson of Judge Theodore Brentano, one of Chicago's well known jurists, and Mrs. Brentano. Judge Brentano served on the bench in Chicago for many years and from 1922 to 1927 was American minister to Hungary.

The announcement will not come as a great surprise to the young people's many friends, for Mr. Bersbach has been a preferred beau of Miss Eitel's ever since she returned a year ago with her family to Highland Park from Charlottesville, Va., where they had lived for three years.

Miss Eitel attended the Roycemore school in Evanston and Mount Vernon seminary in Washington. Mr. Bersbach is a graduate of the North Shore Country Day school in Winnetka and of Williams college, where he was a member of the class of 1932. The wedding is planned for September.

Four Bridal Dinners Tonight.

There are to be four bridal dinners tonight for three brides of tomorrow, Miss Grace Dewes, Miss Priscilla Carver, and Miss Jane Black, but this does not mean, however, that one set of bridesmaids and ushers will have to eat two meals. Two of the dinners are for Miss Dewes; one that her mother, Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, is giving in her Lincoln Park West home for Miss Dewes and her fiancé, George Stickle Oram of Morristown, N. J., and their wedding attendants, and one that Miss Dewes' grandmother, Mrs. Francis Dewes, is giving for the older members of the family and the out of town guests.

Dining on Lincoln Park West will be Miss Dewes and her two sisters, Miss Dorothy Dewes, the honor maid, and Miss Elizabeth Dewes, who is at home from Dobbs Ferry to be bridesmaid; Mr. Oram, his best man, Chester Bayliss Jr., of Rockaway, N. J., and his fiancée, Miss Dorothy Smith of New York; Joseph Oram Jr., John Lincoln and Richard Reeves, who will be ushering tomorrow, and a few of Miss Dewes' most intimate friends.

Mr. Bayliss and Mr. Oram Jr., are cousins of the bridegroom. Among the out-of-town guests who will dine with Mrs. Francis Dewes tonight are the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Richard A. Wooldridge of Baltimore, and her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart Brauns, also of Baltimore; the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. King S. Oram and her brother, Louis Strait. The Rev. John Timothy Stone will read the ceremony at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Dewes home before relatives and close friends, and a small reception will follow. Mr. Oram and his bride will live in Morristown, N. J.

Carver Dinner at Highland Park.

Miss Barbara Bullard, daughter of the Sellar Bullards, is giving the bridal dinner for Miss Carver tonight in the Highland Park home of her parents. Miss Carver, daughter of the Robert K. Carvers of Highland Park, will be married tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in Trinity church to Henry Edmondson Payne, son of Mrs. Henry E. Payne of Charleston, W. Va. Miss Bullard has invited just the bridal party to the dinner.

Miss Carver's attendants are Miss Mary Ann Page of Red Wing, Minn., the honor maid; Miss Janet Bard, Miss Emily Norcross, Miss Janet Willard and Miss Bullard, all of Highland Park, bridesmaids; the bridegroom's brother, Charles K. Payne II., will serve as best man, and his cousin, William Payne, and Lyman McBride of Chicago and Donnally Sheets and Russell Cameron of Charleston will usher. The bridegroom's mother and the best man's wife and two of the bride's aunts, Mrs. Myron E. Battles of Detroit, and Miss Charlotte Bergoust of Tacoma, Wash., are among the out-

Families at Chase-Swift Wedding

Only Orchestra of Kind in America.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Two years ago Selma was made a member of the Woman's Symphony orchestra. A flutist ever since her lungs had been lusty enough to blow hard, she felt that her life's ambition had been realized. But her family, measuring accomplishment in dollars rather than arpeggios, determined that she should get a "real" job or find another place to live.

The result was that Selma found another place to live. She wasn't entirely happy but she knew that she was better off than if she had given up her flute and the orchestra. Now, however, she's found real satisfaction for she has her flute, the orchestra, and a musician husband who likes them both.

There is human appeal in this little story but more than this it goes to illustrate why the Woman's Symphony orchestra is completing its eighth and most successful year. By the sheer sacrifice of its members who have given up home for their music and gone without lunch to have carfare to attend rehersals, a civic institution has been built up that critics now rank next to the great Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Attention is focused on the orchestra this week because it is to give a concert for its benefit at 8:15 next Monday evening in Orchestra hall Blonde, talented Ebba Sundstrom will conduct while Maier and Pattison, the well known duo pianists, Mina Hager, the mezzo-soprano, and the International Singers will assist. With only box office receipts from its concerts for operating expenses the orchestra must occasionally ask the assistance of its friends.

And there are several more good reasons why hundreds of friends will respond Monday night.

The orchestra is the only woman's orchestra in the world with a regular woman conductor giving a regular series of concerts.

Ebba Sundstrom [in private life Mrs. Victor T. Nylander, the wife of a Chicago dentist and the mother of a four year old son] is the only woman conductor of a symphony orchestra in the United States.

The orchestra represents in its membership 100 women from 16 to 60.

When it played to 12,000 persons on the floating theater at A Century of Progress last summer, it is reputed to have played to the largest number of persons ever entertained at one time by a symphony orchestra.

It was Mrs. Albert J. Ochsner, supported by such civic minded friends as the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who recognized eight years ago that there was no outlet for women musicians and founded the orchestra. Ethel Leginska, violin teacher of Ebba Sundstrom, was the conductor for two years until Miss Sundstrom took the baton.

During the first few years men had to be employed to play the great horns, but since the public schools have developed their music courses the orchestra has not been wanting for feminine talent in all sections.

Miss Grace Whitney and her two sisters, Norine and Edna, members of the Whitney family that is known for its "own orchestra," play in the woman's symphony, and so do Mrs. Martha Allen, bass violinist, and her daughter, Miss Hazel Allen, first violinist. The Boroff twins play the double basses that were a gift to the orchestra from the late George Lytton, who founded the Business Men's orchestra.

Emma Nielsen, the timpano player, is famous the world around as the only woman who has attained distinction on this instrument.

One of several gifts made to the orchestra during its career is the $10,000 present of the late Helen Sears, daughter of Frederick Sears, who was a founder of the village of Kenilworth. A composer of note, Miss Sears became interested in the orchestra when it played several of her compositions. Last year, an invalid at the Drake, she was taken from her room once and this was for an orchestra rehersal. The interest from her gift is to be used to establish a memorial library fund for the orchestra members.

Mrs. Arthur Byfield is now the president of the orchestra's directorate. Among the members on this board are Miss Grace Seiberling, Mrs. Gerhardt F. Meyne, Mrs. Frank M. Huston, Mrs. Donald McMurray, Miss Alice Barler, Mrs. J. R. Buchbinder, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. Wallace F. Grosvenor, Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt, Mrs. George J. Jaeger, and Mrs. Harry B. Vanzwoll.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., April 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt had a birthday party today for her young grandson, Curtis B. Dall Jr., who is 4 years old. The fifteen or sixteen young friends of "Buzzie" were entertained by a marionette show in the east room and than had refreshments. Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Dall entertained the mothers of the children at tea.

The Italian ambassador, Augusto Rosso, entertained at dinner tonight for the Apostolic delegate, the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, and his brother, the Apostolic delegate to Peru, Msgr. Gaetano Cicognani, dean of the diplomatic corps in Lima, who is visiting his brother.

Miss Elizabeth Chase Bride at Festive Rites

Shower of Rice, Old Shoes Bids Couple Good Luck.

At 5:48 yesterday afternoon amid showers of rice, old shoes, confetti, and congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Franklin Swift Jr. motored out of Lake Forest in their new five passenger beige colored touring car en route to Fort Worth, Tex. Before her marriage an hour and 20 minutes earlier to the scion of one of Chicago's famous meat packing families, Mrs. Swift was Miss Elizabeth [Libby] Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase of Lake Forest.

It was a departure such as the staid, conservative, little town has seldom witnessed. Ice cream barrels, huge cakes of ice, and stop signs were rolled aside to allow the car to leave the Chase driveway. Tin cans and footgear were tied to the rear axle and a huge "Just Married" sign decorated the spare tire. A battery of cameramen shouted their good wishes along with twenty young equestrians from Misery Farm.

From beginning to end, in fact, it was a wedding that made romantic history for Lake Forest. Not only did it unite two of Chicago's most distinguished families, but it provided the 150 guests with the most genuinely good time they have enjoyed in many a day.

Minus white satin and orange blossoms, it was an occasion marked by a spirit of sincere informality that seemed to personify the gay, popular bride who since her schoolgirl days in Lake Forest has been beloved by young and old alike.

Aside from the members of the two families . . . that meant 100 Swifts, Chases, Fairbanks, Ayers, Barnses, Niblacks, Cudahys, Spauldings, Kelleys, and Wilhelms . . . and two dozen of the most intimate friends of the young couple, the only guests were the boys and girls whom the bride has taught horsemanship and given picnics in her well known Misery Farm Riding school.

At 4:30 the service was read by Dr. Horace Farwell Ferry of the Lake Bluff Presbyterian church, a close friend of Mr. Swift, before the handsome old-fashioned sideboard in the dining room of the Chase home. Two huge urns of Easter lilies decorated the sideboard while six branched candelabra placed in front of oil portraits of the bride and her sister, Mrs. Polly Chase Boyden, shed a soft glow.

Set a hundred feet back of a white picket fence on Oakwood avenue, the Chase house is pleasantly Victorian with its wide verandas, parlor and sitting room, and flower patterned carpets. An old-fashioned reed organ on the side porch provided the wedding

DISCUSSION in connection with the case of the Topeka, Kas., dog, whose mistress left a request that he follow her into death brings to light that a similar request is incorporated in the will of a Chicago woman who is a great humanitarian and lover of dogs. Mrs. John Jay Abbott, one of the supporters of the North Side Animal Shelter, has a beloved wire-haired fox terrier named Robin. Robin, who is 11 years old, who is one of the charter members of the Lucky Dog club recently organized and wears a medal showing that the dollar paid for it has gone to support less fortunate dogs at the shelter, has a clause in Mrs. Abbott's will. Like the Kansas City woman, Mrs. Rolla J. Parker, Mrs. Abbott has instructed that should she die before Robin, he is to be humanely put to death. She does not want to risk him falling into less affectionate hands than her own.

HE is a well known Chicagoan and, in a tired voice, he was telling his views to a friend.

"I've lived forty years, and there are only three things in life I am sure of," he said. "What I am going to do on a Saturday night, how I am going to feel on Sunday, and, alack-a-day, how I am going to feel on Monday morning."

THE other day a package arrived at the James Waller Rogers home containing presents for the Rogers family. First, there was a picture of Mr. Rogers at the age of three. Beneath that was a doll dress, a dozen cookies, and a collection of old Christmas cards. It was a gift box of unusual sentiment, because the sender was Hannah, 97 year old woman who had been the childhood nurse of Mr. Rogers. The doll dress was for the Rogers' little girl, and the Christmas cards she had saved, thinking the children might like to cut them up, she said. Other well known Chicagoans, among them Robert C. Orr, were youthful charges of Hannah. We thought it rather a touching little incident.

MRS. ALFRED WOLFE was a little taken back the other day when a shabby man approached her on Lake Shore drive and asked her for a quarter.

"To buy some tooth paste," he added.

He probably had been reading the tooth paste advertisments—the "get that job" appeal series.

Washington, D. C., April 19.—(AP)—An appeal to Daughters of the American Revolution to act against internal foes was made today by two cabinet members, Attorney General Cummings and Secretary Roper.

Cummings solicited the Daughters' earnest support for the 12 point program to curb crime which his department has recommended to congress.

Roper asked support for the recovery program, the fostering of constructive leisure time activities, and in the education crisis and in "restoring and preserving home influences."

Roper also spoke against "coffee-cup seers," apparently alluding to the recent Wirt controversy.

"If there are those in our government who oppose our form of democracy they should be located and intelligently and properly eliminated," he said. "But in the name of common sense let us be protected from the muddled brains of coffee-cup seers."

CAKE SIMULATES WATERMELON TO DINER'S DELIGHT

It's Tempting Dainty for This Season.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a weekly radio feature—will be presented today by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 2 o'clock for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

You think a Watermelon Cake would be perfectly awful and that, anyway, watermelons aren't in season? Then here's for improving your fund of knowledge and watching you blink your eyes! For there IS such a thing as a watermelon cake and it was even such a hit with the judges that it won a prize at the Iowa state fair. The catch, of course, is that it's the looks, not the taste, which gives it its name. Introducing:

WATERMELON CAKE.

1½ cups sugar
2½ cups pastry flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
5 egg whites
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup raisins
Red vegetable coloring

ICING.

¼ cup cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups confectioners' sugar
Green coloring

Cream the butter and sugar together until light and fluffy. Sift together the flour, baking powder, and salt. Add them alternately with the milk to the creamed mixture. Stir in the flavorings. Beat the egg whites until foamy and add the cream of tartar, continuing to beat until stiff. Fold this into the batter. Have ready a "melon mold" which may be purchased at a department store. Grease it and dust with flour. Line it with one-third of the batter. Add to the rest of the batter only enough of the red coloring to give a deep pink. Stir in the raisins, to pinch-hit for the melon seeds. Pour this mixture into the center of the mold and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 50 to 65 minutes. After baking cool the cake, then cover it with the frosting.

As for the making of this frosting it's simple. Just turn the sugar into a large mixing bowl. Add half the cream and stir until smooth. Add the vanilla and then stir in very gradually just enough more of the cream to give it a spreadable consistency. Add a few drops of coloring to give a dark green shade. Spread it over the cake and you have your melon!

But dessert would be only half the fun if some saint of the hungry hadn't created the first pie. So, since we seem to have gone southern on you in the pastry line, we might as well be consistent about it and pass on perhaps the best in the line of rich and crunchy desserts:

3 eggs
1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup pecans
Pastry

Beat the eggs and stir in the other ingredients in the order given. Have ready a pie pan covered with unbaked pastry. Pour in the mixture and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) for ten minutes. Then lower the heat and continue baking in a slow oven until set (about forty minutes) at 300 degrees F.

But if pies and cakes and things remind you too much of chizzly winds and winter when you're trying to concentrate on first robins and spring, then step up and present the folks with this cool compliment:

FROZEN CURRANT BANANA PUDDING.

2 large ripe bananas
½ cup soft currant jelly
½ cup whipping cream, whipped stiff
½ cup pecan meats
20 vanilla wafers

Mash the bananas to a soft pulp. Whip the jelly until smooth and soft, then mix with the bananas. Add the nuts and fold in the whipped cream. Now spread the bottom of a refrigerator tray with the pudding mixture and arrange over it a layer of wafers. Continue making quite thin layers until all ingredients are used. The banana mixture should be spread over last. Sprinkle whole pecans over the top and freeze solid.

SCOTCH SHORT BREAD.

1 1-3 cups sifted cake flour
½ cup cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
½ cup granulated sugar

Sift the flour, cornstarch, and salt together. Then work in the butter, which has been softened at room temperature but not melted. Rub it in with the fingertips and then gradually work in the sugar. This dough is dry at first and will take a bit of patience. Industrious kneading will give a fine, smooth, stiff dough. Then press the dough out on a lightly floured board to three-quarters inch thickness. Cut into small square cakes and crimp around the edges with the fingers or a fork. Lift each cake on a broad spatula to a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 35 minutes.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

HERE'S A SYSTEM FOR GOOD EATING HABITS IN CHILD

Johnny, who says he cannot drink milk, and Buster, who says he cannot stand spinach, will both be hard hit if their mothers take the advice of Dr. Margaret Wylie, of the New York state college of home economics.

She believes that Johnny can learn to drink milk and that Buster can learn to like spinach, in very much the same way that they learn "reading," "'riting," and "'rithmetic." When Buster says he does not care to learn long division, no one will pay much attention to that, and Buster will go ahead learning it. And when Johnny has trouble with his writing, his father won't be too sympathetic. So pride will make Johnny learn to write.

"Don't let a child's undesirable food habits become important by talking about them," advises Dr. Wylie. "And don't make them important by punishing him, for that's just another kind of attention. Generally a youngster will eat what he is expected to eat, if every one else at the table eats it without comment. And if he is given new foods tactfully in small amounts and in a meal with other foods he has already learned to like, he will never learn to dislike them, unless someone deliberately teaches him. So try to do away with all comments on food at the table or elsewhere in the presence of young children."

SHOPPERS TO FIND WEEK-END FOOD PRICES HIGHER

Shortages and U. S. Drive Are Blamed.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The steady upward march of food prices, due in part to shortages of supplies and to efforts of the government to increase commodity prices, will be noted in most grocery and meat stores this week-end. Among the foods that have increased in price this week are beef, oranges, head lettuce, onions, the better quality tomatoes, some kinds of bread, and several kinds of canned foods.

These increases, coupled with those in progress over recent weeks, have added about 12 per cent to the average food budget since the middle of February, and as much as 20 per cent over the prices of similar items a year ago.

Still Some Bargains.

On the other hand, some foods are lower in price, including potatoes, both the bakers and the new small, red ones, strawberries, spinach, cabbage, many cuts of fresh pork, nearly all cuts of veal from the choice loin and leg to shoulder roasts, butter and eggs. Specialty products of the bakeries also will be noted at bargain prices.

The end of the Florida orange season is being recorded today, with an abundant supply in local markets of the navel oranges from California. The Florida crop was harvested and marketed earlier than usual, although plenty of grapefruit still are coming from the gulf states. Louisiana strawberries of better quality are now on the store counters, when compared with offerings of the last two weeks. The present prices of berries are as low as any in recent years for this season.

New Onions Soon.

Most of the onions now available are Bermuda onions out of storage, and are being marketed before the new crop comes in from the south. The first Texas onions are just coming in now, with a few imports from Chile, while the bulk were grown last season in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

The shipments of new potatoes from the south have increased enough, especially from the Rio Grande valley, to lower the costs of both the new and old potatoes. Farmers who found potato and onion growing profitable last year are busy planting increased acreages now and with favorable weather the two crops will again be cheap. This also is true of tomatoes that will come on the market during the summer.

Peaches To Be Scarce.

Housewives who plan ahead in their canning operations may as well figure on buying their canned peaches this year. The peach buds in Georgia, Virginia, southern Illinois, Indiana, southern Michigan nearly all were killed by low winter temperatures. A few of the early varieties will be sold as fresh peaches, but there will be no big crop for canning, and fresh berries will become the summer table dish in their stead a few weeks hence.

Other farmers in nearby garden areas are busy now growing their cabbage, cauliflower, tomatoes, peppers and other summer vegetables in the propagation beds, from which they will be set out in large acreages in a few weeks. Early radishes, carrots, beets and other vegetables are being sown here, awaiting the time when present shipments from southern states are ended.

Meat Prices Mount.

In the meat markets the shortage of beef is notable. Steaks and the better roasts have gone up in price, as people turned from pork or lamb to beef, at the same time that farmers were holding back their cattle in considerable numbers, awaiting the action of the government in placing a processing tax on beef.

Consumers will note that while farmers are obtaining about 3 to 4 cents a pound for live hogs the wholesale price of pork now contains a processing tax of nearly 5 cents a pound. The actual tax is 2½ cents a pound of live weight, but by the time the pork is converted into meat cuts the tax has doubled since much of the live weight is not meat. The consumer is paying a higher price, but the farmer does not get the benefit unless he agrees to reduce his corn and hog production during the year.

BY MABEL BRYANT.

The experienced cook who knows how to convert inexpensive cuts of beef into appetizing dishes has an advantage over the cook whose knowledge of the various cuts of beef is limited to porterhouse, sirloin, or round steak.

If your family likes steak the year around, flank steak will be found a pleasant change. When you order a flank steak be sure it is freshly cut. When they are piled one on top of the other they have not the flavor of those freshly cut. As this cut is just below the loin, it is juicy and tender, containing enough fat to make it good.

Broiled Flank Steak.

There are several ways of preparing flank steak. Broiled flank steak with maitre d'hotel butter spread thickly over it when removed from the broiler and served with a baked potato is most delicious. Just try one and find out for yourself.

Flank steaks range in size from one to four pounds. Have the butcher score the surface in opposite directions. Have broiler very hot before putting the steak on the rack [an oven temperature too low will toughen the meat]. Broil about fifteen minutes to the pound, unless you prefer it rare.

1 tablespoon lemon juice.
1 tablespoon chopped parsley.
Seasoning.

Beat butter to cream as for cake, add the lemon juice a little at a time and when well blended, stir in the parsley, onion juice, and seasoning. Spread over broiled steak.

Here's Another Recipe.

Another method of preparing flank steak follows:

Remove superfluous fat from a two pound flank steak. Put the meat into a kettle and cover with boiling water, add one teaspoon salt, one-half tablespoon of peppercorns, a bit of bay leaf, one-half dozen cloves and three or four small veal bones. Cook slowly until the meat is in shreds.

There should be very little liquor in the kettle when the meat is done. Arrange shreds of meat in a glass, brick shaped bread pan. Strain liquid and pour over the meat. Cover with a heavy weight; when cold and jellied cut in thin slices and serve with whipped cream horseradish sauce which is made as follows:

Mix one-half cup of fresh grated horseradish root with one tablespoon of vinegar, a little paprika and onion juice and season to taste. Fold in one-quarter cup of heavy cream, beaten until stiff. Chill and serve with sliced jellied meat. A border of sliced tomatoes with ripe and stuffed olives make an attractive garnish for this hot weather dish.

Consumption of Cream, Milk Gains in New York

Consumption of milk and cream in New York City reached its highest point in 1929 when each person used one and one-third pints daily. Since then, because of reduced buying power, consumption declined until in 1933 each person used only slightly more than one pint daily. Since July, 1933, receipts of both milk and cream have shown relative gains, although the total consumption is still slightly below that for corresponding months of 1932.

SIAMESE PRINCE, 11, ARRIVES IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, April 19.—[Special.]—A slim, dark boy of 11, whose home is on the other side of the world, stepped jubilantly ashore from the liner Champlain today and was whisked away in a luxurious automobile for his first glimpse of the new world. He was Prince Varanand of Siam, a member of the royal family, but not in the direct line of succession to the throne.

He speaks no English, but chattered volubly in French and Siamese with two slightly older companions, Ajjah Chakrabandu and Chirasakti, who traveled with him from Paris.

One of the prince's greatest pleasures on the voyage, his friends said, was the consumption of several miles of spaghetti, which he never had eaten before, but ordered at every opportunity during the trip.

LIFE IN CEMETERY IS TOO DULL FOR THESE TWO BIRDS!

North shore police yesterday were watching the skies for a sign of the white swan which flew away from its home in the pond at Memorial Park cemetery, just outside the west city limits of Evanston. The swan is worth $50, according to Carl Nyberg, caretaker of the cemetery.

When Nyberg came to work yesterday he discovered that both of the swans, recently purchased by the cemetery, were missing. One of the birds was found in the forest preserve, a little distance away. It was returned to the pond and its wings were clipped. There was no indication where its companion had gone.

BILL PROPOSES FEDERAL LOANS FOR FISHERMEN

Washington, D. C., April 19.—[Special.]—Federal loans of 2 million dollars to American fishermen were proposed in a bill before a house committee today. It was cited that the federal government has lent to farmers, house owners, and many others, while the fishermen, including those who gather sponges, have no such aid despite heavy losses from storms. As a result of that they have been unable to get loans from banks for replacement of equipment and have been unable to get credit from ship chandlers and boat builders.

It also was pointed out before the committee on merchant marine, radio, and fisheries that several countries give regular subsidies to their fishermen. Japan is a notable instance of that, it was revealed, operating training and scouting ships for them. It was said fisheries imports from Japan to the United States exceeded one million dollars last year.

Representative Edward C. Moran of Rockland, Me., obtained from the committee an amendment to include storm and ice damage, as well as that from tornadoes, tidal waves, cyclones, and floods, as entitling fishermen to loans. The loans proposed in the bill would be limited to American citizens.

Seattle, Wash., April 19.—(AP)—Patricia Ann Chamberlin, aged one year, one month, and one day, was on her way to Alaska aboard the steamer Yukon today, having traveled 13,607 miles during her short life. Patricia Ann is the daughter of Arthur Chamberlin, former Seattle sports writer, now a trader at Deering, Kotzebue sound, in northern Alaska.

28,645 PUPILS GIVEN CLOTHES IN EIGHT MONTHS

Children's Aid Society Holds Annual Meet.

Since the opening of the public schools last September, 28,645 children were outfitted with 97,568 garments and 25,373 pairs of shoes through the efforts of the School Children's Aid society, it was revealed at the 47th annual meeting of the society yesterday. More than 80 members attended the luncheon meeting in the Chicago Woman's club.

In addition to the 97,568 garments listed, the society's sewing committee disbursed 3,634 dresses and cut out 4,000 dresses, of which 3,373 dresses were completed by 186 sewing societies coöperating with the Aid society. These societies compose Ladies' Aid and other church societies and women's clubs. The Rogers Park Woman's club held the record for turning out the largest number of finished products. The St. James' Episcopal church woman's guild knitted 78 sweaters for boys and girls.

The work of the society is almost entirely voluntary. Mrs. George Allen McCorkle, for the last 20 years active in the society, and for the last 10 years president, is a full time worker in charge of the society's distributing center, in the Haven school, 1472 South Wabash avenue.

Throughout the city principals of schools and high schools record the names and clothing needs of impoverished children whose families have been investigated and found unable to provide for them. These are sent to the Children's Aid society, which furnishes the needed articles.

VERSATILE EGG GETS ITS DUE IN THIS DRAMA

From the Custards, Etc., to Various Souffles.

Look for dishes in which the egg is disguised, as the repeated serving of fried, poached, and boiled eggs tends to grow tiresome even when they are strictly fresh, according to the home economics department of North Dakota Agricultural college.

A plain unsweetened custard made of three eggs or two cups of milk seasoned with salt and pepper makes a base for many egg combination dishes, and provides a well balanced "one dish" meal.

Becoming Egg-Minded.

The family won't tire of eggs if this combination is poured over four slices of golden brown toast on top of which is a slice of American cheese, and baked for one hour. Variations may be had by pouring this same mixture over left over cooked vegetables such as peas, diced carrots, celery, and onion, with a vegetable dinner as the result.

The lightness furnished by well beaten eggs in a main dish or dessert adds delicacy as well as variety in texture of foods. In this class of foods are the puffy omelets and various souffles.

1 cup diced cooked chicken meat.
1 cup finely diced carrots.
3 eggs, separated.
1 cup boiling water.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Combine carrots, water, milk, salt, pepper, and tapioca in a double boiler. Cook 15 minutes over hot water, stirring frequently. Cool, add beaten egg yolks and chicken. Fold in stiffly beaten whites and bake in a slow oven [325 degrees F.] 50 to 60 minutes. Serves six.

U. OF CHICAGO IS GIVEN $27,000 FOR LAW FELLOWSHIP

Dean Harry A. Bigelow of the law school of the University of Chicago yesterday announced the donation of $27,000 by Mrs. Anna L. Raymond for the establishment of the James Nelson Raymond fellowship as a memorial to her husband, a Chicago industrialist, who died in 1919. At the same time Mrs. Raymond, who has given the university gifts totaling $225,000 in the last few years, gave another $5,000 for the university general loan fund.

The Raymond fellowship is the first privately founded fellowship in the law school. It will be awarded annually to the graduate student or young instructor whose record and ability indicate unusual promise in research. The terms of the gifts are broad, permitting investigation into socio-legal problems.

"Fellowships are urgently needed by the law school to keep promising men in the field of legal research," Dean Bigelow said, "and the Raymond fellowship will enable the law school to obtain first rate ment who are interested in legal research."

FIND TOO HIGH TEMPERATURE HARD ON EGGS

Grocerymen would have more satisfied egg customers if they took precautions to insure that fresh eggs in their stores were never subjected to temperatures above 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

Much of the "freshness" of eggs brought in by farmers can be lost in a few days in a warm store. Infertile eggs lose quality rapidly in high temperatures, and a fertile egg can be definitly spoiled at temperatures above 68 degrees Fahrenheit. A fact often overlooked by those who handle eggs is that only three days at incubation temperatures are necessary to cause germ development which will be visible before an egg candler, according to the poultry husbandry department of Iowa State college.

Many successful grocerymen are keeping eggs in the refrigerator as they keep butter, a practice which helps to keep the eggs fresh.

RECIPES USING MILK BELONG IN MENU EACH DAY

A quart of milk daily for children aids growth and health. Adults should drink a pint of milk a day, though part of it may often be used in other than beverage form. This recipe rings in milk and offers a hearty introduction to a dinner or a dainty main dish for lunch.

Tomato Bisque with Cheese.

1 quart rich milk
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups strained canned tomatoes
½ teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup grated cheese

Heat the milk. Blend the butter and flour. Add the hot milk slowly, and stir constantly until smooth. Let the mixture cook for about twenty minutes, and just before serving stir into it the tomatoes, the sugar, and salt. Add the grated cheese. If desired, garnish each plate as it is served with one teaspoon of whipped cream.

France Cuts Pay of Rail Workers in Economy Drive

PARIS, April 19.—(AP)—The French cabinet brought railroads under Premier Gaston Doumergue's economy acts today by decree laws lopping one-half off the yearly deficit of 4,000,000,000 francs [about $240,000,000]. The railroad reorganization scheme approved by the cabinet cuts employés' pay 5 per cent. In addition, the personnel is to be reduced by motorizing the small lines which have proved the heaviest losers.

LOOK OUT! you're getting coarse cosmetic skin!

You can use all the Rouge and Powder you wish, yet guard against ugly COSMETIC SKIN this modern way . . .

"CAN my pores be growing large? And horrors! Is that a blackhead!" Suddenly some unhappy girl discovers that her skin is growing coarse, unlovely—that she is being gradually robbed of beauty!

She may not realize it, but she has COSMETIC SKIN—a widespread modern complexion trouble, distressing yet easy to guard against.

Cosmetics Harmless if removed this way

Cosmetics need not harm even delicate skin unless they are allowed to choke the pores. Many women who think they are removing cosmetics thoroughly are all unconsciously leaving bits of stale make-up in the pores day after day. When this happens, the pores gradually become clogged, distended. They cannot function normally and soon the warning signals of cosmetic skin appear.

Don't run this risk. You needn't. Lux Toilet Soap is made to remove cosmetics thoroughly. Its rich, ACTIVE lather sinks deeply into the pores, carries swiftly away every vestige of dust, grease, stale cosmetics. Before you apply fresh make-up during the day and ALWAYS before you go to bed at night, remove stale make-up thoroughly the modern Lux Toilet Soap way.

This simple care will protect your skin—beautify it, too. Every time you use this gentle soap you give your skin a true beauty treatment.

Precious Elements in this soap

Remember, Lux Toilet Soap contains precious elements Nature herself puts in skin to keep it youthful. The Hollywood stars, whose complexions are worth millions, have used it for years. Begin today to use this gentle beauty soap for your skin.

Critic Praises Noble Cain and Splendid Choir

A Capella Chorus Sings at Orchestra Hall.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Once a year, which is rather too seldom, Noble Cain takes his Chicago A Cappella choir off the radio and gives it a chance to be heard at first hand, larynx to ear. And so it appeared last night at Orchestra hall under his direction.

The patrons of the Chicagoland Music Festivals, in person and over the air, have known for several seasons back what Mr. Cain is able to accomplish with a number like the Hallelujah chorus from "The Messiah." Those who were at Orchtstra hall last night will realize that he can afford to exclude this composition from his concerts because he has so many other musical assets at his command.

For the Chicago A Cappella choir is not only a chorus such as the present generation seldom hears but has effects in its collective throat that come near to approaching those of the symphony orchestra. For that reason Mr. Cain probably found it necessary to compose a whole group of songs, sacred and secular, to demonstrate the abilities of his singers.

Luckily for him, he is a musician as well as a technical composer, and his "Thy Song" and "Let All My Life Be Music" are compositions that not only rested pleasantly on the ear last night but created a desire to hear them frequently.

For real singing again, a matter of both technical tone and expression, one can do no better than refer to Bach's "Jesu, Priceless Treasure," an extended work that involved both brilliant bravura singing and the solemnity of the ancient chorale. This was something to be remembered for a long time.

And if it were good manners to refer to such a matter in a musical review, one might speak of the Elizabethan number which began, "Take, Oh Take Those Lips Away." Composers are not noted for their reticence, wherefore there will be no effort here to become modest about the merits of the song. At the same time the composer is willing to assure Mr. Cain and his singers that never before last night did he believe that the song could be made to sound as well as it did on this occasion.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

An anxious mama, frantic in her search for a superfatted soap that would suit the thin, sensitive skin of her small daughter, begged us to help her find one. We found more than one, all suited to the skin beauty needs of small children and grownups, too.

It's a funny thing, but you can almost never figure the reaction of one person's skin to a particular soap. A woman with the most beautiful complexion we've ever seen told us she uses a certain soap all of the time, and uses it a couple of times a day. Her skin would be classified as dry—but she can use a soap that would give our own skin right back to the Indians after two days of its use. And we've known many similar instances where an individual's reaction to a soap just tossed all the rules out the window.

But for the average dry, thin, and easily irritated skin such as nearly all small children and many adults have the superfatted soap is almost bound to be the ideal choice.

For them, the children in particular, the cold cream soaps and the castiles that have lots of olive oil in them are by far the best. A skin expert around town recommended a particular cold cream soap to us for this type of skin. A white bar, unscented, that we and this mother friend of ours found to be beautifully bland. It is medium priced and sold in a department store here.

Of the castiles, the really oily ones, we liked two in particular. These are in another shop. Both of them happen to be imported, one from England and one from France. They're not particularly luxurious soaps; they're on the utilitarian order pretty much and may not appeal to women who like soaps that are excitingly colored and scented. But they're plenty practical, because their action isn't the least bit harsh. On the contrary, all three of these are as soothing as any soap could be, with the most pleasant and efficient action on those troublesome thin and dry skins.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Blue Taffeta Fashions New Evening Frocks

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Dress suits, feminine persuasion, are new and knockout.

There's dark blue taffeta made with a trim, slim skirt, a three-quarter length coat with fluttery revers and a perfect dream of a blouse. This very good looking blouse is of dark blue lace as filmy and fragile as a wedding veil. The sort of a costume that can go from afternoon till all hours of the night as a dress parade affair without an equal.

There is another blue taffeta made with a long slithering skirt that reaches the floor. Spanking white organdy revers stick out at right angles to your shoulders and achieve an airy grace that only sheer white can manage. The taffeta is spattered with silvery white designs in a small precise formation.

The long coat [quite a bit below the hips] is full and billowing. It, too, is of the printed taffeta and has full puffy sleeves and can be used with other frocks of cotton or silk.

A geisha girl silhoutte is managed in one brilliant new dining out evening costume. It's as new as it is electrical! The long, knowingly draped gown clings ardently to the streamline. . . . The print is exotically brilliant with citron green, vermilion, and yellow. . . . Around the hemline is a clear accent of vermilion, a narrow band of one color crêpe. Over this slinky clinging creation is worn a long black taffeta coat, made with a high roundish neckline, a button that keeps it high at the throatline, and the puffed sleeves of a geisha girl's coat.

When warm weather finally arrives, smart women are going to wear very thin, very sheer coats of cotton voile over colorfully printed silk dresses, a mere shadow of a coat, but a coat nevertheless, the good answer on what to wear, even though the temperature climbs high.

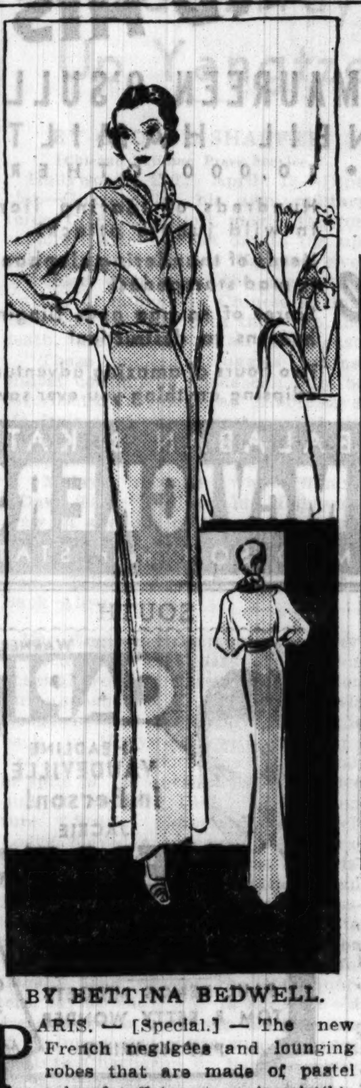
Plenty of Sleep Erases Wrinkles, Prevents Them

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I suppose it sounds pretty dull to talk sleep for wrinkling faces. But I ask you, now honestly, what could be brighter? Women, including this one, too, are comical critters. Make us pay, for a jar of wrinkle eradicator and we'll do it and, what's more, we'll apply it, if the wrinkles are getting so we notice them. But sleep, well, it doesn't cost anything. We can have all we want of it for nothing and, besides, it is such a common remedy, we think anything would be better. True, not all are like that. But the other day I ran into a woman who looked as if she's been on a bat for a year. She being a teetotaler, I had to look elsewhere for the reason for the lines, the gray shadows, the look of recently added years. She helped me out with a confession that she hadn't been to bed before one for three weeks.

Now, I ask you, what feminine face can stand that kind of abuse without looking it? 'Tain't fair and 'tain't human. There was no good reason for the late hours every night of those three weeks. A few evenings there were bonafide celebrations, which is all right. A couple of them a week is O. K., if you put back into the beauty savings account some of what you've overdrawn.

Paris Uses Taffeta, Divested of Frills, for Her Charming New Lounging Robes



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The new French negligées and lounging robes that are made of pastel colored taffeta are an irresistible temptation to loaf and take your ease. This spring Lyoléne showed a whole group of them in various color schemes and cuts. One of the prettiest and most practical is sketched.

Taffeta, in this model, is shredded of its usual frills and fussiness and made into a practical lounging robe, which is cool and fresh for warm weather wear. The color of this lounging robe is old rose, and it has sleeves that are set into waist deep armholes and fitted below the elbows. The body of the model is straight and it is wrapped over and closed down the left side front. It has a belt that is a rope of the old rose taffeta, and it is knotted below the throat. When the knot at the neckline is untied the robe opens in two big revers that are faced with blue and black and rose printed crêpe de chine.

If you are in need of a summer lounging robe or negligée keep taffeta or other stiff silk in mind. The material is new, in a manner of speaking, for this type of garment.

Paris Calls Her Best Dressed in America; Wears U. S. Clothes

New York, April 19.—(AP)—Although the fashion houses of Paris named her the "best dressed woman in America," Mrs. Harrison Williams returned home from a European trip today all togged out in American clothes.

An emerald green tailored dress fastened up the front with green metal buttons; a green swagger-cut tweed coat, buttonless; a saucy green hat, brim down in front, up in back, perched toward the forehead; a flowing green flowered tie tied in a wide bow; a handbag measuring about 8 by 12, gloves and shoes in brown.

"Is it an European ensemble?" she was asked.

"No," the attractive society matron replied, "it's nearly all American."

Mrs. Williams has recovered from the illness that seized her in Paris several weeks ago.

No stay-at-home is she, drooping after a round of spring housecleaning. Wise creature, she has turned that famed ordeal into the simplest of tasks, thanks to her Hoover and its Dusting Tools.

Why beat rugs on a line? The Hoover cleans better, faster, more safely. Why assemble a battalion of brushes and dustcloths? Hoover Dusting Tools clean all furnishings more thoroughly, more easily. Together, they're a complete home-cleaning service—the finest that money can buy. . . . Before you start housecleaning, see the new lightweight Sentinel Series Hoovers, with built-in Dirt Finder and light duralumin Dusting Tools. . . . Our bonded and trustworthy Hoover man, when he calls, will gladly leave them both for trial use, without obligation.

Vigorous Child Needs Special Types of Toys

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"The baby [a girl] is bright, exceedingly active and loud, and of a high temperament. She is 2 years old. She does not get interested in many childish toys such as carriages, dolls, blocks, dishes, and kiddie cars. When alone with me she plays by herself for a while, but when the older children are about she simply won't look at her toys.

"She disturbs them in their home work and lessons, as she demands paper and pencil or wants to write on their books. If I insist she leave them alone she just screams her head off. I punish her or put her in a room, and she is quick to apologize, and say she is sorry. But she always does the same things no matter how many times she is corrected. The children are much annoyed at all the interruptions of hers, resent them, get angry."

This vigorous young person may need more vigorous activities than parents usually associate with a little girl. A kiddie car, hammer and nails and blocks of wood, large blocks and plenty of them, "helping" around the house are suggestions. In addition she should have lots of outdoor play. She needs to let off steam. We have a Toy and Plaything list for all ages.

"I think it is quite natural that when the older girls come home she should be interested in them. Why don't you try giving her a few picture books and pads and pencils and crayons and paper and let her "study" too when the older girls do? Even buy her a strap and schoolbag. Perhaps if she feels herself one of them and has some occupation she can be trained to keep quiet.

By ALICE CAMPBELL

SYNOPSIS.

Dorinda Quarles is found stabbed to death after a dinner party in her Paris apartment. Unscrupulous, Dorinda had served a drug to her fourteen guests, which was provided by one of them, Bannister Mowbray. Helen Roderick, who was a friend of Dorinda's mother, Lady Agatha, discovers the crime early next morning, and all the guests, except Dinah Blake, a young American artist, lying about in deep sleep. Tommy Rostatter, a journalist, was Dinah's dinner partner. Dinah's engagement to Christopher Loughton, in the American embassy, was, according to gossip, broken on account of Dorinda. Dinah returns two days later, her memory a blank, to the apartment she shares with her cousin Hallie Pemberton. She had been sleeping in the studio of absent friends. Tommy persuades her to pretend an engagement to him to prevent a jealousy motive. Dorinda's step-father, Basil Jethro, celebrated Oxford scholar, was her guardian and trustee. The two were on unfriendly terms. Dorinda had told Dinah that she suspected Jethro of giving her mother an overdose of a drug. Tommy engages a room at the hotel where Jethro had stopped the night of the murder. He suspects Jethro and searches for proof. Bannister Mowbray's lifeless body is found floating in the Seine. The verdict is suicide. His roommate, Ronald Cleeves, tries to die by gas, but is rescued. Neither had anything to gain by Dorinda's death.

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

A PUBLIC IDOL SUSPECTED.

That afternoon Tommy had seen Jethro for a few minutes at Helen Roderick's apartment, and had watched him give courteous but slightly bored attention to their hostess' shuddering recital of the Mowbray rumors.

"My dear Helen," he had remarked patiently, "how can I hazard any opinion when I know so little? If this Mowbray is guilty of murder it begins to look as though he had carried his secret into the grave. It is a pity we cannot know for sure and write finis to the chapter."

Vague, general, like the declarations contained in the printed interview, and yet Tommy could not forget that the author had shown himself both definite and practical when inventing a fallacious excuse to cover up a long lapse of time in specifying, unnecessarily, the contents of a bag, and accounting—again falsely—for his failure to put up at his usual hotel.

"Why should he do these things?" muttered Tommy irritably. "Has he got some queer quirk of vanity in his makeup which would explain all these evasions? There must be some reason."

He reached for the heavy volume of "Who's Who" and turned to the entry dealing with Basil Jethro. The only items which interested him were, first, the fact that the philosopher had received his early education on the continent, his father being employed in the British consular service; and, second, that his rise to fame had been sudden, even spectacular. Until eight years ago he had been a plodding, obscure schoolmaster, contributing occasional articles to scientific reviews. Then he had brought out his primary thesis, by reason of which he had at once been hailed as a revolutionizer of thought. From thence onward Europe and America had followed with reverence the successive treatises which by logical steps had culminated in the celebrated "Beyond Relativity," "in which philosophy was stripped of emotionalism and reduced to the mathematical lines of pure truth."

WILLIAM AUBREY GRAY-34

His lips parted but uttered no sound till, at the first pause, the words: "Basil Jethro! Good God!" burst from them in a tone of blank incredulity.

Truth! Was there a hidden irony contained in the word?

Tommy's pipe had gone out. He restoked it carefully and, his eyes filled with speculation, put his hand almost automatically into his waistcoat pocket to withdraw a scrap of paper. It was the memorandum he had taken from Jethro's storage room. He pored over the irregular alignment, the widening margin and the pools of ink which had collected in the looped letters. Presently he rose and, prying amongst the books on the shelves, selected a small handbook. The plates contained in this he proceeded to compare painstakingly with the specimen on his knee.

The door bell pealed. With some annoyance he flung open the outer door, and then, his expression altering, cried: "Come in, come in!" with hospitable welcome.

"Well," Tommy remarked, "rather a lot of water has flowed under the bridge since we last saw each other, eh, what?"

"Water . . . and a body," returned Christopher, running a brown muscular hand over his hair with a troubled gesture. "What's your opinion about this Mowbray business?" he asked.

"What's yours?" countered Tommy, busily squirting soda.

"I don't know. People are saying——"

"I've heard them saying it. Unfortunately, it hasn't altered the main course of events."

Christopher met his host's eyes squarely.

"You mean they're still interrogating Dinah. I know. It's utterly damnable. Why do they do it?"

"I suppose because they don't consider that either Mowbray or Cleeves had sufficient reason to murder Dorinda. Still they can't prove that Dinah had either, so the siege must be nearly ended."

"Are you satisfied?" demanded the younger man slowly.

Tommy shrugged, pushed the cigarets toward Christopher and lit one for himself.

"No," he said at last, "I'm not. You see, Loughton, as you probably know as well as I do, Dinah's afflicted with a sensitive conscience. This equivocal state of things has made her morbid about herself. She won't ever be happy till she's entirely assured of her innocence, technical as well as moral." He chose his words with care. "And there, unfortunately, lies the difficulty. If the police don't make an arrest what's to remove her doubt?"

"I understand," Christopher said. "She would be like that. But are you sure there's no evidence whatever to point in another direction?"

"From the official viewpoint, none. From my own——" Here Tommy sipped his whisky, held an inward debate, and resumed with a slightly shame-faced air. "I may as well tell you that for days there's been a sort of idea knocking round in my head. It's extravagant, ill-founded. Probably at the first test it will collapse. Still, if you'll promise to keep mum about it I'll hand it over for what it's worth."

Christopher's somber brown eyes remained glued to his rival's face while the tale of contradictions and discrepancies was unfolded. His lips parted but uttered no sound till, at the first pause, the words: "Basil Jethro! Good God!" burst from them in a tone of blank incredulity.

"Stuns you, does it?" remarked Tommy calmly. "Well, I don't wonder. Your reception of the notion confirms what I knew before—that it will be absolute idiocy to bring an accusation like this, least of all against a public idol, without producing something tangible in the way of proof. I've already tried to get this proof and failed."

Christopher regarded him searchingly. After a moment he asked further details about the letter, the very existence of which seemed unknown to the police.

"Do you imagine it represented a menace to Jethro's reputation?"

"Hardly. Dinah, who saw it, declares it was undated and gave no definite information. Personally I have a hankering to examine into that trusteeship. In spite of being annihilated by Macadam's clerk, I still feel there's just a chance of Jethro's being sole trustee, in which case,—well, anything is possible."

"Would any woman have been so foolish, even before 1926, as to put all that power into one man's hands?" objected Christopher skeptically.

"Agatha Jethro might have done it. If she did it would go far toward explaining Dorinda's stored resentment toward her step-father, as well as the hints she dropped. Supposing he had managed to dip into her investments, wouldn't the imminence of her coming of age have presented a terrifying prospect?"

"Why not get hold of this will and see what the position is?"

"Because, my dear man, that will's in Somerset house, London, and I'm anchored here, unable to leave this cursed city without being jugged for contempt of court!"

of-town guests here for the wedding. The Rev. Christoph Keller will read the ceremony and a reception will follow at the Carver home. Mr. Payne will take his bride to Charleston to live.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Black are giving the bridal dinner for their daughter tonight in their Evanston home on Asbury avenue, and her wedding tomorrow to Gerald Van Doren, son of Mrs. Ray N. Van Doren, will take place at 4:30 o'clock in St. Mark's church in Evanston, followed by a reception at home.

Dr. and Mrs. Black have invited only the bridal party to the dinner. Mrs. Lester Dunbar is to be her sister's matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Mrs. John Tittle, Mrs. Philip Wernher, and Mrs. Minier Sargent. Arthur Knox and Joseph Hawthorne arrived yesterday from New York to usher, and the other ushers are Mr. Dunbar, Mr. Sargent, Mr. Wernher, Mr. Tittle, Gilmer Black, the bride's brother, James Keatch and David VanVactor.

Hill School Club to Give Dinner.

Hill school "boys" are making but one engagement for Monday night and that is for the twelfth annual dinner of the Hill School club of Chicago to be given at the Saddle and Cycle club, for there is a strong feeling of loyalty to the school where they "prepped" in all the men who went to that exclusive institution of learning.

Headmaster and Mrs. James I. Wendell are coming for the dinner and will be the guests of the junior Edward L. Ryersons, whose son, Edward III., is a student at the school now.

Usually when there is any news concerning the activities of the students or the alumnæ of the University School for Girls we learn it from attractive little Mrs. Robert M. Curtis, who is one of the most interested and loyal of the many well known women who went to school there, but since she is laid up in her Astor street home as a result of a bad automobile accident, we heard about the play the seniors are giving soon through another source.

Mr. Curtis and "Ted" Parker, who also were injured in the accident, have recovered enough to be up and around, but a broken leg and a painful back injury have kept Mrs. Curtis in bed since the accident on Easter eve.

The play, "The Princess Marries the Page," is to be given on the afternoon and evening of next Wednesday at the Fortnightly club for the benefit of the year book, the Castanon. Those pretty Nicolson sisters, Virginia and Caryl, daughters of the Leo Nicolsons of Wheaton, are to be in the cast and also Peggy Young, Helen Riordan, Elaine Bahr, Celia Coit and Carrie Lee Johnson.

Novokoff, Noted Composer, Here.

Following Paul Rosenfeld's talk at the Arts club this morning on "The New American Composers" there will be a luncheon for Mr. Rosenfeld at which one of the distinguished guests will be Nicholas Novokoff, composer of the music of "Union Pacific," who flew into Chicago yesterday for a brief visit to the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe. Novokoff is to conduct the orchestra when "Union Pacific" is given tomorrow night.

Four ardent "Lincolnists" are to be speakers at a meeting tonight of the newly formed Friends of the University of Chicago Library at International house on the university campus. They are William E. Dodd, Chicago, American ambassador to Germany, who is on vacation; Gov. Horner, Lloyd Lewis, author of "Myths After Lincoln," and Carl Sandburg, poet and author. Preceding the meeting the speakers will dine with the officers of the group at the Quadrangle club.

Six boxes for next season's grand opera were sold at the meeting of the box committee yesterday, making forty-six in all that have been sold so far, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, chairman, reported after the luncheon meeting at the Electric club.

march as the bride moved to the improvised altar on the arm of her father.

She was charming in a Vionnet gown of rose beige, decorated only with exquisite drawn work. Her brimmed hat of sable brown felt matched her slippers, gloves, and shoulder corsage of delicate brown orchids. Preceding her to the altar was her sister, Mrs. Frederick Hauck [Janet Chase], as her only attendant.

Mrs. Hauck was gowned in ice blue crêpe with slippers, hat, and gloves, also of deep brown. She carried an armload of pussy willows, one of the most unusual bouquets ever carried in a society wedding.

Mr. Swift wore for the ceremony a brown business suit, Scotch brogues, and a gardenia in his lapel. His brother, Alden B. Swift, served him as best man.

Mrs. Chase, who is the sister of three well known Chicago matrons, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Cecil Barnes, and Mrs. Walter Ayer, never looked more charming than she did yesterday in a black dress polka dotted in white. Her hat was black straw trimmed with a wreath of gardenias. On her shoulder she wore a real spray of the delicate flowers.

There was no one who enjoyed the reception that climaxed the ceremony more than the bridegroom's father, Louis F. Swift of Westleigh, Lake Forest, and of California. He came from the west coast for the wedding and will go on from here to New York, where he will embark to spend the summer in Europe.

The bridegroom's sister and her husband, the James Minottos, made the trip from their Arizona ranch. Mrs. Minotto [Idamay Swift] was looking springlike and gay in a flowered print and a cartwheel hat. The bride's second sister, Mrs. Polly Chase Boyden, wore a long spray of gardenias on the shoulder of her printed gown.

Other out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brooks [Alicia Patterson], who came with their sister, Miss Josephine Patterson. Both Mrs. Brooks and Miss Patterson accompanied the new Mrs. Swift on her junket to India a year ago.

And still others among the relatives of the young couple were Miss Lydia Swift, escorted by her brother, Nathan Swift; Mr. and Mrs. Huntington B. Henry, their daughter and son-in-law, the Gordon P. Kelleys; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Thomas Taylor [Mrs. Taylor was Geraldine Swift before her recent elopement]; Miss Janet Fairbank, and the Francis Neilsons. A few of the intimate friends included Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, the Scott Durands, and Edward Prendergast.

Armed Movie Squad on Way Up Yangtze

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 19.—[Special.—Guarded by his own military force, Clyde E. Elliott, movie director-explorer, soon will set out to the upper region of China's Yangtze river to record with sound the everlasting activity of millions of Chinese against the river which is both their life and death. He will use an all-native cast.

"These endless struggles against almost continuous floods can only be described by the camera," Elliott says. He isn't anxious to meet any of the Chinese river pirates, but thinks the sharpshooters whom he had with him in Malaya recently while filming "Devil Tiger" will get his Hollywood crew in and out of the danger country. His picture will be titled "Yellow Water," and will be released by Fox. Elliott directed "Bring 'Em Back Alive."

Mae West and Leo McCarey, her director, are alike in one thing: they both have to get their feet off the floor to do any heavy thinking. Leo puts his on a desk; Mae likes to write all her dialog lying down.

May Robson, who has celebrated her fiftieth anniversary in show business, has all her own teeth in perfect condition. She never uses spectacles except as props in a rôle. And they say actors live unhealthy lives.

REPLY TO A TWO NO TRUMP OPENING BID.

The last two articles actually gave you the minimum holdings on which partner should bid in response to an opening bid of two no trumps.

When the Responding Hand Is Extremely Weak.

I said that with a split hand—that is, 4-3-3-3 distribution—or when unable to mention a suit, you may bid three no trumps on a queen and a jack. Holding less than this you are justified in passing a hand in which the only alternatives are to pass or to raise the no trump declaration.

With a five card suit you should bid it if headed by J, 10, or by the queen or a higher honor. This feeble holding may be useful to the declarer in one of two ways:

1. If his hand is of the short suited type, he may hold ace, king, x, or ace, queen, x, or king, queen, x in that suit, and be able to bring the whole suit in if the opponents cannot hold off with their stopping card. In that case your hand will contribute four tricks. At other times your suit will play a negative but none the less valuable rôle by furnishing safe leads for the declarer away from his hand, compelling the adversaries to lead to tenaces in his hand. For instance, if you are playing a three no trump contract holding, and your partner bids diamonds, and holds jack, ten, x x x in that suit, and no other face card, it may be your salvation to lead a small diamond away from your ace, forcing a lead into a tenace. When in again, you can lead out the ace and the remaining diamond, and gain another trick on the next lead made against you. There is also the chance that the adverse holdings may be queen, x x and king x; the opponent holding the queen may feel impelled to win the first lead; then the ace will drop the king and you will take four tricks in that seemingly hopeless suit.

2. If his hand is of the type which contains a five card suit to the ace, king, the opener will need only one trick from you, and this may be obtained by leading your suit immediately and fooling the opponents into holding off once with a high card, for fear that he may establish that suit in the dummy. This must be done early, before they get any kind of count on the declarer's hand or realize that he has bid no trumps though holding a powerful suit of five or more cards. There is also the possibility of any of the plays developing which I described in the previous paragraph. Finally, your holding may be precisely the protection he needs to shelter the weak spot in his hand, preventing opponents from leading that suit and enabling him to prepare the play of the hand before he is seriously menaced by their attack.

I have analyzed only the possibilities of the absolutely minimum holdings on which you will respond to this invitation bid. Very seldom will you be called on to bid with just a queen and a jack, or with only a jack, ten, x x x holding. Usually you will have something more in your hand, and in that event the declarer will not have much difficulty. The gamble will be present only when you have a very weak hand, and I have tried to show you the justification for hoping that a game may be made under these, the least favorable conditions.

You will have no difficulty with the large group of average responding hands on which you make the minimum response of raising the two no trumps to three, or bidding three in a suit. The opener's rebid is automatic in the latter case, and nearly all these hands will be played in three no trumps. The exceptions are when the opener has a powerful concealed major suit, bids it over a suit take-out by you, and you bid four in the major suit for him in preference to three no trumps.

APPLING'S THIRD HIT BREAKS UP BATTLE IN 9TH

Bonura's Bat Helps Defeat Tigers.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Luke Appling yesterday cast himself in the rôle of goat in the White Sox final with the Detroit Tigers, but twice ripped off his whiskers to become a hero in a rousing 9 to 8 Chicago triumph.

After making two errors to gum up things pretty much in the first inning, Appling drove in two runs with a double in the Sox half of the first. Then one thing and another happened so that the Tigers were leading, 8 to 7, going into the Chicago ninth. Luke had made his third error in the first half of the inning, so, remembering the first inning precedent, decided to make up with another hit if given an opportunity in the ninth. He got the hit with one out and it broke up the ball game. During the contest Appling was on base five times, made three hits, and scored two runs in addition to three he batted in.

Two More in Hero Class.

In the active cast with Appling were two other heroes who were not hampered by wearing the grotesque beards of goats. We mean Jack Hayes and Zeke Bonura.

Jack tripled in the second inning to drive in two runs and later scored himself. And he started the winning rally with one down in the ninth with a merry line single, after which he later scored the tying run.

Bonura, whose happiness at making two homers Wednesday was blighted by eventual defeat, made three hits, all of which figured in the scoring. Zeke's single in the first inning put Swanson on third, and he and Evar scored on Appling's double. His single drove in Hayes with a run that put Chicago ahead, 5 to 4, in the second inning. And the third smack was the greatest of all. It was a double to left center, which scored Hayes with the tying run. And then Zeke came home on Appling's subsequent single.

Halt Losing Streak.

The stirring finish rescued the Sox from the ignominy of being alone in last place in the American league, fortified numerically by a decimal point and three horrible horse collars. It also halted a losing streak which had spread over seven games.

The winning pitcher was Whit Wyatt, who started Wednesday's contest. Whit pitched the ninth and struck out two batters and let Joe Chamberlin dispose of the other.

Wyatt was the tenth pitcher to work for the Sox in the three game series, counting himself twice. The other two yesterday were Phil Gallivan, who wasn't especially good, and Joe Heving, who pitched a triple ball to Goose Goslin, which caused a 7 to 7 tie to be broken in the eighth.

That Painful First!

The first half of the first inning was especially painful from the Chicago point of view. Gehringer singled to right with one down, Cochrane supplied the second out with a pop to Hayes. Goslin doubled to right, scoring Gehringer, after which Appling picked up Walker's grounder and threw the ball some six or eight feet over Bonura's head, Goslin scoring and Walker taking second. Greenberg was hit by a pitched ball; then he and Walker moved up on a double steal. Appling punted Doljack's easy grounder, Walker scoring and Greenberg taking third on the error. Doljack stole second, but the inning ended when Appling threw out Owen.

Appling in a measure made up for his fielding clumsiness by using his bat in the Sox half of the first inning. Swanson singled to launch the Sox offensive and moved to second on Hayes' out. Bonura singled to left, putting Swanson on third, and took second on Goslin's throwing error. Simmons popped to Greenberg, but Appling doubled to right, scoring Swanson and Bonura. Haas walked, but Owen made a circus catch of Ruel's foul.

The Sox held the Tigers to one run

Rookie's Homer in Ninth Wins Opener.

Boston, Mass., April 19.—[Special.]—The Boston Red Sox today turned on the Washington Senators, American league champions, sweeping the Patriots' day double header by taking the morning game, 5 to 4, and the matinée contest, 7 to 3.

Julius [Moose] Solters, recruit right fielder from Baltimore, was the hero of the morning victory, catching one of Gen. Alvin Crowder's pitches squarely in the ninth inning, with a three and two count on him, and sending it over the left field wall for a home run.

The Red Sox were forced to rally to tie the score in the second game, the Senators having taken a 3 to 2 edge in the third. The Bostonians tied it with a run in the fourth and then came back with four more in the next inning. Johnny Welch was the winning pitcher, restraining Washington to five hits. Carl Reynolds led the Red Sox attack, collecting four hits in as many times at bat, two going for triples.

Johnson's circuit smashes were matched by Tony Lazzeri and Bill Dickey, whose homers accounted for five of the New Yorkers' runs. Score:

WRENCHED BACK FORCES ALLISON FROM TOURNEY

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 19.—(AP)—Wilmer Allison, No. 2 ranking player from Austin, Tex., withdrew from singles play in the Mason and Dixon tennis tournament today and apparently left a clear path to the final round for Frank Shields and Lester Stoefen.

A wrenched back, suffered in the north and south tournament at Pinehurst last week, led Allison, a prominent candidate for the American Davis cup team, to default his third round match to Charles Lockhart, Pittsburgh. The injury was not regarded as serious, but Allison decided there was no point in taking chances with it.

In quarter-final matches, Shields romped through J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., 6 to 1 and 11 to 9, and Stoefen disposed of William C. Wright, Philadelphia, 6 to 1 and 6 to 2.

Polish Boxers Plan to Slug It Out with Chicago Team

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

POZNAN, Poland, April 18.—The amateur boxing championship team from Poland will use the American style of fighting in an attempt to win the fourth annual international Golden Gloves bouts with the Chicagoland champions at the Stadium on May 23.

It will be the first time that a foreign squad will endeavor to score a victory in that fashion in the four years of such competition. All three of the Chicagoland team's former international opponents relied on the European style of boxing to score points for a triumph.

Poland Adopts Slugging Style.

In 1932 Germany held the American titleholders to a draw, four matches to four; in 1931 France lost, five to three, and Ireland was beaten, six to two.

The Poles, under the tutelage of Y. M. C. A. instructors who have been pioneers in boxing in Poland, adopted the American slugging style two years ago and intend to slug toe to toe with the Chicagoans.

The Poles are eagerly awaiting the international match with Germany which will be held in Poznan near the end of this month. In recent intercity bouts involving German and Polish cities the Poles have won. The Poles who fight the Germans in the international bouts will probably be on the team which goes to America to fight the Golden Glove champions.

Adam Seweryniak, 25 years old, who hails from Warsaw, won the Polish welterweight championship. He has been boxing six years and has fought in 104 matches. Of these he lost only 12 and had eight draws. During his championship fight with Max Stahl, 23 years old, of Lodz, he opened up only in the second of the three rounds. He showed he had a good left and right hook and uses a powerful uppercut occasionally. He likes in fighting and landed hard punches while getting away.

Stahl forced the fighting. He is taller than Seweryniak and has a long reach, but he was outclassed. It was a clean hard fight. Seweryniak has been three times champion of Poland in his class and is likely to make the Chicago team. It will require a hard puncher to beat him.

Middleweight Champ Wins Easily.

In the middleweight contest Witold Majhschyski of Poznan had a walkaway. Leoniak of Lvov was completely outclassed, although he put up a good exhibition and proved he could take all the punishment the other fellow handed out. Leoniak, a heavily built farmer, just couldn't be knocked out. Majhschyski, who has been boxing eight years, has fought in 151 bouts and has won the middleweight

Or maybe you don't live in Alaska. A good many people don't. But whether your home is in the Klondike, Kenosha, Wis., or Kenmore avenue in Chicago, it's time to order tickets for the fourth International Golden Gloves bouts at Chicago Stadium May 23.

The champions of Poland against the champions of Chicagoland! That's the program. If you saw any of the Golden Gloves fights this year, you'll be coming back for more. If you missed those battles in February and March, your friends probably have urged you never to be absent again.

Mail check or money order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. Prices are $3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, and 55 cents. All seats are reserved.

LONDOS BETTER WEAR ARMOR IN TONIGHT'S BOUT!

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The violence which Gino Garibaldi, the reformed pick swinger, visited upon the august person of James Londos in the course of their last rassling joust at the Chicago Stadium was as child's play compared to the methods which Gino promises to employ this evening, when they come together once more on the same premises.

"I was only fooling that last time," Gino snickered yesterday as he ground his heel into a sparring partner's features in a rehearsal for tonight's performance. "Why, I was under wraps all the time. Just wait until tonight. I'm really going to let myself out."

Out on His Ear.

Gino, of course, had reference to the roughhouse routine which distinguished almost every minute of his last meeting with Londos; that is, every minute except the last one, wherein James threw out Gino from deep center with a fling which brought the Italian's head in contact with the marble floor of the Stadium. This produced a coma out of which Gino did not emerge until 20 minutes later in the dressing room below.

Prior to that match, Garibaldi had discussed with the Illinois state athletic commission the limits to which he might go in proving to Londos that he was no submissive sissy who would finally hold still after going through the approved holds for a respectable period of time. He was informed that he would be permitted all maneuvers within the rules, and no sooner had the proceedings started than Gino took the words to heart, cuffing and pummeling and kicking his majesty James without compunction. This was blasphemy of a high order, indeed, for such tactics are usually restricted to the lesser acts on a wrestling bill, finesse and drama being reserved for the windup.

A Warning to Londos.

This impudence is reported to have outraged Londos to the point where he showed no mercy in pitching Garibaldi among the customers. The latter, however, proposes to double the dose he administered last time, so that James is hereby warned to have his throwing arm in good shape tonight.

Garibaldi will not only be seeking revenge for his late humiliation, but will have cause to exert himself on two other counts, not the least of which will be the natural Graeco-Roman rivalry between his countrymen and those of Londos. The other concerns the embarrassment which followed his recovery in the dressing room, when he discovered that his lingerie and hosiery had been slashed by some heartless vandal so that they came apart when he attempted to get into them. Garibaldi still suspects a Londos henchman.

Mr. Foley also advises that the clients tonight will be treated with a bow from the ring by a man named Jack Dempsey, of whom you may have heard tell, and who has been flitting about these parts lately with a great deal of mystery.

Other artists on the program tonight include Everett Marshall and Cliff Olson, Joe Malcewicz and Hans Kampfer, and Jack Smith and Dutch Hefner.

GOODMAN FACES COLD AND WIND, BUT SHOOTS 70

New York, April 19.—[Special.]—Whatever fears Johnny Goodman entertained concerning the difficulties of playing St. Andrews in the wind was dissipated today when he went to Lido for his final practice round before sailing on Saturday with the Walker cup team.

The weather at Lido was much like "St. Andrews" weather. It was cold and windy, yet the national open champion went around the links in par figures—70.

Goodman and the other members of the United States Walker cup team will be guests of the United States Golf association tomorrow night at a dinner at the Links club. The team will sail on the Carinthia Saturday.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

PAPA and Mama Bonura, who came to Chicago to see their son Zeke make his debut with the White Sox, brought along a special bottle of spaghetti dressing. . . . This probably accounts for the two home runs he scored Wednesday. . . . Michigan boasts the all-America co-ed of the year. . . . Her name is Betty, and she is being rushed by Whitey Wistert and Chuck Bernard, all-Americans of the 1933 Wolverine eleven. . . . Bernard saw her first, but Wistert is reported to have the inside track at the moment. . . . Every American association team that won its opening day game was defeated the second day, so they all started the third day of the race with an average of .500. . . . It's surprising how fast a man can slip. . . . Jack Kearns, once manager of Jack Dempsey, is running a walkathon in San Francisco.

Sonja Henie's Dance of the Dying Swan, which drew extravagant praise from 18,000 spectators at the Chicago Stadium last Sunday night, wasn't perfect at all, it now develops. . . . The one to blame is Papa Henie. . . . The grand climax of the dance finds Sonja sinking slowly to the ice. At the instant she "expires" all lights in the building are supposed to be turned off. . . . Papa Henie stationed himself near the master switchboard to give the signal at the proper time, but he became so excited when the big moment arrived that he reached for the switch himself. . . . He grabbed the wrong one and for an instant every light in the building was turned on. . . . An electrician quickly pulled the right switch and few of the spectators knew what had happened. . . . Papa Henie then smacked himself vigorously with both hands and remarked, "Ach, Gott! Will Sonja give me hell when she sees me!" . . .

This will be the first year there will be no conflicts in home games between the Cubs and Sox. . . . Usually there are two or three. . . . Repeal of the Pennsylvania blue laws, which now permits Pittsburgh to play Sunday games, is the reason. . . . It is reported that William Carey will soon be back with Madison Square Garden in an executive capacity. . . . Louisville hotels have received as many reservations for Derby eve as they did in 1929. . . . A Marquette university javelin thrower qualified at the Drake relays last year on a toss made by Duane Purvis of Purdue, national champion. . . . Purvis wanted to sample the Marquette man's spear, and the first thing the boys knew the officials had measured the throw. . . . More than 30,000 participated in athletic events sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. in 1933. . . .

Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago are not saying much about the outcome of the Kentucky Derby, but their colt, Naval Cadet, is working about as fast as any Derby eligible in training at Churchill Downs. . . . Babe Triscaro, former national A. A. U. flyweight boxing champion, appears in Mae West's latest, "It Ain't No Sin." . . . Sam Rice, formerly with the Senators and now with the Indians, is 42 years old and still a top notcher. . . . "It's nothing like Notre Dame," says Tommy Yarr, who is teaching the Rockne shift to the John Carroll eleven at Cleveland. . . . George Foster, secretary of the Illinois racing commission, had hopes of becoming a heavyweight fighter in his youth, but his parents and a couple of sound punches changed his mind.

Whenever a member makes a hole in one at the Wilshire Country club in Los Angeles he is required to purchase $50 worth of wine in the clubhouse. . . . McNamara-Zach Team Leads Montreal Bike Race

MONTREAL, April 19.—(AP)—Reggie McNamara and Freddie Zach took the lead tonight in the Montreal six day bike race. They held a one lap margin over Alfred Letourner and Henri Le Page. Three more teams, including the favored Canadian combination of Torchy Peden and Jules Audy, were tied for third place, two laps behind the pace setters.

HARTNETT GETS HOMER; MALONE YIELDS 5 HITS

It's Third Straight for Bruins.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 19.—Pat Malone's bad luck is proverbial, but he didn't let it annoy him today in his first appearance of the season. The big right hander put together a five hit job that enabled the Cubs to sweep the three game series with the Reds, 4 to 1, and maintain a perfect mark in the percentage column. Four of the Reds' safeties off Malone were scratches.

While Malone's luck showed improvement, Paul Derringer, who went eight innings for the Rhinelanders, made the unhappy discovery that 1934 is starting just like 1933 ended. The unhappy Derringer, who was trimmed 27 times last season, mainly because of his mates' weakness, was unfortunate again on this occasion. In the first place his co-workers furnished no encouragement in the shape of runs. In the second place two or three runs against him resulted from an error and scratch hit.

Derringer had nothing to do with a homer by Gabby Hartnett in the ninth. Rookie Brennan was doing relief work when that happened.

Two Hits for Stainback.

Two of the flukes against Malone occurred in the first inning and accounted for his failure to open his year's work with a shutout. One was a fly ball which dropped safe because of Tuck Stainback's inexperience. The other was a dinky roller. Stainback, however, made proper amends with his bat. He came up with a pair of singles, one driving in a run. After his first inning blunder, Stainback also proved that one fielding lesson was sufficient. He handled five other fly balls, some after long runs, without faltering.

Stainback was the only one of the three Cub outfielders who accomplished anything out of the ordinary at bat. Tiger Klein, who hit homers each of the first two days, couldn't come close to repeating today. He singled once and this developed into a run, but he also fanned twice. There were men on bases in each instance.

And Babe Herman spent another profitless day, although he did line one almost to the wall in his last attempt. Chick Hafey speared it. The Babe also did a little spearing himself. He leaped up in front of the right field screen in the sixth and made a glove handed grab of a wicked drive by Bottomley.

Pass Up Scoring Chance.

The Cubs were given a chance to indulge in a bit of run getting in the first inning, but they spurned it. The game opened with a walk to English, who went to second on a passed ball after Billy Herman had flied to right. This brought Klein into a spot where it was possible to do some damage, but he watched a third strike drift over. The fadeout was complete when Babe Herman popped to Slade.

Malone bowled over the first two men in the Reds' opening half before trouble appeared. It came on Stainback's misjudging of Piet's long fly to center. The Los Angeles youth made no allowance for the wind, so the ball dropped for a triple. Malone walked Hafey. Bottomley hit a bounder that couldn't be reached. It eluded Malone and also Billy Herman. Piet scored on the scratch hit. Shiver fouled to Hartnett for the third out.

Stainback Gets Even.

Stainback singled to open the second. It was the only Cub hit off Derringer in the first three innings. When Tuck singled again, however, it meant something. Klein led off in the fourth with a single to center and went to second on Babe Herman's infield out. Stainback then slapped a single into left, scoring Klein with the tying run. Stainback scampered to second on the throw in, but neither Grimm nor Jurges could assist his progress.

It might sound funny, but the ponderous Malone actually beat out a single to short with one gone in the fifth, and this was the starter of a run. English followed with a one base drive to center and Billy Herman smacked one in the direction of right. These two hits moved Malone across the plate. With Klein and the illus-

POLO STARS OF EAST ARRIVE IN CHICAGO TODAY

National Tournament Will Open Tomorrow.

The roundup of polo champions will be completed today in preparation for the start of the national indoor polo tournament tomorrow night at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

Ponies arrived yesterday from the stables of Winston Guest, the New York Athletic club, the Boulder Brook Polo club, the Cleveland Riding club, and Bill Nicholls of the Chicago Riding club. Today the eastern players will arrive.

Winged Foot Sends Team.

From New York will come the Winged Foot Athletic club team of Arthur Borden, Buddy Coombs, Billy Reynolds, and George Oliver, the last named being alternate on the team. From New York also will come the Boulder Brook trio of Merle Fink, Edwin F. Ford, and John Loeb, as well as L. F. Brigham, the team's alternate. The Cleveland Riding club will send its threesome of A. Z. Baker, Bill Fergus, and Hank Evinger, accompanied by Maj. Ollie Gates, who will be held in readiness as alternate.

Easterners Drill Today.

An active afternoon has been scheduled for the invaders from New York. Upon their arrival this afternoon they are to be met at the station by a delegation of Chicago polo leaders, including the tournament committee. They will parade the downtown streets in three high powered open cars under convoy of a motorcycle escort. After a call at the mayor's office they will be taken to their headquarters at the Hotel Sherman, leaving shortly afterward for the Washington Park armory to get reacquainted with their ponies and take a light practice.

The Cleveland players who will represent the west against Boulder Brook, the eastern champion, for the 7 to 12 goal title will also take a workout in the armory arena.

Eastern Fans to Attend.

About 200 eastern polo followers are to come here for the tournament. Among them will be Robert A. Granniss, president of the Indoor Polo association; Frank S. O'Reilly, executive manager of the association; Joseph Lennon, chairman of the New York Athletic club polo committee, and Judge James Moore.

Polish Boxers Plan to Slug It Out Here championship of Poland six times, showed good form and will undoubtedly put up a great fight in Chicago.

In the light heavyweight class Roman Antschak, 22 years old, from Warsaw, fought his friend and fellow townsman, Walery Karpinski, 22 years old. Antschak has been champion of Poland twice and during three and a half years' fighting he has won 75 bouts and fought five draws. Antschak closed one of his opponent's eyes and blacked the other. There was plenty of hard punching.

Heavyweight Wins in Three Punches.

Stanley Pilat, 25, of Poznan, landed three punches on the jaw of Christowski of Danzig in the first round and ended the bought right there. Pilat, who is a Polish mountaineer, weighs 88 kilos [194 pounds]. His chief interest in going to America is the hope that he will be provided with good sparring partners. All of his bouts have ended so quickly he has had no opportunity to get practice in boxing.

The Polish Amateur Boxing union is planning to hold further tournaments before finally choosing the American team, but the championship winners are the most likely candidates. One or two changes are possible.

TRACK ATHLETES ASSEMBLE FOR KANSAS RELAYS

Lawrence, Kas., April 19.—(AP)—The vanguard of more than 2,000 athletes and coaches arrived today for the twelfth annual Kansas relays carnival to be held here tomorrow and Saturday.

Predictions of mild spring weather gave promise of record breaking performances and enlivened hopes that Glenn Cunningham might be able to approach or surpass the world record for the mile Saturday.

High school events will occupy most of tomorrow's program, eight contenders for the Missouri Valley A. A. U. Decathlon championship will complete the first half of their 10 event tests tomorrow. The second half of the decathlon is scheduled for Saturday morning.

Heading the list of contenders in the university class are Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Indiana, which made off with most of the honors at last year's carnival when seven new records were set up.

Women Plan Illinois Title Golf Tourney

The Chicago Women's District Golf association will hold its annual spring luncheon and meeting at the Chicago Athletic association Monday noon, according to Mrs. John A. Wheeler, Evanston, president of the association. The C. W. D. G. A., which enjoyed a successful season last year, is looking forward to a repetition this season.

Will Vote on Dues.

Beside a vote on a proposal to continue the dues at $3 for the coming season, plans for team play and a general schedule of events will be announced. The association this year will sponsor and conduct the first Illinois women's state championship tourney at the Evanston Golf club.

Members of the association are requested to make reservations for the luncheon wherever possible. The tarif will be $1.10, and reservations will be accepted by Marjorie Russell, treasurer of the association, at 140 South Walloa avenue, La Grange, Ill.

Oak Parkers Are Officers.

In addition to Mrs. Wheeler and Miss Russell, the association's officers include Mrs. George C. Davis of Oak Park, vice president; Lorraine Hayes of Skokie, secretary; Mrs. F. P. Hammond of Olympia Fields, handicap chairman, and Mrs. W. W. Hodgson of Oak Park, executive of the Women's Western Golf association. Mrs. S. L. On May 5 the Illini will meet Michigan at Ann Arbor; May 7, Northwestern at Evanston; May 12, Purdue at Urbana; May 14, Indiana at Urbana, and May 19, Notre Dame at Urbana.

◆

The nine hole golf course at Jackson park will open today. The eighteen hole course is expected to see its first activity next week.

◆

The Dixie-Hi Golf course, located at 151st street and the Dixie highway, is now open for play. Owen Johnson again will act as professional at the course, which is in excellent condition.

Another "opening" of a golf course which has been open all year has been announced for the Golfmoor Golf club Saturday at 79th street and Cicero avenue. With new greens at the 2d, 5th, and 12th holes, and six grass tees reported in excellent shape, this course, which is identified with the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, will make its formal bow to those golfers whose season begins in the spring. George Huard, who built the course six years ago, has resumed managerial responsibilities. James E. Loye was manager last year.

No Favoritism for College Athletes, Educator Asks

College athletics should be administered through the same financial channels which govern other activities of institutions of higher education, and athletes should be given no preference in the allotment of campus jobs and scholarships, in the opinion of Dr. John Dale Russell of the University of Chicago. He made that statement yesterday while discussing the new policy of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

In addressing a meeting of the commission of institutions of higher education at the Stevens hotel where 2,000 educators from twenty middlewest states are assembled, he said:

"The group of students who participate in athletics should not be favored above other students in such matters as admission requirements or eligibility requirements, the distribution of scholarships, room funds, grants of financial aid, and remunerative employment. The administration of such matters should be independent of the athletic department."

B. L. Stradley of Ohio State university, chairman of the committee on physical education and athletics, reported a substantial percentage of college athletics do not live up to educational standards.

In a triennial athletic report on 64 colleges and 10 junior colleges in the states of West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, and Minnesota, approximately eleven colleges were found where the academic standing of a large proportion of the athletes was below the graduation average required.

Crown 7 Loyola U. Boxing Champions

The first annual Loyola university intramural boxing tournament was held last night at the university gymnasium. Champions in seven divisions were determined. They are:

Coulon, Champion of Other Days, Boxes O'Dowd Tonight

Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion from 1907 to 1914, will head his own boxing show tonight at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue. He will box a three round exhibition with Bobby O'Dowd, Sioux City, Ia., 122 pound youngster. It will be Coulon's first appearance as a boxer since 1920, when he retired, after he had stopped Emile Juliard in the second round at Paris, France. He is 45 years old and O'Dowd is 24. The match will give fans an opportunity to view boxing as practiced today and twenty-five years ago.

Daily exercises have kept Coulon in good form and he may display the ability that gave him recognition as champion in 1907, and then empowered him to defend successfully the title against the British crown holder, Jim Kendrick, whom he stopped in nineteen rounds at New Orleans, La., three years later. Johnny was dethroned by Kid Williams at Vernon, Cal. Supporting bouts tonight are:

Joe Serletic vs. Roosevelt Haines [5], 152.
Jim Richards vs. Willie Ross [4], 129.
Al Schiarato vs. Gary Baldwin [4], 135.

Eddie Ran, welterweight, yesterday was forced to call off his scheduled ten rounder against Iowa Joe Rivers tonight at Eau Claire, Wis., because of boils. . . . Frank Knauer, Eagle River, Wis., 147 pound fighter, and Mickey O'Shea are matched for six rounds at Duluth, Minn., May 1. . . . The Ocean View Hebrew nursery will sponsor an amateur card May 9 at New York. . . . Karl Ogren started drills here yesterday for his main event against Tony Bruno at Milwaukee, Wis., next Wednesday. . . . Mickey O'Shea meets George Black in a six round supporting encounter.

◆

Buck Everett, Gary, Ind., heavyweight, is to return to Miami, Fla., tomorrow to go through with a series of three conflicts there in a month. . . . On April 30 he collides with Le Roy Brown. . . . Then he faces Gordon Fortenberry May 14 and Joe Knight May 28. . . . All are set at ten rounds.

◆

Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, Ill., has resumed workouts after being out of action for three weeks because of an injured hand. . . . Geno Salvatore, La Salle, Ill., lightweight, arrived yesterday to prepare for pending engagements.

◆

Joey Kleko and Jackie McCarten.
George Haberski and Lou Vine.
Harry Booker and Art Zimmer.
Bobby O'Dowd and Lenny Cohen.

The winner of the Eddie Shea-Leo Rodak junior lightweight bout at White City Monday night may meet Freddy Miller, featherweight champion, in a nontitle encounter in an outdoor show on the south side this summer. Miller has been offered the fight and it is likely that he will accept it after going through with a title scrap against Paul Dazzo at Louisville, Ky., Derby eve, May 4.

Fans are divided as to who will score a victory Monday. Shea partisans are of the opinion that his young opponent may be unable to absorb Eddie's terrific punching. Followers of Rodak are confident that superior boxing will enable him to score his 17th triumph in as many professional appearances.

Barney Ross, custodian of two boxing championships, left this morning for Loretta, Wis., where he will do two weeks' preliminary training for his title bout with Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight champion, at New York May 28. . . . Promoter Maurice Rivkin has arranged three supporting contests. . . . Mickey O'Shea tackles Chuck Reed, Bob La Monte clashes with Midge Bennett, and Sammy Richman faces Bob Crowley.

◆

The Polish Youth organization tonight will present the first of a series of bi-monthly amateur boxing shows at its clubhouse, 4637 South Ashland avenue. Sammy Zaczek, novice Golden Gloves flyweight runnerup, will oppose Fred Brown in a feature attraction. Buzz Kaliski and Joe Karseski, rival heavyweights, meet in one of seven other scraps.

◆

At Hollywood, Cal.—Bob Godwin vs. Frank Rowsey [10], light heavyweights.

At Philadelphia, Pa.—Ken Overlin vs. Tommy Rios [10]; Teddy Yarosz vs. Jimmy Smith, both middleweights.

Parmelee, Luque Star in Third Straight Win.

New York, April 19.—[Special.]—Manager Bill Terry and Bud Parmelee collaborated at the Polo grounds today to give the world's champion New York Giants a 2 to 0 victory over the Phillies, third consecutive triumph of the series.

Phil Collins held the titleholders to four hits, but one of them was a first inning homer by Terry. Parmelee held the Phils to three hits until after one was out in the eighth inning, when wildness caused his withdrawal. Adolfo Luque finished the game for the Giants, yielding two hits during his tenure. Score:

St. Louis, Mo., April 19.—(AP)—Ralph Birkofer, driven from the mound by the St. Louis Cardinals two days ago, subdued them today while his mates went on a batting rampage, and Pittsburgh took the odd game of the series, 14 to 4.

Bill Hallahan, St. Louis ace, was the first victim of the visitors, who garnered 19 hits. Hallahan retired in the fifth after five hits and two errors gave the Pirates six runs. INDIANS DEFEAT BROWNS, 3-2, ON VOSMIK'S HOMER

Cleveland, O., April 19.—(AP)—A line drive by Joe Vosmik that traveled more than 400 feet into the left center bleachers for a home run gave Cleveland a 3 to 2 victory over St. Louis. Vosmik's clout in the eighth inning also brought in Pytlak, who had doubled to left. Score:

Sox Get Two Runs in Ninth to Win, 9 to 8

in the second inning. Rowe pushed off with a single to center and, after Rogell had flied to Haas, went to third on Gehringer's second single. He scored on Cochrane's foul to Swanson.

Gallivan singled with one down in the Sox half of the second and Swanson walked. Hayes then tripled to the center field wall, scoring Gallivan and Swanson with the tying runs. Bonura came through with his second hit, a carom off the wall in deep right center, scoring Hayes with the Sox' fifth run. Zeke tried to make second on the drive, but Doljack made a sensational pickup and throw to get him at second. Simmons fanned.

After Gallivan had held the Detroiters hitless in the first of the third, the Sox increased their lead in their half. Appling was safe on Rogell's low throw and went to second on Haas' sacrifice. Ruel slapped a double off the left field wall, scoring Appling. This caused the replacement of Rowe by Auker. Chamberlin and Gallivan were infield outs.

Gehringer Hits Homer.

Gehringer's homer swept away the Sox's two run lead with one out in the fourth and brought the demise of Gallivan. Then the Tigers marched on against Heving to take the lead. After Auker had lined to Simmons, Rogell singled to center. Gehringer than knocked his third successive hit, the aforesaid homer, scoring Rogell ahead of him. Cochrane walked. Heving replaced Gallivan, whereupon Goslin rapped his second double, Cochrane stopping at third. Walker popped to Appling. Greenberg walked, filling the bases. Doljack was hit by a pitched ball, forcing in Cochrane.

Heving fanned Auker and Rogell, and made Gehringer fly to Haas, in the fifth, after which the Sox went to bat and tied the score. Appling beat out an infield roller and took second when Auker threw away the ball trying to get Luke out at first. Appling went to third on Haas' infield out and scored after Goslin made a fine running catch of Ruel's line drive. Chamberlin fanned.

Things were comparatively placid from the time the Sox tied the score until there were two out in the Tiger eighth. With one down Gehringer walked and paused while Cochrane fanned. Goslin then knocked his third extra base hit of the game, a triple off the right field wall, which scored Gehringer. Appling threw out Walker.

Appling Errs Again.

Wyatt made his second appearance in two days when he went in to pitch the ninth. He fanned Greenberg, but immediately was put in the hole when Appling fumbled Doljack's easy bounder. Owen tried hard to knock a grounder to Appling but miscalculated and was thrown out by Chamberlin, Doljack stopping at second. Auker fanned.

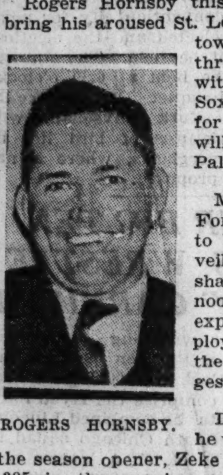
Earnshaw Gets Sox Test Today Against Browns

Rogers Hornsby this morning will bring his aroused St. Louis Browns to town today for a three day series with the White Sox. The outfit, for the first time, will stay at the Palmer house.



ROGERS HORNSBY.

Manager Lew Fonseca expects to be able to unveil George Earnshaw this afternoon. Hornsby is expected to employ Jim Weaver, the majors' biggest behemoth.

Despite the fact he was shut out in the season opener, Zeke Bonura batted .385 in the opening series with the Tigers, his assortment of hits including two homers, a double, and two singles. One of the singles was said to have been the longest one play safety ever made at Comiskey park. Al Simmons hit .154 in the opening series and Luke Appling .364.

Today will be Ladies' day.

Pitcher Elden Auker, who lost yesterday's game and worked in the opener, carries the number 13 on his back. There is no No. 13 in the Sox wardrobe.

Jimmy Dykes, invalided by a wrenched leg, expects to resume his place in the Sox lineup tomorrow or Sunday.

Chill weather and promises of showers yesterday held the crowd to 1,500. And the Sox misfortunes in the first two games of the American league season and the last five of the exhibition season might have had something to do with the private nature of the spectacle.

Lane Baseball Team Defeats Senn, 5 to 3

Lane Tech, defending Chicago Public High school league baseball champion, scored its second consecutive north section victory by defeating Senn 5 to 3 at Logan Square park yesterday. Phil Cavaratta went the full seven innings for Lane Tech and gave only four hits.

Harrison Tech and Marshall were victors in a pair of west section contests. Harrison triumphed over Crane Tech 7 to 2, while Marshall won from Kelvyn Park 7 to 1. Crane made only two hits off Skol, who pitched for Harrison. Kelvyn Park scored its only run against Marshall in the first inning.

In the south section Bowen routed Fenger 14 to 3, and Calumet scored a 4 to 3 victory over Hirsch. Bowen made seven runs in the first inning, and scored in every inning but the second.

Austin yesterday qualified two men in the diving preliminaries of the annual Chicago Public High School league swimming meet at the Roosevelt pool. It now will have nine men in the finals tomorrow, seven having qualified in other events last Saturday.

H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, Princeton university football coach, will be honored at a dinner tonight at the Morgan Park Military academy. Chicago and suburban high school coaches will attend. Dick Hanley, Northwestern football coach, and Clark Shaughnessy of the University of Chicago, also have been invited.

Preliminaries in the annual Chicago Catholic High School league swimming meet will be held at Fenwick, Oak Park, tonight. The finals will be held tomorrow night. Fenwick is the defending champion.

Charley Root to Open Cubs' Series with Cards Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 19.—The Cubs departed late this evening for St. Louis, where they open a three game series tomorrow with the Cardinals. The veteran Charley Root will make his 1934 debut in the opener against the Redbirds. The Cubs expect to look at Tex Carleton.

CHARLEY ROOT.

Manager Grimm has been figuring Bill Lee as his fifth starting pitcher which would bring up the tall Columbus, O., rookie for work in Saturday's game. This plan may have to be revised. Lee has been pitching to batters and on each occasion tired rapidly, presumably due to the flu attack suffered several weeks ago. Bud Tinning will be substituted if necessary.

Ki Cuyler, after being treated for three days for an infection in his left hand, was back in uniform this afternoon. He'll be able to play tomorrow if needed. When he returns to center there is a possibility that Stainback might be moved to right to supplant Babe Herman, who has been having trouble with his hitting.

The season is only three days old, but John Heydler, National league president, who was here today, declared the agitation for abolishing the broadcasting of ball games had broken out again. The St. Louis Cardinals argue their attendance is affected by the baseball broadcasts originating in Chicago.

The Cubs have found a new way to kill time in Cincinnati. There's a horse shoe pitching lot next to the park clubhouse and the boys have been going out early to test their skill. Joiner and English seem to be the champions.

Wildcat Nine Opens Race with Michigan

Northwestern's baseball team will open the Big Ten season in Evanston today when it meets Michigan at Roycemore field in the first of a two game series. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

Herb [Lefty] Harris is slated to pitch for the Purple in the opener. He has been a consistent performer for two seasons and is co-captain of the nine with Roy Augustson, second baseman.

Two other Wildcat teams will see action during the week-end. The tennis team will open its season with a match against Notre Dame at South Bend today and will return tomorrow for the conference opener with Iowa at Evanston.

College Baseball

WESTERN, 3; MICHIGAN, 2.

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 19.—[Special.]—Western State Teachers defeated Michigan 3 to 2 behind the pitching of Lefty Brandt, who limited the Wolverines to four hits today. Neuman, who made three hits for Western, was a factor in scoring two runs.

PURDUE MEETS GOPHERS.

HARTNETT MAKES HOME RUN; CUBS BEAT REDS, 4-1

Malone Holds Cincinnati to Five Hits.

trious Babe Herman coming up it was logical to expect one or two additional runs, but Klein fanned for the second time and the Babe was thrown out by Slade.

Get One Instead of Many.

The feature of the Cub sixth was not that they scored another run, but that they didn't register several. A two base error, a double and a single occurred before anybody was out. Piet made the two base error on Stainback's easy popup. Grimm doubled against the right field fence, Stainback scoring. Jurges beat out a hit to short. Hartnett sacrificed, which appeared to be poor strategy with Malone coming up. Malone then rolled to Bottomley and Grimm was nailed at the plate. English's tall fly to Piet ended it.

The only noteworthy happening in the last three innings was Hartnett's homer, which sailed into the right field seats in the ninth when Brennan, last year a Yankee, was pitching.

WEBB NAMED GOPHER CAPTAIN

Minneapolis, Minn., April 19.—(AP)—Wesley Webb, Minneapolis, today was elected captain of the University of Minnesota swimming team.

don't get caught in the rain

Not so long ago that was good advice when you purchased a suit from the bargain counter. The suit looked nice. But once it rained! Well, then you discovered just how expensive a "bargain" can be. For that matter, did you ever stop to realize how expensive most bargains may be? Take coffee, for example. Perhaps your wife has come under the spell of "bargain" counter coffee. And—figuratively speaking—you're caught out in the rain every time you try to drink a cup of her coffee. Here's a way to have your economy and quality too.

Suggest to your wife that she order a can of Hills Bros. Coffee. The greater strength and abundance of flavor make Hills Bros. Coffee go farther—compared cup for cup—than "bargain counter" brands.

WHITNEY HORSES NOMINATED FOR ILLINOIS DERBY

Mata Hari, Sir Thomas Also Entered.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The nearby Illinois Derby to be run at the Aurora track on May 23 began to take on the shape of a major turf event yesterday after Judge Cliff Abbo had opened the morning mail.

The Judge, who thought this $10,000 stake might possibly bring the best 3 year olds into competition, blinked his eyes a bit and pinched himself when he opened a letter bearing an eastern postmark and discovered that Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney had nominated Collateral and Fogbound for the Illinois Derby.

He thumbed his old dope book and discovered that right now Collateral is regarded as the best 3 year old in the Whitney stable and will more than likely be the chief reliance of the noted sportsman in the Kentucky Derby.

He ripped the end off another envelop, perused its contents, and then almost upset his chair in his excitement. This envelope contained the nominations of the Dixiana stable's Mata Hari and Chasar for the Illinois Derby.

Then did his eyes pop out? The next letter he examined brought to the Fox Valley Jocky club the nomination of Sir Thomas, the Kentucky Derby favorite, for the Illinois race.

This is pretty good evidence that $10,000 purses are not going to be scorned in horse racing any more. Back in the days of the big money orgy owners would pass up a $50,000 purse if their steeds didn't wake up in the morning with the right sort of a sparkle in their eye.

The Audley Farm stable owned by Bernard B. Jones of Berryville, Va., will campaign more horses this season than any other racing establishment in America.

Joe F. Patterson, who trains the Audley horses, yesterday asked the Arlington Park Jocky club for stall reservations for forty horses. He revealed in his letter that there will be about thirty other Audley horses campaigning at the time at other tracks in the east and west. Audley farm has eight eligibles to the $60,000 Arlington Futurity and six for the $35,000 Lassie Stakes. A full sister to Gallant Knight is one of the Audley youngsters eligible to both stakes.

A change from California to Illinois climate has not affected the veteran campaigner Morpheus. He has displayed lots of speed lately in his works.

Jocky George Ellis is losing weight so fast that he will be able to ride at about 110 pounds when the Aurora season opens.

KOMONEN WINS 38TH MARATHON OF BOSTON A. A.

Boston, Mass., April 19.—[Special.]—Dave Komonen of Sudbury, Ont., won the 38th annual marathon of the Boston Athletic association today. Johnny Kelley, Massachusetts Irishman, was second and Bill Steiner, New York, was third. Clarence De Mar, Boston veteran, who had won the race seven times, was far behind the leaders, finishing 16th.

Komonen, Finnish-Canadian, covered the 26 miles and 385 yards in 2 hours 32 minutes and 53 4-5 seconds. Alex Burnside, also of Canada, finished fourth and Karl Koski, New York, was fifth. Komonen and Kelley fought for the lead until the last few miles when Komonen forged to the front and was running strong at the finish.

TRAINER SUES FOR $20,206.

New York, April 19.—[Special.]—John P. Jones, trainer of the racing stable of John Barry Ryan, filed suit today for $20,206 alleged to be due on a claim of $43,586 for services and advances.

PURPLE MARTINS SHOW LIKING FOR FLASHY HOMES

Bits of Glass, Copper Will Attract Them.

BY BOB BECKER.

Does it pay to decorate a martin house with bits of metal or pieces of looking glass? Will martins take such houses quicker than the ordinary undecorated apartment?

Last year a reader advised us of his success in attracting martins to new nesting boxes by making them quite flashy with strips of tin and copper and even bits of glass. Now Foster M. Ford of Morris, Ill., informs us that he has tried this stunt and found it a huge success. He says:

"Last year you had an article in THE TRIBUNE about attracting purple martins. In this story you reported the suggestion of a Chicagoland bird fan who experimented with shining pieces of glass and metal as an attraction to the birds.

Has Poor Luck at First.

"Since I was unsuccessful in getting a colony of martins started I tried the experiment from every angle.

"In the beginning I had one eight room house that has been up for several years. One pair of martins occupied that house for two seasons. Last year I put up a new forty-eight room martin house as soon as the birds came, but I had no luck.

"I was determined to get a colony of martins so I built a new house of sixteen rooms and put it up. After the martins had been around here about three weeks I put several pieces of looking glass on the sides and roof, also on each landing I tacked strips of copper about three inches wide and the full length of the landing.

Then Came the Martins!

"Two days after the house was in position martins appeared. They looked the house over very carefully. Many birds flew around and circled over the house every day. In about a week several pairs were building nests and six pairs in all hatched young in the house last season. This particular house appeared to be headquarters for martins all summer since large numbers of birds gathered on the wires near this house.

"Two weeks after I had put up the sixteen room house with looking glass and copper strips I did not have a single bird in the big forty-eight room house. I put several pieces of looking glass and copper strips on this one and soon I saw two pairs of martins starting to build nests.

Neighbor Loses Birds.

Izaak Walton League Opens 2 Day Meet

Conservation has become a matter of rebuilding our system of land use, Aldo Leopold, professor of game management at the University of Wisconsin, said yesterday at the first day's session of the Izaak Walton league of America at the Sherman hotel.

Prof. Leopold asserted that there is at stake "not merely the perpetuation of outdoor sports, but the continuity of the organic resources whence come our bread and butter." He depicted the shortage of the game crop in Wisconsin, particularly in Dane county, and counseled more militant individual action on the part of league members in improving conditions there and elsewhere.

Other speakers yesterday were Harry McGuire, magazine editor; A. H. Bolton of Sioux City, Ia., Harry B. Hawes, former senator from Missouri, and Dr. Preston Bradley, national president of the league, who delivered the opening address.

The convention will end today. At 4 o'clock the convention city for next year will be selected and the election of officers will be held. The annual banquet will be held at 6:30 o'clock. During the banquet Dr. Frank R. Castler, New York physician, will show some pictures of bird life in the Florida everglades, where a national park is proposed.

FORMER BIG TEN STARS WRESTLE AT 'Y' CARNIVAL

An all star wrestling team composed of former Big Ten matmen and Chicago and Cook county high school wrestlers will comprise the Hyde Park team that meets the combined Lincoln-Belmont and South Chicago squad in the Chicago Y. M. C. A. sports carnival to be held at 132d regiment armory, 2653 West Madison street, tomorrow night.

Don Beals, former West Point star and a member of the 1928 United States Olympic wrestling team, is the only exception. Beals is the present New England A. A. U. champion at 135 pounds. He will meet J. Tipescu, Lincoln-Belmont runnerup to the 1934 Illinois Y lightweight champion.

Among the Big Ten men who will compete are Glenn Brown, former Indiana star and Big Ten middleweight titleholder, and Ed Howell, Illinois, who is captain of the squad and wrestles in the heavyweight division. The high school wrestlers are Ben Smolin, captain of Crane Tech last year, 126 pounds; Jim Teskey, Crane college, 165 pounds, and Hale Scheiffer, heavyweight, formerly of Tilden Tech and a Cook county high school champion.

GOVERNOR SIGNS NEW YORK RACE BETTING BILL

Albany, N. Y., April 19.—[Special.]—Betting on horse races became legal in New York state this afternoon when Gov. Herbert H. Lehman signed the Crawford-Breitenbach bill, passed by the assembly earlier in the week. For the first time since 1908, a citizen can place a bet as openly as he can take a drink. And he will have an opportunity very shortly to find out how it feels, for the racing season opens at Jamaica on Saturday.

The Crawford-Breitenbach bill permits betting at the tracks by nullifying the penalties of the Hughes antibetting law of 1908. It sidesteps a constitutional clause, too, by giving bettors the privilege of suing bookmakers for losses.

The governor signed the measure in the presence of Senator James J. Crawford and Assemblyman William Breitenbach, both of Brooklyn.

The next step in the broad plan to rehabilitate horse racing in this state was taken by the assembly today when it passed and sent to the governor the Dunningan bill, creating a new state racing commission by a vote of 83 to 54. That measure sets up a commission to share with the jocky club control of racing in the state. Gov. Lehman also will sign this bill.

Osborn Wins High Jump in Return to Competition

Philadelphia, Pa., April 19.—(AP)—Harold Osborn, 1924 Olympic high jump champion and former University of Illinois track athlete, returned to competition today and won first place in a dual meet with a leap of six feet. Osborn now wears the colors of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy.

JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN 1ST BOOP TRIAL ISSUE

Unfair Competition Next Point in Case.

New York, April 19.—[Special.]—Decision was reserved by Supreme Court Justice Edward J. McGoldrick today on the question of whether the private rights of Helen Kane, boop-a-doop singer, have been invaded by those responsible for the creation and exploitation of the Betty Boop animated cartoons.

The completion of the "private rights" phase of the action does not, however, conclude the entanglement out of which Miss Kane hopes eventually to collect $250,000 for alleged damages to her income possibilities as a result of the existence of Betty Boop.

Competition Next Phase.

Tomorrow the court will take up the question of whether Miss Kane has been a victim of unfair competition and eventually Justice McGoldrick or a jury—depending on certain legal technicalities that may come into force—will determine to what, if any, monetary reward she is entitled.

The "private rights" issue concerned only the dispute as to whether the animated pen and ink character, Betty Boop, resembles in physical appearance the plaintiff, Helen Kane. The Boops which are associated in the public mind with each individuality are not as yet being considered by the court. Booping is expected to play a bigger part in the next phase of the case.

The defendants are Max Fleischer, the cartoonist who created Betty; Fleischer Studios, Inc., and the Paramount-Publix corporation.

Calls Her Poor Caricature.

Miss Kane insists that Betty Boop is nothing more or less than a caricature of herself and not so much of a caricature at that. Later she expects to show that Betty's boop-a-doops are exact simulations of the baby voiced style of song which she claims to have originated years before Betty Boop made her deput before the movie going public.

All that Justice McGoldrick has to consider at the moment is whether Betty and Helen look alike and whether the similarity, if any, would cause the public to think of one while seeing the other.

Max Fleischer was the only witness to testify today and under direct examination he said that Betty Boop was merely a character which grew out of his imagination. He said he had no individual in mind in 1930 when he decided to launch Betty on the screen.

DANIEL FOLEY, PIONEER QUARRY EXECUTIVE, DIES

Daniel Foley, 77 years old, long a figure in the stone and quarry industry, died yesterday in his home at 1056 North Shore avenue. He was vice president of the Moulding-Brownell corporation and president of the Federal Stone company.

BANDIT'S VOICE MORE TERRIFYING THAN HIS PISTOL

A rough voiced bandit, carrying an automatic pistol, entered the lobby of the Orlando hotel at 2373 East 70th street last night. He ordered F. J. Le Clere, clerk; Dr. Byford Heskett, a resident; Charles Singelman, bellhop, and Fred Zieske, elevator boy, into a corner.

Then he demanded the hotel money. Le Clere started to obey, but was too slow to suit the bandit's fancy. He pointed the pistol at the clerk's head and snapped the trigger twice. The gun failed to discharge.

Singelman, the bellboy, snickered. "So you think it's funny," said the bandit, exasperated. He waved the pistol at Singelman, Dr. Heskett, and Zieske. He snapped the trigger three times. Again it failed to work. No one snickered this time, but the bandit wasted no more time. He fled, taking $3 out of the cash drawer.

CHILD PRESENTS MYSTERY TO U. S. CIRCLES IN PARIS

On Trade Mission, Snubs Yank Commerce Body.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 19.—Considerable speculation is going on in American circles here regarding the activities of Richard Washburn Child, who arrived in the French capital Saturday and has been burning his protocol at both ends ever since.

In the first place it took several days for French and American official circles to get Child's status figured out, as he had been preceded by varying and not always concordant messages describing him as President Roosevelt's trade envoy, ambassador-at-large No. 2, and so forth.

When, on making discreet inquiries, the French were informed that Child was merely an advisory assistant to the secretary of state and in no sense to be considered as the President's personal envoy, they thought the question cleared up and were about to give instructions to the advisory assistant doorman at the Quai d'Orsay to take charge of the situation when a new complication was introduced.

Not What He Is—What He Gets.

Some one pointed out to the French protocol authorities that while Child had no special standing for diplomatic purposes, he was a full fledged ambassador for fiscal purposes, since he was costing the American taxpayer a regular ambassador's salary for the duration of his travels—$17,500 a year—and presumably an ambassadorial expense account like Norman H. Davis's as well. The French, with their customary realism, decided that any one who rated an ambassador's salary likewise must rate ambassador's treatment, so all doors were opened to him.

In rapid succession Child conferred with the commerce minister, Lucien Lamoureux, Gov. Clement Moret, and other officials of the Bank of France, Minister of Foreign Affairs Louis Barthou, Finance Minister Louis Germain-Martin, and technical experts of Quai d'Orsay and the ministry of finance. The second part of this schedule struck observers as being somewhat on the margin of Child's avowed mission of exploring trade conditions and gave rise to the rumor that Child is sounding out the French on a new war debt proposition.

Debts on Child Agenda.

From a reliable source THE TRIBUNE is informed that, while Child declares he has no authority to do any talking in the name of the United States on any subject, he is not confining his listening to commercial subjects, but is gathering the French point of view on all questions they wish to discuss, which presumably includes debts.

Although taxpayers were given to understand that Child's travels somehow are connected with boosting American trade, Child has not questioned any American business men in Paris regarding practical obstacles in the path of trade expansion. He did, however, show up today at the weekly luncheon of the American club as a nonspeaking guest of honor. This policy rather puzzles the American chamber of commerce here which has always coöperated in particularly active fashion with embassy officials in trying to protect American trade.

Arthur Baldwin, president of the chamber, today said he hopes to have an interview with Child before the trade envoy leaves France, but expressed fear it would be difficult because "Child evidently is very busy with the political aspects of the commercial situation and is not personally investigating trade figures."

The embassy here, like the French, seems a bit puzzled by Child. According to the press department of the embassy, Ambassador Jesse Isidor Straus has placed the entire embassy staf at his colleague's disposal during his stay here. Other departments think they are simply supposed to provide the advisory assistant to the secretary of state with any statistical information he may desire.

MRS. BENNETT ENTERS HOSPITAL BUT LEAVES AGAIN IN A HURRY

Her sudden arrival and departure from the hospital added to the mystery which has surrounded the Bennett couple's final and violent break, which occurred when the former Angela Raisch, San Jose, Cal., society girl wife of the elderly actor, left their home for medical attention last Saturday, and swore out a police complaint before Magistrate Arthur Erb. Attorneys for the pair are negotiating toward a monetary settlement.

Alfred Juergens' Burial in Graceland Tomorrow

Funeral services for Alfred Juergens, noted artist, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 203 South Marion street, Oak Park, instead of today, as was incorrectly stated in an item printed yesterday concerning his death. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery. Mr. Juergens died Wednesday, in his home at 213 South Grove avenue, Oak Park. He was 67 years old. He had exhibited his paintings in American and European world capitals.

It's This Sort of Thing That Makes a Wife Mad

Mrs. Florence Sinkay of 6554 South Campbell avenue is angry enough when her husband makes love to another woman. But her anger is increased when he does it in the back seat of an automobile and makes Mrs. Sinkay drive the automobile for him. Mrs. Sinkay charged that her husband, William, did just this on July 4, 1931, and she incorporated this charge in her bill for divorce filed yesterday by Attorney Victor Frohlich.

CHARGED WITH ROBBING 4 WHILE FREE ON BONDS

The police yesterday placed four charges of robbery against Fred Beigelbeck, 29 years old, and at the same time revealed that he had allegedly committed the crimes while he was at liberty on $50,000 bail on other robbery charges.

According to men under Deputy Chief of Detectives Walter Storms, Beigelbeck is a leader of a robber gang estimated to have as many as 45 members, who operate not only in Chicago but in Michigan and Indiana. The gang, the detectives said, has preyed mostly on small town banks.

Seven or eight members of the gang are now in prison. Another half dozen alleged members are now in the county jail awaiting trial. Beigelbeck was arrested with this group, but alone of the group got out on bail. This was last month. Within a short time, police charge, he got $6,000 by robbing Homer G. Bowland, 620 North Latrobe avenue; Charles Martin, 841 East 63d street and F. L. Anderson, 3145 West 63d street. Beigelbeck was seized on Tuesday when he stepped out of the Criminal court after getting a continuance.

OSCAR WOLFF LEAVES ESTATE OF $500 VALUE

Oscar Wolff, former coroner of Cook county who served fourteen years as a public official, left an estate estimated at $500, it was revealed yesterday when letters of administration were granted to his widow, Mrs. Signa Wolff, by George B. Weiss, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. Mr. Wolff retired from public life in 1928 after he had been defeated for reelection to the office of coroner. He died April 5 in his home at 10611 Avenue H after an illness of several weeks. He was 58 years old.

Six wills were admitted to probate and filed yesterday with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The wills are those of:

John E. Andersen, died March 1. Estate $10,000 to three sons and one daughter. Earl Andersen, son, and Ruth E. Andersen, daughter, co-executors.

Selma A. Clebert, died March 1. Estate $16,000 to sister and executrix, Lillian M. Sternberg.

Margaret C. Phillips, died March 5. Estate $31,000 to son and daughter. Chicago Title and Trust company, executor.

Fred Larson, died April 4. Estate $17,000 to widow, son, and daughter. Paul O. Larson, son, executor.

Sarah Bell Thomson, died April 1. Estate $5,000 to two nieces. Frank P. Byrne, executor.

New York, April 19.—Domestic corporation bonds continued higher on the stock exchange today as United States government issues and leading foreign loans moved irregularly lower. The principal gains in the corporation issues amounted to a point or two, while the long term United States government issues were down 1-32 to 10-32. Both the called and uncalled fourth liberty 4¼s remained unchanged.

Industrials Strongest.

Industrial bonds showed the best average strength in the domestic group, although rail issues enjoyed by far the most active trading. Leaders for the advance in the rails included the obligations of Alleghany corporation, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, Missouri Pacific, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, and Southern railway. In the utility group, telephone issues moved irregularly lower.

Two German Issues Sag.

In the foreigns, German government 7s dropped 2⅜ points and the 5½s a point in heavy trading. Other German loans were irregularly higher. French government and United Kingdom issues were little changed. Argentine government bonds, which had been advancing steadily during the last few days, weakened slightly.

The turnover expanded moderately to $15,936,000.

Childs Co.

Investors' Guide: I wish you would send me the latest information you may have on the standing of Childs company.—B. T. W.

Answer: Childs company operates a chain of 104 restaurants, about half of which are in or near New York City, and the remainder in larger cities in the United States and Canada. It holds a substantial amount of land, although during the last two years it has been able to dispose of several parcels.

Earnings have felt the effects not only of economies on the part of the eating public, but also the unsatisfactory conditions in the real estate field. During 1933 sales and rentals declined 15 per cent. The drop in meal check average was 7 per cent, while the number of meals served decreased 8.2 per cent.

	Sales and rentals.	Net loss	Loss per com. sh.
1933	$16,469,000	$223,000	$1.49
1932	19,349,000	204,000	1.43
1931	25,930,000	*241,000	.06
1930	28,288,000	*933,000	*1.61

*Profit.

During 1933 bank loans were liquidated. Excess of current liabilities over current assets was decreased to $98,000 from $325,000. In addition, long term debt was reduced by $96,000 to $8,355,000.

There are outstanding 37,321 shares of $100 par 7 per cent preferred and 324,785 shares of no par common. Nothing has been paid on the preferred since December, 1931. Both the preferred and common are quite speculative. The management appears to have made some progress during recent months, but increased costs due to National Recovery act legislation and the unfavorable current situation constitute a handicap.

Axton-Fisher Tobacco.

Investors' Guide: I own some shares of Axton-Fisher Tobacco A common. Now I find that they have a class B stock. I bought the A stock figuring on dividend increase. Now I would like to know whether all increases would go to the B or whether the A would share in such increase. —H. E.

Answer: The class A common has second preference [following the preferred] as to assets and cumulative dividends of $3.20 per share per year. After the class B receives $1.60 per share, or 7 per cent in stock, in any calendar year the class A and the class B share equally as a class in any further distribution.

CHIEF OF HOLC EXPECTS RISE IN ILLINOIS LOANS

McNeal Sees 1,000 Week Rate by May 1.

BY AL CHASE.

William H. McNeal, general manager of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, with headquarters in Washington, yesterday answered recent congressional criticism of the Illinois HOLC by predicting that this state would be closing loans at the rate of 1,000 a week by May 1. He made this statement at the first session of a two days' meeting of HOLC officers from ten midwestern states.

Simultaneously, Henry G. Zander Jr., Illinois manager, announced that on Tuesday the state HOLC paid out sixty-six loans. In the first fourteen working days of April 539 loans have been paid out, Mr. Zander announced. Each day the number of loans paid out has been climbing steadily, he said, so that at least 1,000 loans will have been closed by May 1. This will be more than were closed in the entire six months before Mr. Zander became state manager last February, when 751 loans were paid out.

Criticisms Based on February.

Mr. McNeal refused to comment on the charges made in Washington that Illinois loan costs were too high and that production was too slow. It was pointed out, however, that all of these charges were based on February statistics when production was deliberately slowed up in order to install a new system by the new régime.

"When one remembers that Mr. Zander had to install a complete new system, we feel that a tremendous task has been well done," said Mr. McNeal. "The Illinois HOLC under Mr. Zander is making rapid strides with a steady increase in the production of loans. It will be making 1,000 loans a week by May 1, we believe. Various state agencies are making loans at from 20 to 1,000 a week. In the country generally, about 43 per cent of all the loans made have been closed since February. In Illinois the figure is 51 per cent."

Hopes to Distribute Two Billions.

Mr. McNeal stated that the HOLC hopes to have its entire $2,200,000,000 distributed by the end of the year. About 25 per cent of the available funds already have been used up.

Representatives from Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, Ohio, Missouri, and North and South Dakota were present at yesterday's sessions. A buffet supper was served last night with the Illinois group as hosts.

Walter Newton, a member of the Home Loan bank board, Horace Russell, general counsel of the HOLC, and Philip Kniskern, head of the appraisal division, were present at yesterday's sessions. All the HOLC officials will be guests tonight at a dinner at the Union League club, given by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

DETROIT'S BOND REFUNDING PLAN NOW EFFECTIVE

The refunding plan for bonds and notes of Detroit, providing the readjustment of $280,000,000 of the city's debt, has been declared operative by the bondholders' refunding committee, B. A. Tompkins of the Bankers' Trust company, New York, chairman of the committee, announced yesterday.

He said that more than 92½ per cent of the bonds and notes affected, or about $259,000,000, have been deposited in assent to the plan. It is expected that new refunding bonds will be ready in about ninety days for exchange for certificates of deposit.

The Detroit refunding plan is said to be the largest undertaking of its kind ever carried out in the country. The plan was put under way last July following the default by Detroit on most of its obligations in February, 1933.

The committee plans to make another payment on back interest about June 20 on the coupons due between March 16, 1934, and December, 31, 1933.

MORGAN ALOOF IN MONTGOMERY WARD CONTEST

How Joseph Zook, head of the Montgomery Ward Stockholders' association, stormed the J. P. Morgan citadel in New York without success was disclosed yesterday in the latest of Zook's broadsides against the management of Montgomery Ward & Co.

"In November, 1933, I called on H. P Davison at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York City," Zook said. "I asked him if he and his partners were interested in having a constructive discussion with us regarding the board of directors of Ward's. He said they were not."

In the same statement Zook asserted that the Ward management, despite its continued silence on the subject, is understood to be contemplating dropping two or three of its present directors and nominating substitutes for them at the annual election on April 27.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP)—Raw sugar declined 3 points early for spots, then rallied 2 points to 2.72 cents, while later shipments held at or slightly above the last paid prices. A slightly better inquiry was reported. The sales included 9,000 bags of Philippines in port at 2.70 cents, 15,000 bags of Porto Rican, due early next month, at 2.72 cents, and 130,500 bags of Philippines for May and June arrivals at 2.75 to 2.80 cents. After an irregular opening, futures eased off under increased May liquidation and scattered selling prompted by the continued liberal offerings of duty frees in the spot market and uncertainty over the sugar bill in the senate. Final prices were 1 to 3 points net lower. Sales, 30,000 tons, including 19,200 of exchanges. Prices follow:

COTTON SAGS $1.50 A BALE, THEN PARTLY RECOVERS

Liquidation developed in cotton early yesterday. Southern selling was regarded as the heaviest in some time past. Weakness in grains was also a factor. At the lowest figures prices were off nearly $1.50 per bale.

On the break there was fair trade and commission house buying, and later speculative support developed as the result of an unconfirmed report regarding prospective silver legislation. A strong rally followed, and the finish was about the top, although prices were off 5 to 8 points per bale in the leading markets.

Spot cotton dropped 5 to 10 cents per bale,

WALLACE'S VIEW ON WORLD PRICE BREAKS WHEAT

Secretary Sees Less Spread in Values.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation was under way in volume in wheat yesterday, induced by a statement by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who expressed the belief that domestic and foreign wheat prices would work closer together during the present year. May wheat dropped 4⅞ cents, or within ⅛ cent of the maximum permitted for one day's fluctuation under the exchange rules. It touched 72⅞ cents, only to rebound over 2 cents from the inside level before the close. The low price was within 1⅜ cents of the low figure of the season, established Oct. 17.

Unconfirmed rumors that President Roosevelt had revised his ideas regarding remonetization of silver were heard when the market was around the lowest level of the day and started a buying movement that sent prices up almost as rapidly as they declined. The finish, however, was at net losses of 2⅞ cents with May at 74¾ to 75 cents and July 75 to 75⅛ cents.

Traders Agree with Wallace.

The statement of Secretary Wallace found support among Chicago grain men.

"Mr. Wallace's conclusion is in accord with that maintained by students of markets and of international trade," said B. W. Snow, the Bartlett-Frazier company economist. "It has been only government support and the expenditure of an immense sum of tax money that has maintained our domestic price above a world's parity during the last few years.

"Wallace's statement will probably result in unsettled price conditions for a time, but in the end the wheat trade once more will be upon a sound economic basis. It does not necessarily follow, however, that American prices under existing conditions will drop to parity with the present world's price. It is quite likely the world's price may show some advance toward the American level.

Predict Small Wheat Crop.

"This may happen when importing countries come to understand that America's part in the world's trade will be based upon her own supply and demand situation and not on any artificial governmental program. Our domestic supply of wheat will be heavily reduced at the end of the crop season and there is a strong prospect that the growing crop may prove such a disappointment as to leave this country with perhaps small or no need for a foreign market during the coming year."

Readjustment between American and foreign wheat markets has been under way at a rapid rate in the last few days. Liverpool May wheat, which was 18 cents under Chicago at the time it closed Monday, was only 12½ cents under yesterday, while Kansas City May wheat at one time was only 1 cent over the same future in Winnipeg, compared with a premium of 9½ cents a week ago.

Short Interest Props Market.

Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered in wheat on the way down, and had it not been for a fair sized local short interest the belief prevailed that the market would have dropped the full limit of 5 cents and closed there. Winnipeg lost ¾ to ⅞ cent for the day, while Liverpool was 1¼ to 1½ cents lower, with outside liquidation a factor.

While coarse grains were affected to some extent by the action of wheat, at no time did corn and oats even threaten to drop as low as on Tuesday, and aggressive buying was in evidence. Corn rallied 2 to 2⅛ cents from the low and finished ⅜ to ½ cent higher with May at 43⅛ to 43¼ cents, while oats were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher, May being 26¾ to 26⅞ cents. Rye was ¾ to 1¼ cents lower and barley unchanged to ¾ cent lower for the day.

As a result of the decline, which sent May corn here below the 45 cents a bushel government loan basis for grain in farmers' cribs, the movement to terminals has dropped in a sensational manner.

In the last three days only 19 cars of corn have been reported sold in the local sample market, or scarcely sufficient to establish quotations.

Expects Higher World Price.

Washington, D. C., April 19.—(AP)—News of today's break in grain prices as the result of a statement by Secretary Wallace brought from department of agriculture officials the declaration that they expected the world price to rise as the result of action taken at the international wheat conference.

Wallace, in answer to a question at his press conference yesterday, declared the narrowing of the difference between the two prices "is anybody's guess," but added:

He said. "the dominant factor," in determining the domestic price of wheat this year is the larger crop in sight in comparison with last year's record low crop.

Financing Plan for Armour Up to Board Today

The long promised new plan of recapitalization for Armour & Co. [Illinois], will be taken up this morning at 10:30 o'clock when directors of the company meet in the down-town offices to consider it.

The tentative plan has already been approved in rough outline by representatives of leading stockholder interests, notably Frederick H. Prince, Boston capitalist, who successfully fought the first recapitalization plan presented by the management last year. This time no opposition has so far raised its head and all parties appear to be in agreement on the broad outline of the plan.

Will Write Down Assets.

As now drawn up the plan provides for the writedown of ledger assets by from 60 to 70 millions; the exchange of new 5 per cent preferred for the outstanding 7 per cent preferred on a share for share basis; payment of accrued preferred dividends with two shares of new common; exchange of one share of new common for each outstanding class A share and exchange of one-half share of new common for each outstanding class B share. The new preferred is to be made convertible into eight shares of new common at any time at the holders' option.

The plan, however, is subject to revision. Attorneys for the company have been at work for a week checking all details and it is understood that they may have some alterations to suggest.

Expect Approval for Plan.

The company management and leading stockholder groups are understood to be confident that the present plan will be acceptable to all classes of stockholders. Only a two-thirds vote is needed among the class A and B stockholders but acceptance of preferred holders must be practically 100 per cent. Preferred stockholders, however, are expected to go along with the plan because of the more favorable terms offered them than under the old plan. The convertible feature enables them to maintain their preferred position and at the same time benefit in a speculative way from any improvement in company earnings.

This feature is expected to offset the 2 per cent reduction in the dividend rate and the payment of accumulated dividends in common stock. Under the Illinois corporation laws, even though its earnings may be sufficient, the company is not permitted to pay dividends because of its present overcapitalization as a result of shrinkage of assets during the depression.

OLD DAWES BANK PAYS $2,000,000 TO RFC; BALANCE $62,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—The old Dawes bank, the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, has repaid another $2,000,000 on its original $90,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman, announced today.

Almost $62,000,000 of principal and accrued interest on the loan remains unpaid, according to Mr. Jones. The loan is "past due" on both principal and interest payments and has thus been in technical default for over a year, Mr. Jones explained.

Although small payments are being made by the bank from time to time, Mr. Jones indicated that he was somewhat skeptical of eventual full repayment. He admitted that only by attaching the surplus of the bank and by enforcing a stock assessment against its stockholders would the RFC have a wide margin of security.

Collateral behind the loan, he indicated, would not now cover it. Much of the collateral pledged by the Dawes bank at the time it secured the loan was Insull utilities paper and German bonds. The value of these assets has since declined.

The old Central Republic Bank and Trust company is now in liquidation, having been succeeded by the City National Bank and Trust company. The exact amount of principal and accrued interest now owed to the RFC by the bank is $61,929,823.

BIG DAIRY FIRM SAYS NRA RULES COST MILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 19.—At the annual meeting of stockholders of the National Dairy Products corporation today, Thomas H. McInnerney, president, said that compliance with the NRA was costing the company $3,500,000 to $4,000,000 a year. The company, he said, is employing more than 32,000 persons. He pointed out that the company paid about $6,000,000 a year for the support of federal, state, and municipal governments, and that its pay roll totaled $50,000,000 a year.

In view of the company's strong cash position and the increase in profits in the first quarter of the year, dividend payments were assured, Mr. McInnerney said. The company, he said, had $10,000,000 in cash in excess of its normal working capital requirements.

CHICAGO AREA SHOWS GAINS IN JOBS AND WAGES

The Chicago metropolitan area showed increases in both number of jobs and total wage payments in the month ended March 15, according to the Illinois labor department. As previously announced all reporting firms in the state showed an aggregate increase of 2.4 per cent in employment and 3.9 per cent in wages for the period.

In the Chicago area employment expanded 1.8 per cent and wages increased 3.6 per cent. In the city of Chicago proper the employment gain was 1.3 per cent and the wage gain was 2.9 per cent. Nineteen of the 23 cities covered by the reports shared in the state-wide improvement.

Spain Can't Sell Olives So Army May Have to Eat 'Em

MADRID, April 19.—(AP)—The South American market for Spanish olives having fallen off, a parliamentary lobby today sought to have the army and navy take up the slack. Olive growers asked the ministry of war and ministry of marine to include more olives in soldiers' and sailors' rations and also plan an "eat more olives" campaign in the press.

1,000 Closed Banks Fail to Ask U. S. Aid

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—A billion dollars of deposits is tied up in closed banks which have not even sought federal loans to speed their liquidation, federal officials discovered today as they sought to launch their program of buying up all closed banks.

More than a thousand banks which closed as a result of last year's banking holiday and which held a billion and half dollars in deposits when they closed have never sought federal aid, Jesse H. Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, revealed. Jones said probably a billion dollars was still frozen in those banks.

Plans to buy up these and all other closed banks at a fair appraised value to pay off their depositors in part continued to take shape within the government. The project has won the support of a strong group of congressmen, including Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], who sees in it a means of heading off inflationary demands for full payment of all depositors.

Buying Agent Not Selected.

Whether the RFC will be instructed to carry out the new proposal of buying up closed banks or whether the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation will be assigned the task remained the only question tonight.

Jones today advanced a combination plan calling for speedy RFC loans to all closed banks on the basis of their remaining assets and then for a purchase of these assets from the RFC by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation. Jones said the deposit insurance corporation was not equipped to act quickly in purchasing closed banks.

The program of expanding closed bank loans has already been started by the RFC, Jones revealed.

Ninety-two loans to closed banks involving almost 10 millions dollars were approved by the RFC yesterday alone, according to Jones. Altogether the RFC has advanced 754 million dollars to 2,360 closed banks.

Would Stop Federal Dole.

Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, today continued conferences with congressmen looking toward settlement of the government's closed bank policy. Frankly reluctant to take over the poor assets remaining in closed banks, the deposit insurance and the RFC officials are resigned to buying them up at fair appraised value to stop demands for a federal dole to pay off the depositors in full.

The Deposit Insurance corporation is insisting that it be given additional funds if it is asked to buy the banks. Fearful lest an appropriation for such a purpose could not get through congress without having embarrassing amendments attached, officials were seeking by another way to obtain the money.

To solve this the RFC may be instructed to use funds it already has to lend up to 100 per cent on closed bank assets.

FISHER ASSAILS 'RUSSIAN WAYS' OF NEW DEALERS

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale university, who has been frequently identified as a member of the New Deal brain trust, yesterday told a thousand advertising men that the New Dealers at Washington are doing things "the Russian way." The occasion was the first luncheon of the newly organized Chicago Federated Advertising club.

The professor, noted for his advocacy of the "commodity dollar," flayed the Roosevelt economic policies roundly, taking pains to read from manuscrip that portion of his speech which dealt most pointedly with the planned economy experiments.

He made, however, one important exception in his general criticism. The New Dealers' "managed dollar" he found good, as far as it had gone, and thought it should go further. The depression, he told his audience, could still be licked by manipulation of the currency, but the "Russian" experiments in stock exchange regulation and the NRA, AAA, CWA and the rest of what he termed "alphabet soup" the professor viewed with alarm.

Criticism Surprises Audience.

In introducing Prof. Fisher, W. Frank McClure, president of the advertising club, had presented him as "a gentleman whom Dr. Raymond Moley has described as a member of the brain trust." It was with much surprise, therefore, that his audience listened to the professor's scathing criticism of those portions of the New Deal economic plan which do not bear on the "managed dollar" experiment.

There are two widely divergent methods of dealing with depressions, Dr. Fisher said. One, the socialistic or Russian way, with the government running everything, not for profit, but to employ idle men. The other way, he said,—the American way—let business make profits and reëmploy labor without the aid of the government.

"I believe in the American way," continued Dr. Fisher, after explaining that he would read his next remarks from his manuscript. "I believe that we should not resort to any other method than we have until the American way has been given a fair chance.

More Russian than American.

"The administration has been trying a little of both and I think it has already gone too far toward the Russion way and not far enough, nor fast enough, in the American direction.

"To that extent I agree with Dr. Wirt. The stock exchange regulation threatens to go too far in the Russian direction. The securities act has gone too far in the Russian direction. The NRA, PWA, CWA, AAA and perhaps some others in our alphabetical soup have gone too far in the Russian direction.

"The time has come to call a halt, and the American people are beginning to see it, especially since Col. Lindbergh complained of the highhanded handling of the air mail contracts.

"The trouble is that the administration has been groping and compromising and has not clearly distinguished between the Russianlike regimentalists reasons why business became unprofitable and led to unemployment."

Blames Rigid Monetary System.

Here the Yale economist got to the crux of his argument, which was that the depression was caused not by overproduction, but by faults in the rigidity of the nation's monetary system. As the cause of the depression lay in money, he reasoned, so the cure could be effected by monetary manipulation.

"The essential reason for the depression," he said, "is a contraction of the circulating medium, especially of bank deposits. This is largely because those deposits are tied to bank loans as well as to gold."

President Roosevelt, he said, has already partly remedied the defect in the dollar and attributed the measure of business recovery enjoyed to date as due solely to this manipulation of the dollar.

NRA Checked Recovery.

"But as soon as the NRA began," he hastened to add, "whatever of good it may have contained in the long run, recovery stopped, but was resumed as soon as the President's monetary policy was resumed under the advice of Prof. Warren Rogers and others. Thanks to this, we are now on our way out of the depression.

"Some people see no difference between the monetary administration and the regimentation program. There is all the difference in the world. Under the monetary administration the government merely gives the country the kind of dollar it needs, just as the government gives the country its yardstick and other weights and measures. This is all American, and in our constitution, while regimentation is Russian and un-American."

Bank Reserves Climb Again to New Peak

Bank reserves climbed to another peak figure last week, emphasizing the difficulty that bankers are finding in putting their funds to work, the weekly statement of the reserve system showed. The reserves of the member institutions at the reserve banks expanded 109 millions, bringing the current total to $3,670,000,000, the highest on record.

The large expansion in reserves did not come about as a result of any material deposit increase, the figures indicated. In New York deposits actually declined moderately, while Chicago member banks reported a 52 millions increase in demand deposits. This gain was attributed to the return of funds which fled the city to escape the April 1 tax.

The big gain in reserves was regarded as chiefly the result of the treasury's disbursements which were financed principally by the deposit of gold certificates with the federal reserve banks. The treasury credited the reserve bank with 90 millions of gold certificates, which was 76 millions in excess of increase in monetary gold stock.

The treasury apparently drew on its "free" gold to meet the 200 millions of fourth liberty loan bonds which were not converted. It also drew moderately on its deposits in the New York and Chicago member banks apparently for the same purpose. Government deposits here were down 4 millions and in New York declined 34 millions.

NEW SET OF BANK BILL RATES USED TO END MARKET DIFFERENCES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 19. — Becoming weary of seeing its official quotations for bankers' acceptances left hanging far above the actual market, the American Acceptance council today announced a new schedule of yield rates which, for the first time in history, split the customary one-eighth fraction into sixteenths. The council, in making a change, apparently took the ground that a published schedule of quotations on bills was desirable, that a schedule which did not reflect the market was misleading and that the new rate list should reflect a majority of the actual transactions.

This is the first development in the bill market impasse since dealers thirteen days ago abandoned a policy maintained for fifteen years of quoting uniform bid and asked rates.

Dealers this afternoon continued to do business at their own quotations which were in some instances above and in some cases below the acceptance council's "official" rates. For thirty, sixty, and ninety day bills the new official rate is one-quarter of 1 per cent bid, three-sixteenths of 1 per cent asked. Previously the official rate had been three-eighths of 1 per cent bid, one-quarter asked.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The steering committee of the Chicago Clearing House association, whose membership includes the majority of the city's banks, yesterday recommended to its members that interest rates on savings accounts be cut from 2½ to 2 per cent. If ratified by member banks the new rate will go into effect July 1 and will bring the return on savings accounts to a historic low level in Chicago.

Choked with cash for which they are able to find no profitable employment, the action was taken by the banks in an effort to reduce operating costs. It is in line with the recent trend toward higher charges for various banking services.

Second Cut in Rates.

It is the second time since the present easy money period began that the Chicago banks have been forced to cut interest rates. Late in 1932 the clearing house reduced the return on savings accounts from 3 to the present 2½ per cent rate, effective at the beginning of 1933.

The question of reducing the rate has been under consideration for several months. It is known that some of the city banks had urged a cut as early as six months ago.

"The clearing house committee considered reducing the rates on savings accounts six months ago, but deferred action at that time in the hope that interest rates on sound loans and high grade bonds would increase and that it would continue to be possible, with safety, for Chicago banks to continue to pay the old rate," the committee said in a formal statement issued yesterday.

Rate of Yield Declines.

"In view of the fact," it added, "that the yield on government securities and sound loans and investments has been steadily declining during the last six months, the committee at its meeting today felt that in the interests of sound banking the rate paid on savings accounts should be reduced, and accordingly so recommended to the member banks."

It is expected that a meeting of all clearing house members will be held in the next few days to vote on the proposed slash. It is regarded certain that the proposal of the committee will be ratified.

The present 2½ per cent is paid by nearly all Chicago banks. One bank, however, the First National Bank of Englewood, has consistently paid rates lower than that fixed by the clearing house. The Englewood bank maintained that it was unable to operate profitably at the higher rate.

To the holders of Bonds and Notes of

The City of Detroit, Michigan

The Committee Has Declared The Refunding Plan Operative

More than 92½% of the Bonds and Notes of the City of Detroit, to be refunded under the terms of the Refunding Plan, announced by the Committee in July 1933, have been deposited or pledged with the Committee in assent to the Plan. In addition the holders of a substantial amount of the remaining undeposited bonds have indicated their intention to deposit their holdings with the Committee in exchange for the Refunding Bonds. At a meeting of the Committee held April 19, 1934 it was, therefore, determined to put the Plan in operation.

As soon as practicable the Committee intends to exchange the Bonds and Notes deposited with it for the new Refunding Bonds to be issued in accordance with the Plan, subject to the approval of Messrs. Thomson, Wood & Hoffman, counsel for the Committee, of all details in connection with the consummation of the Plan and the validity of the Refunding Bonds.

It is expected that the new bonds will be available in approximately ninety days and at that time the Committee will notify the holders of its Certificates of Deposit that its Depositaries are prepared to exchange the same for the Refunding Bonds.

All depositing bondholders have been paid two-thirds of their interest coupons, or registered interest, which matured during the period from July 1, 1933 through March 15, 1934, in accordance with the Plan. It is contemplated that coupons or registered interest maturing between March 15, 1934 and June 20, 1934 will be paid on June 20, 1934 on the same basis. Upon receipt of the new Refunding Bonds, the holders of the same will present their coupons for payment in the usual manner.

Those bondholders who have not yet deposited their bonds are, therefore, urged to do so immediately in order that they may receive payment of their past due interest as provided in the Plan and secure the new Refunding Bonds as soon as the same are ready for delivery.

Bonds and Notes should be deposited with any of the following institutions, accompanied by a proper Letter of Transmittal, which will be provided by the Secretary or by any of these institutions:

Bankers Trust Company, New York, New York.
City Bank Farmers Trust Company, New York, New York.
Detroit Trust Company, Detroit, Michigan.
The Michigan Trust Company, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Copies of the Plan are available to all bondholders, who should address their inquiries to the Secretary of the Committee.

STOCK MARKET UPSET BY BIG WHEAT BREAK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 19.—Weakness in wheat upset the stock market today. Prices broke 1 to 2 points over a wide range after the collapse on the Chicago grain pit. Some fresh buying appeared in the late trading, however, and recoveries in many instances amounted to half as much or more of the losses. Group leaders closed the day only fractionally lower in the main.

The preferred stocks of railroad, utility and industrial companies got the big play of the day. Preferred of Adams Express, Pittsburgh Steel, Spalding, Standard Brands, American Chain, General Steel, Havana Electric, Otis Steel, American Sugar, Brooklyn-Queens Transit, Brown Shoe, Columbia Gas, Gulf Mobile, Hahn, United States Rubber and Firestone rose 1 to more than 5 points.

Gold Shares Hard Hit.

Heaviest selling was in the gold mining shares. Homestake tumbled 12 points and McIntyre, Dome and Noranda Mines were under pressure with losses running to more than $2 a share. Issues of the silver producing companies on the other hand were well bought, the theory behind their fresh popularity being that the decline in commodities may strengthen the forces in congress seeking inflation through the white metal route. The Canadian gold shares owed their troubles to the new 10 per cent tax ruling contained in the dominion budget.

The secret of the enthusiasm for National Lead, which has been carrying the price of that issue up so rapidly of late, came out at the annual stockholders' meeting of the company today. In addition to a tremendous increase in the company's earnings it developed that there had been strong hope of a stock splitup. The management frowned down the proposal, however, and some $4.50 a share was clipped from the stock's price.

Railroad Shares Firm.

Railroad shares were firm, reflecting the better than seasonal increase in revenue loading last week and the White House move to end the wage deadlock. Atchison sold at a new top for the current move and Louisville and Nashville touched 62, a new high for the year.

With the exception of Auburn, which cracked about 4 points, the motors put on a good performance. The weakness in Auburn was due to disappointment over the company's earnings. Steels were quiet.

STEWART-WARNER COMMON STOCK PAR CUT TO $5

Stockholders of the Stewart-Warner corporation at the annual meeting at Richmond, Va., yesterday voted to reduce the par value of the common stock of the company from $10 to $5 a share. This was the only business acted upon at the meeting. A previous proposal to change the name of the company to the Stewart-Warner Alemite corporation was dropped.

Reduction of the par value of the stock to $5 creates a capital surplus of $6,234,235, according to an outline of the company's plans. It was stated that as of Dec. 31, 1933, $2,262,759 was charged against surplus, leaving a balance of $660,829. This was represented principally by a reduction of idle machinery, equipment and plant not used in operations to an estimated realizable value.

Under the capital reorganization approved yesterday a further charge against capital and surplus of $2,400,000 is made to cover charge-offs in connection with the removal of the company's plant at Bridgeport, Conn., to Chicago and to provide for a write down of operating buildings to appraisal value. After all charge offs and adjustments the final net capital surplus is $4,495,064.

I. C. C. OPPOSES PUTTING END TO LONG-SHORT HAUL

Washington, D. C., April 19.—(AP)—Interstate commerce commission disapproval of a bill to remove the long and short haul clause from the act which set up the commission was reported to the senate today by Senator Hayden [Dem., Ariz.].

"We are unable to understand how the public interest would be served by the enactment of such a bill," Hayden quoted the commission as saying. The long and short haul clause forbids railroads from charging more for carrying freight or passengers for a greater than for a lesser distance over the same route. The rule is subject to suspension by the commission.

Engineering Construction Second Largest of Year

New York, April 19.—(AP)—Large awards for public works projects bring this week's total of engineering construction to $32,248,000, the second largest volume of the year, says Engineering News-Record. Public awards, $30,051,000, are the year's largest. CWA work has not been included in the publication's figures.

STOCK MARGIN RULES OPPOSED IN HOUSE GROUP

Further Amendment May Be Considered.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—A redraft of the Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange regulation bill emerged from the subcommittee of the house committee on interstate commerce today and such opposition to the revised measure developed in the whole committee that an adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning when it was said further amendatory action will be considered.

The principal opposition is understood to be directed at the margin and administrative provisions of the redraft which are completely at variance with those of the senate committee on banking and currency, which adopted the Glass separate administrative commission plan and more liberal margin provisions written by Senator Glass.

Retains Margin Formula.

The house redraft retains a statutory formula for margins with a modifying clause, and retains the federal trade commission as the agency to administer the proposed law. The house redraft fixes Aug. 1 as the effective date of the law, while the senate subcommittee draft, reported to the banking and currency committee yesterday, makes the law effective Oct. 1.

Both the Glass amendments written into the revised senate draft, the first creating an independent federal agency to be known as the Federal Securities Exchange commission, and the second eliminating fixed margin requirements and vesting authority in the commission and in the federal reserve board to raise or lower margins as they deemed necessary, were rejected by the house subcommittee.

Before Full Committees.

The revised bills were before the full committees of both houses this afternoon for final ratifying action, preliminary to the reporting of the bills to the floors of the two houses. There was a report that the house redraft was not satisfactory in the matter of marginal and administrative provisions to some members of the committee, who were said to be making a last ditch fight in committee to modify the bill along the line of the Glass amendments. On the other hand, the division in the senate committee was not so sharp, and it was predicted the bill would be reported out practically as rewritten by the subcommittee.

House Margin Provisions.

The house marginal provisions stipulate that initial extension of margin credits shall be based on a fixed standard: Namely, 55 per cent of the current market price of the security or 100 per cent of the lowest market price during the preceding three years, but not more than 75 per cent of the current price.

The rigidity of this standard is modified by succeeding subsections which empower the federal reserve board to disregard the fixed standard and to prescribe such lower margin requirements for the extension of credit as it considers necessary "for the accommodation of commerce and industry." The same provision empowers it to raise them when such action is deemed necessary to prevent excessive use of credit in speculation.

DOLLAR NEARS LOW POINT SINCE REVALUATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 19.—Sudden weakness overtook the dollar in the foreign exchange market this afternoon, driving it down to 59.11 cents measured against the French gold franc. Except for one occasion last month, when the franc temporarily touched par, this was the lowest price for the dollar since the revaluation.

The movement originated abroad and bankers here were unable to find a precise explanation of it. It was generally connected with the weakness in the commodity markets on the theory that European speculators in grains and other commodities here were liquidating and carrying their funds home, while others, fearing that the fall in prices might lead to new monetary measures by the administration were withdrawing commitments in dollars.

The French franc rose 2 points to 6.62¾ cents and the British pound gained 1⅛ cents at $5.14¾.

ANACONDA SHOWS $6,882,115 LOSS; LESS THAN IN 1932

New York, April 19.—(AP)—The Anaconda Copper Mining company in its annual report, issued today, shows a 1933 net loss after all charges of $6,882,115, which compares with net loss of $16,893,240 in 1932. Improvement in the company's business after marked depression in the first quarter enabled it to show operating income for the year of $4,960,746, against an operating loss of $4,945,295 for 1932.

Gross sales and earnings on a consolidated basis totaled $72,902,493, compared with $52,295,610 in the previous year. For depreciation and obsolescence the company charged off $5,155,572, against $4,359,648 in 1932. Inventory adjustment involved a credit of $3,715,031 against a loss in the previous year of $9,914,440.

Judge Is Denied Rehearing on Peoria Life Receivers

Springfield, Ill., April 19.—(AP)—The Supreme court today denied a rehearing to Circuit Judge John Neihaus of Peoria, who was recently directed to expunge from his records an order naming co-receivers for the Peoria Life Insurance company. The court had held the state department of insurance and not circuit judges was the proper agency for the naming of receivers.

Goods were being sent out of town to outside shops as a result of strikes in the dress trade. Silk was steady but quiet. Rayon yarns were barely steady with demand light.

Can Buy More if America Will Reciprocate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, April 19.—Does Denmark buy anything from somewhere else that she could buy from the United States of America if conditions were improved? This question was put today to the Danish premier, Th. Stauning by THE TRIBUNE correspondent, and he replied as follows:

"Of course we buy lots of articles from foreign markets which we might as well buy from the United States—if the United States showed a little interest in Danish products, but as it is now the difference between the Danish imports from the United States and the Danish exports to the United States is so big that I do not believe that Denmark will or can increase her purchases from the United States.

"I know that we have tried to get into the American market on a few occasions, but I am also aware that every time we have succeeded in finding some produce that might be sold over there the United States has increased the duty prohibitively.

Cites Export and Import Figures.

"We are exporting Greenlandian kryolit to the United States for aluminum manufacturing and we are exporting cement from Denmark, but the total of our exports to your country during 1932 was only 4,976,000 kroner and our imports from the United States during the same year amounted to 87,630,000 kroner. In 1930 we imported from the United States 194,240,000 kroners' worth and in 1931 we imported 154,067,000 kroners' worth. This means that our imports from the United States in three years have decreased from 194 million kroner to 87 million kroner.

"We must buy your imports from the markets which take our exports. We have many articles that the United States could buy from us as well as elsewhere. We have Diesel motors and other technical articles, and we have dairy products for luxury consumption, etc.

New Pact with Germany.

"We have just made a new trade agreement with Germany on the reciprocity principle. When Germany saw that our import restrictions [Valutakontoret] gradually cut down Germany's exports to Denmark, she offered to negotiate. The new agreement automatically increases our imports from Germany in proportion to our exports to Germany.

"We would be pleased to negotiate with the United States. I have for the last few years contemplated a trip to the United States to visit the Danish immigrants, and it has been part of my plan to visit Washington in order to find out what could be done to increase our exports.

"Then came the crisis and many local political problems have prevented me from traveling. Then in order to defend our own trade balance we established the import control [Valutakontoret], which will be kept effective until our trade balance has found its proper place."

Suggest Importing Beer.

If the United States should ask what Danish produce Americans might be able to import Danish beer would be a logical suggestion. Denmark is producing some of the finest beer in the world and exported in 1913 6,861 gallons of malt liquors to the United States.

On inquiry whether Danish brewers have tried their luck in the United States after the dry era ceased it was learned that while American consumers are ready for Danish beer, American tarifs are also ready, as the duty on the aluminum tanks in which this beverage is exported is prohibitive. While all sorts of cans, jugs or other vessels are free of duty in Denmark, America not only places a high duty on these tanks, but also refuses to repay the duty when the tanks are returned to Denmark.

Exporters claim that in every branch they receive almost daily new alterations in the American rules for the labeling of export products.

STANDARD OIL TELLS PLAN FOR BIG SALES DRIVE

Executives of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana yesterday revealed plans for a big sales drive to 200 agents, salesmen, department heads, and service station instructors of the Chicago metropolitan area. The meeting was one of a series of thirty in progress at district headquarters.

Speakers included Edward G. Seubert, president; C. J. Barkdull, executive vice president; Allan Jackson, vice president in charge of sales, and Amos Ball, general manager of sales.

Standard refineries, Mr. Ball said, have made further progress in perfecting gasoline and oils. Gains in sales have already resulted, he said. More than 1,600 newspapers in thirteen states are being used to advertise to consumers the company's products, according to A. N. Steele, advertising manager.

American National Bank Stock Sale to RFC Voted

Stockholders of the American National Bank and Trust company yesterday approved the sale of $750,000 of 5 per cent retirable cumulative preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance corporation. In a recent announcement that the directors had approved the sale of the stock to the RFC the bank said additional capital would not only be justified but, by increasing resources, would make possible a greater development of the bank's business. The present capital of the bank is $1,000,000 and the preferred stock sale to the RFC will make it $1,750,000.

INTERNATIONAL PACT FOR REMONETIZATION OF SILVER FORECAST

Washington, D. C., April 19.—(AP)—An international agreement for the remonetization of silver at a uniform ratio to gold is foreseen in high official and diplomatic quarters. There have been conferences in the capital in the last few days aimed toward putting under way international discussions on the subject.

In one important quarter there was said to be a close relationship between the discussions and the President's desires to avoid mandatory silver legislation at this session of congress. Bills now before congress would require the President to remonetize silver in the United States, and this might make an international agreement impossible.

The President already has power to do most of the things suggested in the proposed legislation, and specific congressional commands might limit the direction of international discussions. The government has recently sent monetary experts to the far east and financial observers have visited in other countries. It was said that one expert was to ascertain the quantity of silver in the far east.

A meeting at the White House between the President and the senate's special silver committee, headed by Senator King [Dem., Utah], was postponed today until Monday. On Monday, also, Senator Thomas [Dem., Okla.] has announced there will be a meeting of all members of congress interested in monetary questions, especially silver.

NATIONAL LEAD CHIEF REFUSES TO CUT 'MELON'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 19.—A movement among some of the common stockholders of the National Lead company to induce the management to "cut a melon" out of 38,346 shares of common stock in the treasury fizzled out at the annual meeting today.

Edward J. Cornish, veteran chairman of the board, declared that he was unalterably opposed to doing anything of the kind at this time. He said he had always opposed such action because he regarded it easier to maintain dividends on the present basis. He preferred that the stock be in the "blue chip" class, he added.

On a viva voce vote, called for by Mr. Cornish, only five out of fifty stockholders present arose to signify they favored the proposal. On another question of splitting up the common stock no one arose.

Mr. Cornish said the company's business showed a marked improvement in the first three months of this year compared with the first quarter of 1933. "Then we were $250,000 in the red," he declared, "while we have earned between $500,000 and $600,000 profit in the first quarter of this year."

OFFER WHEAT QUOTA "LOAN" TO ARGENTINA

ROME, April 19.—(AP)—Delegates to the Rome parley of the world wheat advisory commission from the United States, Canada, and Australia formulated an agreement today for a suggested increase in the Argentine wheat export quota for 1933-'34. The draft will be submitted to the Argentine delegates for transmission to Buenos Aires.

In response to Argentina's request for an increase of 40,000,000 bushels, the tri-power post-conference agreement offers 30,000,000 bushels from this quota as a loan to be repaid by Argentina in one or two years by giving the trio part of her quotas.

DISTILLING PACT ON GRAIN PRICE PARITY NEAR END

AAA Experts Admit Plan Has Been Failure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 19.—The distillers' marketing agreement, devised by experts of the agricultural adjustment administration to protect the post-repeal market for grain, is about to collapse. Termination of the pact, it was learned today, will be announced shortly by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at the request of a majority of the distillers who signed the agreement soon after prohibition ended last December.

Mr. Wallace, it was understood, will be perfectly willing to end the pact, since it has become evident that the AAA lacks power to enforce its provisions upon all members of the distilling industry. The marketing agreement represented the vehicle through which the AAA sought to insure "parity" prices for grain used in the manufacture of beverage liquor in this country following repeal.

Pay 75 Cents a Bushel.

Under the agreement the distilling industry agreed to pay, in addition to the current market price, an amount which would bring the price it paid for grain up to a "parity" level fixed by the secretary of agriculture. Wallace set "parity" at 75 cents a bushel, and the signatories of the agreement since have paid approximately thirty cents in "parity" payments over to the AAA for every bushel of grain used by them in the manufacture of beverage alcohol.

Only about 85 per cent of the distilling industry signed the marketing agreement, however. The remaining 15 per cent was to have been forced into compliance with its terms by a blanket federal license which Secretary Wallace lost no time in promulgating. But it has now developed that the license covering the entire industry has too flimsy a legal ground work and the AAA is unable to enforce payment of "parity" prices by the nonsigning 15 per cent of the distilling industry.

Several Distillers Rebel.

Several large distillers are understood to have refused to sign up under the pact and their refusal to pay the "parity" prices for grain gives them a heavy competitive advantage over distilleries operating under the agreement.

Termination of the marketing agreement, it was emphasized, will in no way affect the distillers' code, which constitutes the mechanism through which the government regulates the newly legalized liquor industry. The code, it was said, will remain in effect as the implement by which the federal alcohol control administration exercises control over the distilling business.

The marketing agreement, as a separate entity from the code, was designed to insure that the grain market opened by repeal of the dry laws would be retained for the American grain farmer. Under the terms of the agreement, the distillers agreed to use only "cereal grain" in the manufacture of beverage alcohol.

Involved also in the difficulties which will result in termination of the agreement, is the controversy over the use of blackstrap molasses. In writing the marketing agreement, officials of the AAA were forced by knowledge of their flimsy legal position to agree that ten per cent of the liquor made in this country might be made from material other than cereal grain. In addition, it was provided, Wallace might issue permits for the use of materials other than grain, although under these permits blackstrap would be forced to pay a "parity" payment sufficient to bring it into line with the price of grains.

According to AAA officials, it figures out that distillers pay the government a "parity" payment of 6.2 cents for every gallon of alcohol produced from corn and 6.7 cents for every gallon produced from molasses. The farm administration was unable, however, to collect these payments from users of blackstrap who had not signed the marketing agreement.

CANADIAN GOLD MINES PROTEST NEW 10 PCT. TAX

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., April 19.—Despite strong protests by Canadian producers against the 10 per cent tax on gold sales, the Canadian government tonight appeared likely to effect modification only on marginal or low grade properties. The tax is expected to put into the treasury about ten million dollars of the gold producers' profits derived from the gold premium.

Gold shares dropped swiftly on the markets today under the impetus of the government's tax announcement, but partial recoveries were effected all along the line.

Mining men denounced the tax as likely to repulse many millions of American investment dollars and likely to throw eight thousand Canadian miners out of work.

CATTLE LOWER; LARGER SUPPLY HALTS ADVANCE

Buying Wanes; Lambs Rise, Hogs Regain Loss.

The cattle market was roughly interrupted on its higher course when increased volume of receipts swung the advantage to the buying side yesterday. Only a handful of prime weighty beeves retained the recent sharp advances. Others dropped unevenly, the plain quality light weights indicating most loss, in spots as much as 50 cents, compared with the high spot of the week.

The eagerness for numbers was not so evident as it has been and the trade in all but the well finished heavy steers was inclined to drag at times. Packers' costs of live cattle have been mounting rapidly in recent weeks and buyers were anxious to save wherever they could in yesterday's break.

Final Prices Lowest of Day.

Closing prices were lowest of the day, although the plain quality made the market appear lower than it actually was. One load of choice 1,288 pound steers topped the market at $8.00, while the bulk of beef steers cashed within a range of $5.35 to $7.25, as against $5.60 to $8.00 on Wednesday. The bulk of steers during the first four days of this week cashed at $5.50 to $7.65, comparing with a bulk of $4.50 to $5.65 a year ago.

One of the vital concerns of the cattle industry just now is the possibility of a processing tax similar to that levied on the depressed hog market being put on cattle by the Agricultural Adjustment administration, which will hold its initial conference with all representatives of the beef industry next Thursday in the Hotel Sherman.

Lamb Prices Move Higher.

Lamb prices ruled strong to 25 cents higher yesterday, the new crop of springers showing the most strength at the highest prices since April 6, the Friday before the Greek Easter. A small lot of these averaging 55 pounds reached $11.00.

Lambs from last year's crop of "fed" stock sold at $9.60 and under, as high as any time Wednesday. Aged sheep and yearlings showed little change.

Following a weak to 5 cents lower opening yesterday the hog market strengthened and recovered the loss, closing fully steady with the best prices on Wednesday. Both the top and general average prices remained unchanged at $4.05 and $3.85, respectively.

A report that loadings were lighter for today's market stimulated action among local interests and all packers bought with more freedom on the closing rounds. Most buyers paid higher for "house hogs" than for stock for the relief corporation. Four packing houses buying "government weights" paid $3.85 to $4.00 mostly. Eastern packers obtained 2,500, the largest number of the week.

LARD SPOTS AND FUTURES STEADY; MEATS DECLINE

Weakness in grains started a selling movement in provisions, but the decline in lard did not get very far, support from a leading packer appearing on the dip and the close was at the same figures as on Wednesday. Cash lard was also unchanged at $5.85, while loose and leaf were quoted at $5.75.

Bellies were more active, old May selling off 15 cents and the new style futures unchanged to 5 cents lower. Prices:

COMMODITY PRICE AVERAGE UNCHANGED; BELOW 2 WEEKS AGO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D.C., April 19.—Wholesale commodity prices remained, on the average, unchanged last week, Commissioner Rubin of the bureau of labor statistics of the labor department announced today.

"Present prices," Mr. Lubin said, "are 73.3 per cent of the 1926 average, as compared with 73.4 per cent for the week ended March 31, 73.5 per cent for the week ended March 24, 73.6 per cent on March 17, and 73.8 per cent on March 10.

"As compared with the index of 60.3 for the corresponding week of last year, the index is up by 22 per cent. It is 11 per cent above the level for the same week of two years ago, when the index was 66. The average wholesale price level now stands 3½ per cent above that of the first week of January. It is approximately 2 per cent above the high point reached during 1933 [Nov. 18], when the index stood at 71.7 and 23 per cent above the low point of last year [March 4], when the index was 59.6. As compared with the average for 1929, the present index is down by 23 per cent."

Of the ten major groups of commodities covered by the bureau, five showed an increase last week and five a decrease from the level of the week before. The largest advance occurred in the metal and metal products groups.

Service

Local was organized to make loans —in small or large amounts—to serve the needs of wage earners and salaried men and women. It is our aim to render this service quickly to every one who requests a loan. At all of our branches, transactions are conducted in private offices by courteous employés.

Methods

We make loans on salary, ON YOUR SIGNATURE ONLY, without endorsers. Also on FURNITURE, AUTOS, or other PERSONAL PROPERTY. All transactions are confidential. Loans granted without notice to employer, friends or relatives.

Rates

Local's rates on large furniture loans are less than the legal rate. All small loans at the regular legal rate. Charges are computed monthly on the unpaid balance.

Amounts—Terms

You can borrow any amount from $25 to $300; small loans receive the same courteous attention as larger loans. You make your own terms, 10 to 20 months, more or less. Regardless of the agreement you have the privilege to repay any day week or month to reduce the cost.
